Against a backdrop of charge and countercharge concerning the operation of the Wheeling Township Road Commissioner's office, a public hearing will be held this coming Tuesday on the town budget.

On Monday, March 26, Oscar Everson, the road commissioner who was cleared last week of two charges of mishandling township funds by the Cook County State's Attorney's office, is scheduled to meet with home owners to hear their suggestions and complaints. Both meetings are slated to begin at 8 p.m. at the town hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

In other developments in the township situation:

—Russell Conklin, one of the three township auditors, said at a meeting held on the matter Wednesday, March 14, that he thought the state's attorney should investigate Richard Schmidt, Everson's former foreman, on the basis of work vouchers he submitted to the township. Schmidt, along with Township Auditor John McGivney, had lodged complaints against Everson with the state's attorney.

—Joseph Woods, chief investigator for the Better Government Association of Chicago, said he had "received enough information to feel that the matter bears looking into." Woods, however,added that he would not begin his investigation until after an audit of township books now in process is completed.

—Conklin also called for remedial legislation to bring the bills of the road commissioner under the review of the township auditors, as is the case with all other township bills.

THE FACT THAT an audit of township records is now being made by the firm of Lauren, Schulteis & Givens of Arlington Heights will also prevent Conklin and McGivney from a further checking of bills submitted by the road commissioner, as they have agreed to do.

Following hearing on the town budget, a town meeting will be held April 3 to permit township electors to vote its approval. According to Albert C. Peters, township supervisor, the road commissioner prepares his own budget and is required to hold a public hearing on it.

The difference, however, is that he does not have to adopt the recommendations of the electors. "Only the road commissioner need approve it (his budget)," Peters pointed out. Everson does not have to file his budget with the Cook County Clerk's office until Sept. 1, although a public hearing must be held prior to this date, the supervisor added.

EVERSON HAD been under investigation for granting himself a $10 raise from the township's road and bridge fund. It was discovered, however, that he could only be paid from the town fund, and that his salary was set by state statute at $20 a day. The money was returned to the road and bridge fund, including the raise which had accumulated to a figure of $270, although Everson was then paid his regular salary from the town fund. First Assistant State's Attorney Edward J. Egan said there were no grounds for prosecution since restitution had been made.

A second complaint, that a tractor belonging to Everson's son, Charles, 17, had been rented to the township for $5 an hour under the name of Economy Rentals Company, did not constitute a violation of criminal laws since the son received the $955 in rental money. Egan did not say the rental was a conflict of interest.

Township Auditor Conklin, in his assertion that the state's attorney should investigate Schmidt, said that in nine months the former foreman worked for the township from May 1961 to January 1962 his income amounted to $8,624.25, "considerably more than his reported pay of $800 a month."

CONKLIN questioned whether Schmidt could have logged as many hours as he was paid for by the township and still accomplish all the welding work for which he also charged the township.

He cited one particular date —Aug. 16—during which Schmidt's work voucher states eight hours labor at $3.75 an hour plus $65 charged for welding for "$95 for one day."

Conklin said that figuring 22 working days in a normal month and an eight-hour day would result in 176 hours for the month. Four Saturdays' work would bring the total up to 208 hours.

HE SAID SCHMIDT's work statements showed that he put in for 192 hours in June, 188 in July, 200 in August, 209 in September, 222 in October, 209 in November, and 235 hours in December.

Welding jobs at $12 an hour were dispersed throughout the months, Conklin said. "His time spent welding should have been deducted from his labor as a foreman," Conklin declared, if Schmidt were welding on township time.

He added that Schmidt charged the township $325 for welding a heavy duty tractor, and that he rented a water pump to the township at a rate of $7 an hour, earning $336 from it before selling it to the township for $750. "I would like to know," Conklin said, "what he paid for it new, how old it was, if he deducted depreciation from his internal revenue statement for it and if he reported it as capital gains."

CONKLIN SAID HE "took the perogative" to investigate Schmidt's work record "because I was not impressed by the accusations and because he was not man enough to appear again to repeat them." Conklin said Schmidt had made "serious allegations" at one meeting, but did not appear at a second meeting a week later on Jan. 18 where Everson was present to restate his criticisms.

Neither Schmidt nor Everson were present at the meeting where Conklin raised questions about Schmidt's work vouchers. Schmidt ,according to Auditor McGivney, had stayed away because his life had been threatened. Schmidt was granted police protection after he said two men curbed his car as he drove to work and threatened "to blow your head off" if he attended the special meeting.

Reached at home, Schmidt said he didn't care to comment on Conklin's assertions. He did add, however ,that "I have nothing to hide. I never cheated nobody out of a penny in my whole life." In response to the charge one of Everson's workmen, Larry Carroza, had made at the meeting that the trailer Schmidt had built had "fallen apart," Schmidt said, "I'm willing to fix it free of charge. I think the world of my welding."

SUPERVISOR Peters, who also serves as township treasurer, had withheld payment on two bills submitted by Everson from Joseph Karlesky, Box 116, Prairie View, pending "clarification." Peters said Karlesky had satisfactorily explained the bills and was paid. There was one for snowplowing at a cost of $840 and a $340 one for loading and mixing cinders and filling holes. Peters originally had questioned some of the hours which were listed for the work.

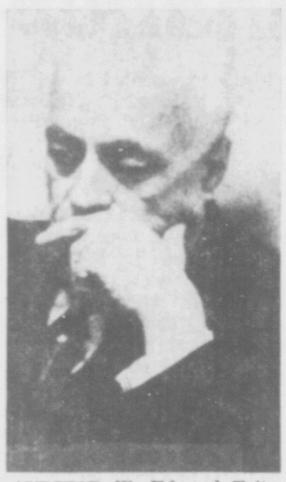
Peters identified Karlesky as being the brother of Robert Karlesky, Everson's present foreman.

Conklin said, "Granted Oscar Everson has done things that should not have been done, and he used poor judgement." But he added that it was Everson's first year in office, that he inherited ancient equipment, and that it had been an unusually hard winter.

Conklin had raised the question of Schmidt's present employment with the Cook County Forest Preserve District, and Schmidt had admitted that he had asked James Stavros, township Democratic committeeman, for the job, although "he wouldn't guarantee anything."

RESPONDING to Stavros' comment that he had interceded on behalf of other Republicans for jobs when they "were men who are good citizens," Conklin said:

"After what has been brought before the group on the question of Schmidt's work record, I'll let him (Stavros) be the judge about whether he's a good citizen or not."



AUDITOR W. Edward Fritz: In pensive mood.

ROBERT Karlesky: Everson's present foreman.

3 NEW SCHOOLS URGED IN REPORT

Report Lists Future Needs

A fourth junior high school and at least two more elementary schools — these in addition to the junior high school and an elementary schol already planned — were recommended for future construction in the Arlington Heights elementary school district in a comprehensive report released this week.

The report also advised District 25 administrators and the school board to keep close watch on future development (or non-development) of parochial schools, since this will have a decided bearing on future public school plans.

THE STUDY was made by Jack R. Childress, assistant dean of Northwestern University's School of Education, who made a similar study in 1958.

Childress' latest study included the effect of annexation of District 24 (Wilson district) into District 25, and the effect projected further development of the village and the district will have on school enrollment, and in turn on building needs.

An addition to Miner Junior High School and two new elementary schools will be opened this fall and there are definite plans for construction of a third junior high school at Thomas and State roads. This proposal probably will be put before the people in an October referendum.

IN ADDITION to these new facilities, the report recommends purchase of:

1. A junior high school site north of Rand and Palatine roads and preferably just west of State Road at Sunset Drive. This should be large enough, at least 20 acres, to provide for the possibility of building both a junior high and an elementary school on the same site.

2. An elementary school site in the area north of Rand and Palatine roads.

3. An elementary school site south of Rand Road and north of Palatine Road.

The report relies heavily on studies from available data from multiple sources on land development—how many homes could be constructed on land available for development, and the number of children development of this land could be expected to add to the school enrollment.

PROJECTING all available data, the report states that the elementary population will be about 8,500 by 1968, compared with a current elementary pop-

Suburb-Peru Aid Program Given Boost

A "Committee on Social Relations of Comas - Arlington Heights" has been set up in Arlington Heights' "adopted" city in Peru, marking a major advance in the program of the Arlington Heights Inter-American Friendship organization.

One of the major obstacles in effectively developing the village's program of help and friendship, lack of a group to work through in Peru, has now been removed.

"This is a big step," Wayne Brennan, president of the organization, told the steering committee at a meeting Monday night.

The committee was set up in Peru by Ron Baptiste, of 305 S. Dunton, when he was in South America recently on a business trip for the Diversey Corporation, of which he is manager of international operations.

THE DESTITUTE Lima suburb of Pampa de Comas has gone through a change recently, Baptiste reported, not the least of which is removal of the "Papma" designation, which means "area."

The suburb recently became a full-fledged city and is now called "Comas."

The new committee of six in Comas consists of the Rev. Andres Godin, Oblate priest, president; the town's major school principal, secretary; Robert Cottle, representative for Liquid Carbonic Division of General Dynamics Corporation, treasurer; the Comas mayor; the Comas governor (directly under the mayor in city hierarchy); and the municipal physician.

BAPTISTE told the steering committee Monday night the Comas committee is composed of capable people, fully enthused about the city-to-city program on a people-to-people basis, who will be able to effectively administer the Peruvian end of the interchange of ideas and perhaps goods.

In a series of meetings with Baptiste, who speaks fluent Spanish, the "Committee on Social Relations of Comas - Arlington Heights" listed their most yital needs: School supplies (pencils, paper and erasers), a dispensary and medicines, and a garbage truck.

Gathering school supplies for Comas will have priority, the Arlington Heights group decided, and the aid of the Arlington Heights PTA's will be enlisted if possible.

BRENNAN ALSO was instructed to correspond with the president of the Comas group to investigate the feasibility of setting up a modest credit union for the Play Breaks All Records

Support of the arts in the Northwest area was dramatically illustrated last weekend by complete sellouts of the Village Theatre production of "We Must Kill Toni."

The Friday, Saturday and Sunday performances of "Toni" at Prospect High School theater, where the production was staged, drew capacity audiences of 518 each night.

The resultant total attendance of 1,554 was Village Theatre's biggest turnout since since its inception.

NAPLES, FLORIDA

We have not done any fishing in Naples, but we have enjoyed many fish dinners—and that does not mean patronizing the restaurant specializing in seafood.

Our dinners have all been freshly caught, choice, selected in a wholesale fish market and broiled to a turn in our own oven in our apartment. We have enjoyed fish that we have never before tasted.

Today's newspaper reports that another 100 auto bodies (making 900 in all) have been dumped on the fishing reef site, two miles west of the pier.

We do not know how old autos and refrigerators aid the Naples fishing industry but the fishermen say they do. The reef serves as a haven for the small fish. The barnacles that form are food for the big fish. They must be right because last Friday's catch (seined) amounted to 75,000 pounds. That figure was not merely taken out of the air by us. It is given as "official" by the firm which received the catch and the same afternoon started it on its way in refrigerated trucks to New York City.

Collier County this week again challenged the false advertising of developers who are offering submerged and swampland as a source of future wealth for investors. Some days they have three planes in the air at the same time pointing out the lots to gullible buyers who have been attracted by the offer of free tours from various points in Florida and plane rides to view the sites of property from the air. The firm is offering half-acre lots at $995. A member of the county board charged "much of it is in the middle of a swamp."

With a 50-mile wind blowing (and sunshine) the other morning, we wore a light coat downtown. "Do not let the Chamber of Commerce see you wearing a coat in Naples," a realtor friend warned us.

Corkscrew Sanctuary to us was only a name on the map of Florida until we visited it. It has the country's largest remaining stand of virgin bald cypress in eastern North America. The trees are from 200 to 700 years old, some dating 200 years before Columbus discovered America.

The Audubon Society saved it from the woodman's ax and today has 6,080 acres under people there, a program which has had unusual success in Latin and South America.

Both Baptiste and the Rev. Weitzel, a visiting Mary Knoll priest familiar with the area, said the Arlington Heights program is a wonderful thing, and has met with enthusiastic acceptance in Comas.

"If there is one thing which can stem the tide of communism in our neighboring American countries," they commented, "it is this."

BOTH ADVISED against mere donations of goods and emphasized that the program should involve an interchange.

Baptiste described Comas for the Arlington Heights group with the aid of some slides he took on his visit, and said that one tabloid Lima newspaper has given the program a big play in its pages.

As outlined by Baptiste, Comas emerged as a city of 80,000 people, with 60 per cent between one month and 25 years of age. Family wage earners (61 per cent have a number of their family working) commute to Lima to work at such jobs as electrician, carpenter or tailor.

Comas has no water or sewage systems. Water is trucked into the city from Lima to be sold in drum cans. The Peruvian government plans to install a water system which would equip the city with fountains every three blocks from which the people could draw water. Garbage disposal is by burial, often in holes dug in the road.

Candles and kerosene are widely used for lighting. About 43 per cent of the people have no lights.

Elementary School Needs Outlined in Recent Study

ulation of 5,651.

At saturation, or complete development of available land in accordance with zoning and building regulations existing and now envisioned, the elementary school population would be about 10,000.

Current developments and known plans indicate, the report states, that the major impact will be in the Wilson district — the area bounded by Wilcox Road and, going east on Hintz Road and completing a circle, Buffalo Grove Road, Olive, Dryden, Thomas, Yale, and Olive to Wilke again.

This area formerly was served by one attendance unit located one block west of State Road on Palatine Road, and no kindergarten program was provided.

ANOTHER area of possible major impact will be the Dryden School area, serving Arlington Heights Park Manor, which is scheduled for planned redevelopment by the village. This could include perhaps 120 acres zoned for residences, which would bring enrollment pressures on Dryden School.

The third area of principle concern is in the southwestern section of the district, served by Westgate. Although there is little current development activity, the report states this land could accommodate 850 homes, and development could come at any time.

When this occurs, Westgate School will have to be expanded, or a new school will have to be constructed, probably south of Central Road.

Tables in the report indicate that attendance in the area served by Miner Junior High School will not gain appreciably even at saturation, while the area served south of Northwest Highway by South Junior High School will grow by 400 to 500 pupils.

THIS MAY necessitate, the report says, transporting some of the junior high school students living south of the highway to a junior high school north of the highway, or else expansion of South Junior High School.

The study recognizes that certain variations may alter calculations to some extent. These include:

(1) Reduction in land available for housing through rezoning for business or industry, particularly in the Wilson district, which could reduce student potential perhaps 1,700 in the area.

(2) Increase in the calculations if the community develops as one which holds families, which would mean that the vast majority of students who begin school in the district would remain in the district for their education, reducing normal falloffs.

ALSO: "ONE of the major imponderables which must be faced in any projection scheme is that related to the number of children who may attend non-public schools," the report states.

It continues by explaining that if the number of enrollments in parochial schools remains constant, there will be an impact on public schools because normal growth patterns will have to be adjusted to include a projection incorporating data on a portion of the school population now attending non-public schools.

The report was accepted by District 25 Superintendent Ralph E. Clabaugh and the school board at the last meeting, and its contents will now be studied as a possible basis for future action.

SINCE THE report recommends acquisition of the new sites as soon as possible, this item may be included in the referendum planned for October.

Clabaugh emphasized that acceptance of the report does not constitute endorsement, and the school board is not bound to follow the recommendations. It will serve as a guide, however.

The next general meeting of the organization will be Monday, April 2, at 8 p.m. in Room 108, Arlington High School. Village organizations are invited to send a representative if they are not already doing so, and interested individuals also are welcome. (AF its care and protection. It is a veritable botanical fairyland. A boardwalk of 3,350 feet in length gives the visitor the opportunity to get a view of the primeval majestic remnant of what once covered a great portion of southeastern United States.

One is almost overwhelmed by the profusion of living plants of which the cypress is the crowning glory. Ferns are present in almost incredible abundance. Alligators are on logs or tussocks of plants that project above the water. The circular handed us at its entrance read that panthers and cougars are there but we did not go looking for them. We were content to see otters catch fish in the lettuce lake. A raccoon did not wait for us to snap its picture, but scores of birds of every species were proudly displaying their colors awaiting the camera.

As we left we agreed with a fellow visitor who said, "We would like to return again and again."

The Naples police department reported to the city council last week that the visitors from the north always patronize the parking meters while the residents evidently think those meters do not apply to them.

The police were told to crack down on somebody—it will not be the honest visitors from the north.

Spending seven weeks in Naples meant seven editorial columns. Well folks, we are leaving that delightful spot and the Naples story comes to an end, with this issue.

We found the city a friendly place and some of the new friends we made evidently regretted to see us go. Our last night there we were the guests at a dinner labeled a "Paddock Goodbye Party."

The house located in the 700 block of E. Kensington between Lattof Motors and Morton Pontiac Sales was condemned Monday night by the Arlington Heights village board.

The village manager said inspection of the property revealed the windows are broken, gutters hanging loose, scrap metal and papers strewn about the rear yard, and that there are no electrical installations, no plumbing and no central heating.

L.A. Hanson, the village manager, said unsuccessful attempts had been made to have the house torn down by the owner, and that the only way of removing what he termed "this public nuisance," would be by demolition.

VILLAGE Atty. Jack M. Siegel advised the board that after passage of the condemnation ordinance, the owner has 30 days to remove the house, after which, the village can go to court and get an order of removal and collect costs of removal from the owner.

As a sidelight to the discussion, Trustee Eugene Schlickman said the 1960 census lists 26 dilapidated houses in the Village of Arlington Heights, while

Suburb News of The Week

PALATINE — An effort to have $30,000 transferred from the township Town Fund to the General Assistance (relief) Fund was defeated Saturday by a surprise turnout of residents who indicated a desire to see the money go to Palatine-Rolling Meadows School District 15. The special Town Meeting was marked by articulate explanations of township procedure. Details in Palatine Enterprise.

WHEELING — The village board adopted a resolution Monday requiring all meatings of the board or its subsidiary units to be posted whenever possible "in a prominent place" to be provided in the village hall. The notice is to be posted at least 24 hours before the meeting. Further details in Wheeling Herald.

BUFFALO GROVE — Annexation of 344 acres to the village's north extended the village's boundaries into Lake County from Cook County. The annexation was an unannounced action of the village board last week. See Wheeling Herald for further details.

PROSPECT HEIGHTS — As of Tuesday, there were still only three candidates for three seats on the District 23 School Board. Further details in Prospect Heights Herald.

ELK GROVE — Village trustees were chastised Monday night by Robert E. Fleming, chairman of the budgets and estimates committee. He charges they purchased a $3,100 road grader without proper authorization.

School District 59 will continue a program of deficit financing, expected to put the district $878,000 in the red by 1966. But Dr. Roger W. Bardwell, superintendent, says a "leveling off" of enrollment will follow, enabling the district to start back up the long road to a balanced budget. Further details in Elk Grove Herald.

HOFFMAN ESTATES — The village annexed Saturday 335 and a half acres. Along Algonquin Road near Roselle Road it annexed 183 acres, and the rest was annexed immediately east and west of Barrington Road and Higgins Road. The village since November has annexed over 1,800 acres, more than doubling its previous land area. Further details in Hoffman Herald.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS — Purchase of sites for a fourth junior high school and an elementary school north of Rand and Palatine roads, and an elementary school north of Palatine Road and south of Rand Road, was recommended in a comprehensive study by Jack R. Childress, assistant dean of Northwestern University's School of Education, for Arlington Heights elementary school District 25. The report also indicated possible need for another school in the southern part of the district, possibly near Northwest Community Hospital. Further details in Arlington Heights Herald.

ROLLING MEADOWS — City officials must decide now whether they will want additional thoroughfares in the heart of the city 10 to 20 years from now. Developer Kimball Hill told them Tuesday night he wants a prompt answer whether they wish land dedicated for street right of way. His plans for stores, a movie theater and apartments are dependent on the street layout. Further details in Rolling Meadows Herald.

MOUNT PROSPECT — A new citizens committee has been active during the past week in circulating petitions protesting the recent action of the village board in creating two new liquor licenses. The creation of the two additional ones makes 15 the number of licenses which can be issued under the ordinance. All licenses will probably be issued and in force within the year. Several were authorized for issuance to establishments now under construction. Further details in Mount Prospect Herald. (B8

Car Wash Owner Is Cleaned of $8,000

Police are investigating the report of the robbery of an estimated $8,000 from one of the owners of the Arlington Car Wash, Euclid and Northwest Highway.

Don Kuttler, of 712 S. Cedar St., Palatine, reported to Palatine police that when he arrived home about 7:30 p.m. last Saturday, two men confronted him in his driveway and forced him into his car.

He said they drove to Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway, took his briefcase with the money in it, and told him to get out and run.

MARIANNE Pecora, another of the owners, estimated the loss at about $8,000, but said she cannot be certain because the records were taken with the money.

She asked that all patrons of the car wash bring in their duplicate copies of charges for Marmh 14 through March 17, so the firm can reconstruct their records and determine their loss.

Name Chairman for Bell Ringer Drive

Mrs. James McElhose, of 507 N. Evergreen, has been appointed chairman of the Bell Ringer March for Mental Health in Arlington Heights, and will appoint the door-to-door workers for the appeal for funds the night of May 15.

Mrs. McElhose said there is a need for men and women volunteers, who will be asked to contribute two hours of their time the night of the drive.

Persons who want to help should contact Mental Health Society headquarters in Chicago, WA 2-0703.

THE ARLINGTON Heights dri is part of the nationwide fundraising effort of the National and Illinois Associations for Mental Health, and the Mental Health Society of Greater Chicago, incorporating Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

The goal of the campaign in the tri-county area is $200,000.

The mental health societies carry on programs of community planning and education in the field of mental health, and develop active volunteer leadership in programs geared to helping the mentally ill and mentally handicapped.

ONE OF the most recent programs undertaken is an effort to recruit and orient volunteers for mental hospitals.

Mrs. McElhose is a member of Opportunity Council and the American Legion Auxiliary. (A

Mark Motors Will Supply Squad Cars

The Village of Arlington Heights will get four new police cars and a new police station wagon at about $1,800 under the budget estimate, due to a surprisingly low bid by Mark Motors Arlington Heights.

For the five vehicles, Mark Motors submitted a sealed bid of $5,220.03, substantially below the second lowest bid of $6,619-.20 from George Poole Ford. The only other bidder was Lattof Motors, with a bid of $6,812.44.

THE VILLAGE board, upon recommendation of the village manager, accepted the low bid Monday night for the four-door Plymouths, which are equipped with V-8 engines, automatic transmissions, and heavy-duty equipment.

The bid was $1,779.97 under the budget estimate for the vehicles. "It's like getting one car free," said L. A. Hanson, village manager. The village is trading in its 1961 Fords, which have been in service for well over a year.

Wheeling Township

To Air Budget Next Tuesday

A hearing on the proposed $148,902.85 Wheeling Township budget for 1962-63 will be held next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the office of Albert C. Peters, township supervisor, 1818 E. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

All residents of the township may attend the meeting to discuss the appropriations. Actual approval of the budget will take place April 3 at the annual town meeting.

Expected to be questioned is an appropriation of $45,000 for an "addition to the town hall and equipment."

Critics of the building expansion say there would be plenty of room in the existing structure if space now devoted to court facilities were transformed into office quarters.

Also to be questioned is an appropriation of $2,000 for "official bonds." In the year 1960-61 the bonds cost $4,830.27. Residents are expected to ask the reason for the dramatic drop in bond costs.

Another topic to be discussed is the status of $100,000 which was directed a year ago to be turned over to township school districts. The money is still retained by the township.

Boy Injured In Church Parking Lot

A trip to church and Sunday School must have its spiritual rewards, but the physical reward for young Douglas Ott, 5, last Sunday was definitely negative.

The young boy was caught between a parked car and another car backing up in the parking lot of St. Simon's Episcopal Church Sunday morning.

RUSHED TO Northwest Community Hospital, just to the rear of the church, the boy was admitted for two days of examination and observation.

The child lives at 602 S. Highland, Arlington Heights. (A

Area Camp Fire Girls Mark 52nd Anniversary This Week

Camp Fire Girls throughout the world are celebrating their 52nd anniversary this month. Organized in 1910 in New England by Poet Chauncy Langdon and Dr. and Mrs. Luther Gullick of the YMCA, the group received its charter in 1912. One of the nation's first groups to be formed was the Arlington Heights Camp Fire Girls, led by a former North School teacher, Mabel Crawford.

Background for the ceremony of the organization is Indian lore with the call of Wo-He-Lo, which is based on the words, "work," "health" and "love." Camp Fire Girls are between 10 and 14 years of age and companion groups for younger and older sisters are called Blue Birds and Horizon Clubs.

FROM A beginning of 19 girls and one guardian in 1912, Arlington Heights Camp Fire has now grown to 900 girls. A few years later, in 1914, Mount Prospect organized its first group and now has a membership of 1050. Active since 1916 in the Mount Prospect Camp Fire, has been Miss Bertha Ehard.

The early 1950's found Palatine with its first group, and Camp Fire Girls in the village now total 400. Rolling Meadows and Prospect Heights groups were organized in 1959 and have a combined total of 300 members. Latest groups formed were those in Elk Grove Village, with a total of 50 girls since organizing in 1960.

Camp Fire Girls in all Paddock areas observed Camp Fire Sunday March 18 by attending, in uniform, the church of their choice. Mount Prospect Camp Fire Girls will further observe their anniversary by holding mother-daughter dinners. (B9

Palatine-Schaumburg

History of Russia Is Introduced to School

"You cannot begin to understand the Russians unless you know something about their history and the effect it has had on their thinking, culture, development and social norms."

This is the broad explanation given by Burton Showers, chairman of the social studies department of Palatine-Schaumburg High Schools, for the introduction of a semester course on Russian history.

THESE ARE the words of Warren Bartlett Walsh, University of Michigan, author of the college-level textbook used in the course.

"What people do today depends in part upon what they did yesterday, and what they will do tomorrow will partly depend upon today's actions and events."

The special Russian history course was preceded by a semester course in Latin American history, offered at the Palatine-Schaumburg schools for the first time. School officials indicate this is part of a definite program to broaden the history offerings at the school.

While the Russian history course will deal in its closing period with current problems and events in the Soviet Union, Showers emphasized that the new senior-level class was not a "battle of communism, socialism and capitalism."

CURRICULUM of the class will deal with communism, as it affects the present Soviet Union and its attitudes in world events but will not be a study of communist theology according to Showers.

The study should enable students to continue to constructively evaluate events in and about the Soviet Union, Showers said, making the unit in Russian history a "continuing study" beyond the end of the semester.

Enthusiasm in the class runs high, with students showing an eager response to the college-level text and study.

THE CLASS has just completed their studies to the time of Peter the Great (1682-1725), including the original formation of the Rus states, establishment of Christianity, Ivan The Terrible and his cruelties, centralization of government, expansion of empire, and the almost unbelieveable manner in which a vast percentage of Russian peasants literally turned into serfs (a modified form of slavery) almost without protest.

Another unique aspect of Russian history, relating directly to the system today, is the long record of communal life led by serfs and peasants—with their labor or obligation to the landowners supervised by "mirs" or village - peasant councils which allocated work, private land and benefits on a communal basis.

Most students were unaware of this aspect of Russian history, Showers pointed out.

THERE are nine major points which Showers says he is stressing in each phase of Russian history, tying the past to the present. These points reflect facets of Russian history which are unknown to most Americans. These nine points are:

1.—A continuing history of disinterest in government by the masses;

2.—The communal way of life lived for centuries by peasants and serfs

3.—The limited number of ruling class on top, with the large mass of population at the bottom and little or no "in between." Part of this is shown in the absence of entrepreneurs in Russian history with their aid in development of the economy.

4— CONTINUING history where the state has been the prime mover or force of change, ranging back from Stalin and Lenin to Peter The Great and Ivan The Terrible. There is no significant history of Russia where the people themselves have changed or promoted a change in the status quo.

5.—The state has been ruled like an armed camp for centuries. Partly responsible for this is the continuing history of invasion — Tartars, Poles, Swedes, Turks, the French under Napoleon, England, Germany and Hitler, and their present fear of America.

6.—Many similarities exist in aims of the Soviet and the old tsarist governments in the field of foreign policy. Of these aims, prime target for both old and new has been expansion, the acquiring and holding of seaports, and protection from foreign invasion.

MANY of the present satellite countries in the communist bloc were integral parts of the old Russian Empire—a fact often overlooked by the West, Showers says. These generally are the satellites where the U.S.S.R. has the least difficulty, he noted.

7.—The many similarities often overlooked between Russia and the West. Differences tend to be emphasized, according to Showers, while the similarities are not noted.

8.—The Russian people are a gifted and creative people with a history of culture. Showers claims it is foolish to belittle them or call them barbarians. Showers also notes the many ideas and skills which the Russians have been wise enough to "import" from the West, further developing them to serve their state.

9.— RUSSIAN patriotism is different from support of communism. There is a natural pride in national achievements by the people.

The textbook used in the Russian history course is "Russian and the Soviet Union."

Emphasis of the book is laid on twin themes of continuity and change. In the final chapters of the book, dealing with present-day Russian events, the test does not forecast the results of the changes today but closes with a quotation from Abraham Lincoln in his annual message to congress in 1864—"The result not yet being known, conjecture in regard to it is not here indulged." County to Stock Public Shelters

Public fallout shelters stocked with food, water, first aid supplies and radiological instruments will soon be set up throughout suburban Cook County, it is announced by County Board President John J. Duffy.

A survey by the U. S. Corps of Engineers to find suitable space in existing buildings is virtually completed and Duffy, acting on instructions from Washington, has prepared a storage and distribution center for the various supplies to be allotted.

"The County Civil Defense organization will provide for residents of the unincorporated area and local CD directors will carry out the same program in the incorporated suburbs," Duffy said.

"We have estimated that 250,000 persons live in unincorporated parts of the county. It would, of course, be impractical and uneconomical to prepare for all of them, and the federal office of civil defense has instructed that we requisition supplies for 10 per cent. No doubt it is anticipated that most people would find shelter in their homes or places of work."

FOOD FOR those in the public shelters is to be in the form of cereal wafers which are described as resembling graham crackers and tasting much like animal crackers. The provision for each person for an anticipated 14-day stay in the shelter is 10,000 calories.

Federal government contracts for 12 million pounds of shelter wafers were awarded this month to four companies. Two are in the Chicago area, the United Biscuit Company of America in Melrose Park, which will supply 4.5 million pounds for $1,137,500 and the Schulte and Birch Biscuit Company of Chicago, 2.4 million pounds, $627,760.

A water ration for each person is figured at three and one-half gallons. It will be stored in fiber board containers of 17½ gallons capacity. The containers, which are 18 inches in diameter and 24 inches in height and are lined with a plastic bag, will also be usable for sanitary purposes.

Each shelter will have first aid supplies consisting of kits and packages developed especially for the purpose. First shipments from the federal agency will also include instruments for measuring radiation out of doors so it can be ascertained when it is safe to leave the shelter.

VOLUNTEERS have already received training from the county civil defense organization in the use of these instruments and it is intended to have at least one radiological specialist in each shelter, Duffy said.

The county has designated two cottage type brick buildings at Oak Forest for warehousing the shelter supplies. These buildings are among five used for tuberculosis patients at the time when the Oak Forest Institutions included a TB sanitarium. Edmund G. Lawlor, Oak Forest superintendent, pointed out that they are no longer needed for patients and are in sound repair, and Duffy approved their use for civil defense.

First shipments of supplies are expected in March. All of the material will be stored until the army engineers have reported on the shelter sites they have found. (B8

Europe Facing Problems of Land and Housing Shortage

'Urbanization' Is Causing Dilemma

Europe is facing a more serious urbanization problem than the United States as its people flood into the cities to spend and enjoy their new-found prosperity.

This is one of the impressions reported by Chicago area builder Albert E. Riley, president of the Hasbrook Corporation, after a two-week tour of Europ in a group of 40 other leading builders from across the nation.

Riley was the only Chicago area builder to make the trip which was sponsored by House & Home Magazine. The builders on the tour were joined by top officials from FHA, banks, mortgage firms, manufacturing companies, and savings and loan associations.

Purpose was to study European housing problems and effects of the Common Market.

Among Riley's other impressions:

There is a great land and housing shortage in Europe.

EIGHTY PER CENT of the housing developments are apartments, not single residences.

On the continent there is extensive pre-fab construction for apartment houses.

Virtually all building is done by or under government direction.

There is extensive use of plastics from pipes to fixtures.

Shopping areas are being built in with the apartment buildings.

There is a marked tendency for thousands of small businesses, not large department stores or supermarkets.

Low rent housing is the theme in all countries.

There is no air conditioning. Housewives' continued lack of interest in storing food means small, three to six cubic foot regrigerators.

LABOR SHORTAGE in the construction trades is growing.

Building design everywhere is attractive, esthetic. Awareness of beauty, recreation areas and eye appeal is evident.

They're almost ignoring the growing parking problems. Not providing parking space for shopping or near residences.

Small cars are everywhere. No large cars are evident.

The inter-country travel is so easy, with lack of customs and other restrictions, that many Common Market objectives are obviously working.

People are so busy building and working that thought of talk of war is extremely remote.

Riley said he saw no signs of military activity anywhere in 16 days of travel, except in Berlin. In Paris, there was a new housing development adjacent to NATO headquarters, for its personnel.

THE FIRST five of 16 days overseas were spent in England.

Riley said the cost of land near London has gone up to $33,000 an acre. While our land prices have doubled since the war, theirs have tripled or more because of housing shortage and demand for land and buildings.

"Their lot costs run as high as $10,000," he said.

"Much of the land away from the center of the city is owned by old, and very wealthy families. They don't care to turn it loose at any price."

He said outside the city itself there is a "green belt." This is reserved for farm land. Beyond this are built "new cities." Each has its factories, merchandise areas and is self sufficient.

Throughout England and on the continent, there is rigid zoning and planning.

"ENGLAND HAS one car for each 11 families," he said, "not one or two cars a family as we have here. But while we were in London, a bus strike caused such a traffic jam, the London Daily Mail headline read: 'The Strangled City'."

"An exchange of television appearances between President Kennedy and Premier Khurschchev, would be unfair to us," Riley said. "I saw almost no TV in Europe — not even in the best hotels in either lobby or rooms. There must be a much smaller supply behind the Iron Curtain. Therefore Americans would see Khurschchev but elsewhere, very few would see Kennedy."

Near London, Riley said, there is a government housing research development center that claims to be doing as much work as all the government and private housing research together in the U. S.

Copenhagen, Denmark, he said, was the most impressive city on the tour. As in other places in Europe, mostly apartment houses are being built, and these are government sponsored or financed.

BUT THE extent of pre-fabrication in these units in Copenhagen, is far beyond other things they saw. Entire rooms, especially bathrooms, are prefabricated, then lifted into place in the apartment buildings.

Designs of building, in spite of the uniform sponsorship, is distinct and varied, he said.

The group traveled extensively in Rotterdam, Holland, a city almost completely leveled by bombs during the war.

The big thing here is the Bouwcentrum. It is a showcase for manufacturers, designers, architects and builders. In a large building, hundreds of companies from all over Europe show their wares. There is a great variety of plastic components available in the building field. Far more extensive than in this country, he said.

In Rotterdam and Amsterdam, as in other European cities, shopping areas are incorporated into the apartment buildings, he said. But there is a lack of planning for car parking.

"THE MOST exciting part of the trip was in Berlin. Here we saw the 'Hansa district,'" Riley said. "When complete, the area will have about 30 apartment buildings. The designs are a result of architectural plans offered from all over the free world. Winning designs were incorporated into the buildings, half of them already up."

Rentals in the buildings are typical: $30-$35 a month up to $70 a month, all government subsidized. These are for 1-2 bedroom apartments. The bedrooms are small, 8 by 9 feet to 9 by 11 feet.

"Driving down the Rhine Valley you see people working on construction everywhere," he said. "They are building sewers, roads, houses, bridges, almost everything," he said.

He said Germany has created a labor shortage in the building trades and the condition is growing in other countries. About the highest paid workers are electricians — $60 - $65 a week in England up to $80 in West Germany.

IN PARIS, no one seemed concerned with the Algerian upheaval, he said. "The papers made it sound like there was blood running in the streets, but we saw no evidence of violence. We went out by ourselves at night and saw no signs of unrest."

Riley said that since DeGaulle took over, the building program has really gotten under way. There is a confidence in him and a permanence in his government, that has stimulated the housing business — practically at a standstill before.

"EVERYWHERE, in buildings, there are attractive and esthetic designs," he said. "But urban problems are multiplying. In France for instance, one-third of the increased population since the war, was born in or has moved to Paris."

Riley noted that in 16 days of travel there was no sign of military activity other than at the wall in Berlin.

"People everywhere are working, building, and planning to get into a home or apartment of their own," he said. "It's a good sign." (B8

Township Building Paced by Palatine

Palatine Township paced building in the unincorporated areas of Cook County for January with 16 building permits issued for work valued at $323,400.

Stickney Township tied Palatine in the number of permits issued, but fell below it in estimated valuation at $209,400.

Wheeling Township topped the 17 townships of the county in estimated worth of building at $391,600. Included in the permits, according to the Cook County Department of Buildings which has jurisdiction in unincorporated areas, were two apartments buildings to be constructed at Boxwood Drive near Dogwood Drive.

One, of the six five-room units, was estimated at $88,000 and the other, eight five-room units at $116,800.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP projects also include an addition and remodeling of the Prospect Heights Baptist Church at Camp McDonald and Wheeling roads at a cost figured at $113,800.

Other townships in the northwest suburbs include Elk Grove, which was issued 10 permits at a valuation calculated at $191,200, and Schaumburg which was granted one permit valued at $34,600. (B8

HOW TO MAKE A WIFE HAPPY

Say good morning to her before you eat breakfast. Don't run out of the door with your coffee cup in one hand, a la Dagwood. Don't push the children out of the way as you leave. Kiss every one goodbye, exuding charm and good cheer, as you leisurely take off for the office.

Come home for lunch. Help your wife with the dishes. And by all means when you come home in the evening be rested, fresh and cheerful, and not in a villainous frame of mind from being mashed by fellow commuters and suffering from a car that was either too hot or too cold.

Fairy tales? No. Just move your office to the new Williams-Gray Building at 301 East Prospect Avenue in Mount Prospect. Be close to home, golf, fishing, children, wives and everything else worthwhile in life.

And spend your days in air-conditioned comfort, with a private parking place for your car just outside the door.

A phone call to John Backman at FRanklin 2-7208 in his Chicago office (he's waiting to move in!) will bring you all details. It could be the start of a new life. .—adv.

Ideas of March Dimmed by St. Patrick Day Shindigs

The Ides of March, St. Patrick's Day and the first day of spring have come and gone, and apparently nobody celebrated the Ides of March. There are, however, reports of a few Irish-flavored parties and lots of robins to herald the other two March specials. Additional news concerns a variety-is-the-spice-of-life assortment of local happenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bawden, 505 N. Wilshire, returned last Wednesday from a month in the Hawaiian Islands where they amassed enough memories of scenic beauty and ideal weather to carry them through the dirty snow and mud season here. They were accompanied on this, their first visit to the islands, by Milwaukee friends who'd been there before.

The perfect combination of the Bawdens' first-time enthusiasm and their friends' second-time-around experience made sight-seeing and touring delightful for both couples.

They began the vacation with a week on Oahu Island, then enjoyed short stays on Kauai, Hawaii and Maui. There were lazy days and busy ones, deep-sea fishing and a motor trip over a dormant-they-hoped volcano.

Their only less than totally relaxed day was Feb. 20 when John Glenn made his orbital flight. On that day the Bawdens and their companions were on Kauai Island, site of one of the tracking stations, and within the limits of security restrictions were especially "close" to the astronaut.

LINDA HAWKINS was 14 years old Sunday, received family congratulations then and is looking forward to still another phase in the celebration. Next month she and a lifelong friend, Betsy Chambers of Northbrook, will see—and hear, "Sound of Music," to climax this year's birthday occasion.

Saturday Linda's brother, Jerry, an da college friend, Rick Detienne of Oostburg, Wis., will arrive from Lawrence College to begin their spring vacation. Rick will be a weekend guest in the Hawkins home, 721 S. Chestnut, then return to Wisconsin to vacation next week at home.

One lone but not lonely Irishman was among several neighborhood couples celebrating St. Patrick's Day at a party Saturday night in the Joseph Vonckx home, 1029 S. Dunton. Thomas Boyle, native-born son of the auld sod, was deeply moved by the Kelly-green-dyed ears and eyebrows of one neighbor and the miny foine auld Irish tunes played.

Everyone acted like happy Hibernians for the occasion and the Mother Machree Twist was but one of the evening's highlights. Co-hosts to the neighborhood group were Mr. and Mrs. John Kitch.

AN OPENING night party after the Village Theatre performance Friday doubled as a birthday celebration for the host, Norman Bauske, 102 E. Orchard, and re-doubled as a St. Patrick's Day party when Friday evolved into Saturday. Twenty members of the "We Must Kill Toni" cast and crew showered Bauske with gag gifts and by the time they relaxed briefly from the tension of opening night, it was Saturday. Everyone then felt duty-bound to tarry awhile longer to honor St. Patrick with a wee celebration just for him.

Late Sunday night after "We Must Kill Toni" finished its 3-night run and the clean-up job was done, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawley hosted the weary crew at a "whew" session in their home, 45 S. Ridge. Total relaxation, refreshments and no unnecessary movement made the post-play party a welcome climax to the hectic weekend.

Pat Kelhi was 7 years old St. Patrick's Day and shure! his cake was decorated with shamrocks. In fact there were lots of shamrocks around the house at 1428 N. Mitchell Saturday afternoon when Pat, with the proper Irish skimmer on his head, welcomed six young friends to his party.

GEORGANNE Buechner celebrated her sixth birthday last Friday with an after-school party in her home, 920 N. Mitchell. Ten young friends who were her guests still can't understand how two hours in school last so long and two hours of cake, ice cream and games go so fast.

A March 17 birthday in a houseful of Hanigans had better be St. Patrick-influenced and Nancy Hanigan's was, for a fact. She was 11 Saturday and her eight party guests were Irish, at least by association, for the duration of the fun at 903 N. Dunton.

Miss Barbara Hanigan weekended in Dallas, travelling by jet of course, and being interviewed for a position with, naturally, a jet airline.

Miss Pat Loechl, student nurse at St. Mary's in Chicago, spent the weekend at home and a triple header family birthday celebration was held ahead of time so that she could share the fun. This week at 1213 N. Dunton, Pat's sister, Mary, again celebrated being 13 yesterday, sister Chris turns 11 today amid repeat congratulations and their Mom will be another year younger Sunday.

THE ANNUAL spring exodus from college campuses is gathering momentum and many local young people will arrive tomorrow and Saturday for a vacation week at home. The Howard Hansens, 730 S. Mitchell, expect Bob Saturday from Oscaloosa, Iowa where he attends William Penn College.

Jan Gow, Lindenwood College freshman, arrives tomorrow fom St. Charles, Mo. for a week with the rest of the family at 641 S. Kaspar.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rocca, 117 S. Fernandez, recently weekended in South Bend, where they visited their son, Peter, first year student in Notre Dame University's Holy Cross Seminary.

Delores Roper's Saturday birthday March 10 was just right for a party so she had one. Seven young friends of an invited dozen were hale, hearty and available for an afternoon session of fun and refreshments in the Roper home, 404 N. Chestnut. Delores was 10.

MR. AND MRS. Karl Shuart and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Smith were hosts at a buffet supper Sunday in the Smith home, 221 S. Wilshire, for members of the Community Concert Association. Afterward, guests left for Arlington High School to hear a program given by the St. Louis symphony orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lussow, 420 S. Gibbons, are spending two weeks vacationing at Hot Springs, Ark.

While on a business trip in Colorado, Fred Steingraber, 314 Drury, flew to the west coast to spend a weekend at Carmel-by-the-Sea with his son, Lt. F. Steingraber. Lt. Steingraber is stationed with the Oakland Army Base Adjutant Division.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ryan, 116 S. Wilshire, recently attended the annual spring dinner dance at the University Club of Evanston.

Stephen Jurco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jurco, 217 S. Windsor, marked his eighth birthday Saturday by being host to a young friend, Eddie Bublitz of Arlington Heights, for the weekend and with whom he attended a performance of Pinocchio. Afterwards they had a birthday dinner at the Barclay Club.

MR. AND MRS. George Jackson, 111 S. Wilshire, have as their houseguests, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Milton Kolar of Dallas, and her daughter, Christine.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Mitchell, 330 S. Gibbons, participated in the first play-off in the semi-final round of the North American Rubber Bridge Tournament Wednesday in Oak Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lockwood, 312 S. Derbyshire, spent the past two weeks vacationing at the Sun and Sand resort in Biloxi.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cherry, 353 S. Belmont, are home from a 12-day vacation in Florida. They flew to Tampa first, where they met Mr. Cherry's brother and sister-in-law, the Robert Cherrys of Moorehead, Minn., with whom they spent five days, and then went on to Miami for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heintz, 888 S. Bristol, recently vacationed for two weeks in Florida. Included in their vacation plans were deep sea fishing off the keys, a trip to Nassau aboard the S. S. Bahama Star and visits with friends. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Uger Greenleaf of Marquette, Mich., who are spending the winter in Miami Beach, and spent several days as the houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Lawin, a member of the North West Towns Sportsman Club, who are also spending the winter in Fort Meyers Beach.

Due to the lateness of Easter, the so-called Easter vacation for those young people attending colleges on the quarter system must be dubbed spring vacation this year. Taking advantage of this week's break between studies at Northwestern University is Don Carstens, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lenheim of 318 N. Beverley Lane. Don and a fraternity brother have driven to New Orleans where spring has already put in an appearance.

Southern Illinois University students also at home this week are Bob Schulze, Jack Mutti and Bob Johnson. Jack and Bob Johnson returned to their old Alma Mater, Arlington High, Monday night to see the Harlem Globe Trotters' basketball game.

Congratulations are extended to Mrs. George Brinke, 307 N. Lincoln Lane, who received an honor pin for 100 hours of volunteer service to the Northwest Community Hospital. The pin was presented to Lor, and to other members of the auxiliary, at a special tea in the hospital's cafeteria.

MRS. JOHN Haslam of 406 N. Beverley Lane has recently returned home from a visit with her sister, Mrs. E. V. Leach Jr. in Portsmouth, Ohio. The Haslam's daughter, Pam, a junior at Grinnell College, will arrive home Saturday for her spring vacation. Pam, who will return to her classes April 4, has been an avid skier this winter, taking instructions with some of her classmates at Hanover, Ill.

Many cases of illness in the group prevented the playreading study group from meeting at Mrs. Sam Cullison's home a week ago Monday evening, but with everyone feeling better again, Mrs. Cullison was hostess to the ladies this past Monday evening. Plays by Henrik Ibsen have been their project this year and the showing of Hedda Gabbler at Goodman Theatre afforded the members the opportunity of seeing one of Ibsen's works on the stage.

Illness of Sam Jr. also postponed the Cullisons' planned trip to Chicago last Sunday to see the Ice Capades, but with Sam on the improved list they hope to carry out their plans this coming Sunday.

Recent buffet supper guests of the Cullisons in their home at 611 N. Hickory were Mr. and Mrs. Sam W. Witwer of Kenilworth and Mr. and Mrs. James Kettle of Winnetka, Mrs. Cullison's sisters and brothers-in-law, and local residents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker.

A week ago Friday Mrs. Leonard Radosti of 418 N. Beverley Lane entered Northwest Community Hospital for major surgery, the second such operation in the past several months. She spent six days in the hospital, but is now convalescing very nicely at home. Her daughter, Lenore, a student at Bradley, came home over last weekend to visit her mother. The Radostis' high school daughter, Lynn, has also been on the sick list, and is concentrating now on making up her 13 days of missed classes. (A

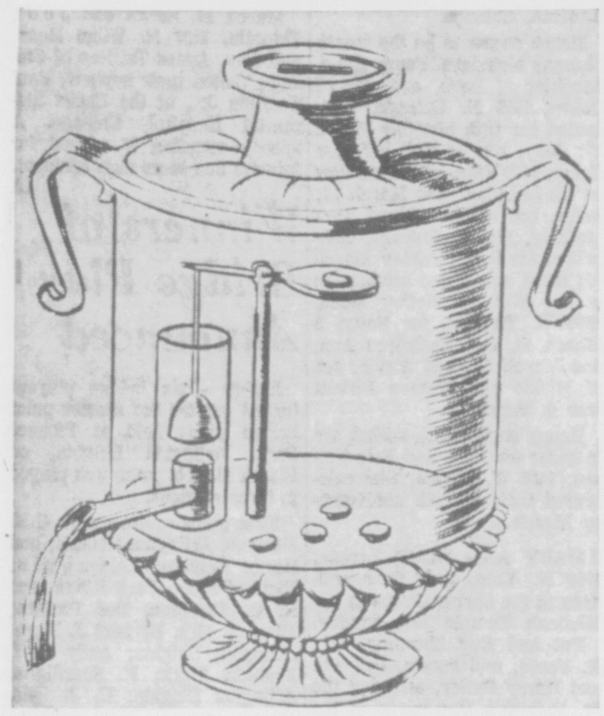
Vending Machine History Goes 'Way Back'



SACRIFICIAL WATER dispenser, invented in Greece about 215 B.C., and used to vend "holy" water in Egyptian temples, it is believed to be the first coin-operated vending machine. Completely automatic, the device was activiated by inserting "a coin of five drachmas" (about 75 cents) into the slot at the top. The coin fell on a lever, its weight forcing open a valve, which, in turn, released a given amount of water. When the lever descended to a certain point, the coin fell off, shutting off the valve. Illustration is from "A Concise History of Vending in the U.S.A.," by G. R. Schreiber. (B8 DIAPER DILEMMA develops when a northwest area housewife begins a weekly ritual familiar to many, the trip to the laundromat, one stronghold of the automatic vending machine industry. Here, surrounded by coin operated washers, dryers, detergent, bleach, soft drink, candy and cigarette machines, all that is needed is a stalwart supply of nickles, dimes and quarters. Often, free television is installed to make the visit more palatable. (B8

Here's the Story On Coin Operation

by BILL HALLS

Vending machines are as common to today's children as the penny jawbreaker or five-cent movie were to their parents.

Yet, like so many recent commercial exploitations, the concept or coin-operated machines dates back to ancient history.

The Greeks first thought of the idea that was to create such an impact on the American economy shortly after World War II, says G. R. Schreiber in his book, "A Concise History of Vending in the U.S.A."

In 215 B.C., Hero, a Greek mathematician, or his teacher, Tesibius, invented a coin-actuated device later used for vending sacrificial water in Egyptian temples.

"The device," says Schreiber, "was completely automatic and was set in operation by the insertion of 'a coin of five drachmas,' (about 75 cents)."

HERO'S WORKS were later translated, his ideas gained some popularity in England about 1615 and was used in taverns to dispense snuff and tobacco.

In subsequent years, newspapers and postage stamps were sold by machine in England, wine and perfume in France, and the automat became popular in Germany.

Vending came to the United States in 1888, says Schreiber. Thomas Adams, founder of Adams Gum Co. (later the American Chicle Co.), introduced automatic gum venders on New York City's elevated platforms to sell his Tutti-Frutti gum.

Since that time, the business has progressed rather sporadically. Some penny arcades are still in use. Most people remember the famous penny weighing machines, complete with fortune telling cards.

A VENDING machine in Corinne, Utah, dispensed legal divorce forms. All that was necessary was to fill in the names of the aggrieved parties, take the forms to a local law firm, and have them witnessed.

Soft drinks, cigarettes and candy soon became popular items in the business.

The 1929 version of the cigarette machine contained a record which, activated with each purchase, said "thank you" to each customer.

As time went on, problems developed. The famed "one-armed bandit" or slot machine became a popular gambling device. The vending industry became alarmed about unfavorable publicity and spent a great deal of time and money to eliminate the public belief that all coin-operated machines were "a gamble."

"BUT FOR many years the feeling persisted that vending machines were somehow slot machines and the men who built and operated them were suspect," noted Schreiber.

Of course, the customer who having paid his money got no response from the machine had to be satisfied. But as the machines were perfected, this problem became less prevalent.

Health laws, involving machines dispensing foods, were necessary. The common drinking cup was eliminated with the invention of the new famous sanitary Dixie cup, most famous of popular brands.

As far back as the turn of the century, customers began the "beat the machine campaign" which continues to plague the industry.

"A nickel with a hole in it for a string was occasionally employed," noted R. L. Clegg, a reporter for American Machinist magazine, ". . . to work the machine without recompense."

SLUGS BECAME a common ruse, and hairpins were often used to "fish for pennies."

A slug rejector was perfected in the 1930's and federal legislation enacted in 1944 provided stiff penalties for those caught in the act.

Today, laundromats are commonplace; cigarettes, although sold at a higher price, still make a profit in convenient machine sales, and coin-operated dry cleaning machines are coming into common use.

In 1946, notes Schreiber, $600 million volume was recorded by the industry. This figure had grown to $2,586,000,000 by 1960, as the total number of machines in use doubled.

"The industry profit is about four per cent before federal income taxes," notes William Staehly, owner of Barrington Vending Co., Barrington.

"WE ARE STILL pioneering and there are many production problems," he said. "Merchandising by coin machines is a comparatively new business."

Burglary and vandalism is still a major problem in the industry, but observers in the northwest area feel it is not of major consequence here.

"I would say the burglarizing of the machines varies with the neighborhood," said Staehly. "As far as vandalism is concerned, I've found only a trace here.

"Of course you get the disgruntled customer who tries to beat the machine into submission when it fails to operate."

Matthew L. Cockrell of Automatic Industrial Catering, 112 S. Dryden, Arlington Heights, also feels vandalism is at a minimum in the northwest

"KIDS ARE kids," he points out. "Regardless of social class they are going to want to find out what makes a machine tick.

"I had to pull out of the Arlington Heights park district because I couldn't provide proper service."

Cockrell said children often clogged the machines with hairpins, paper and once "a live worm."

Burglary was another factor. Cockrell said he lost $1,400 in one crack in the park district, but only about $300 in nearly nine years from other machine operations in the northwest area.

Most operators, he pointed out, try to empty coin boxes as often as possible to avoid large accumulations of change. However, he said, damage to machines far outweighs losses in actual cash during burglary attempts.

"IT'S NOT A get rich quick business," he said. "I've known at least seven men in this area who have gone bankrupt trying to make a go of it."

Mrs. Myrt Johnson, manager of Wash-n-Shop laundromat, 36 N. Dryden, Arlington Heights, said the problems of slugs and vandalism is comparitively minor.

"I've been here two years," said Mrs. Johnson. "And I've had machines drained three times.

"We get machines overloaded and they break down. Some people put in slugs, foreign coins, and things like that."

Mrs. Johnson said business picks up during bad weather when septic tanks get clogged up and housewives use laundromats more frequently.

"BUT THEN there is more competition now," she said. "You're supposed to make your rent in a week. Last year, we only did it three times. This business is more of a convenience than a profit maker."

Police Chief L. W. Calderwood of Arlington Heights said most vandalism and burglaries connected with vending machines is caused by juveniles.

The 24-hour landromats are a problem, he said. They are a natural gathering spot for teenagers because they are left unattended late at night, he said.

"The problem isn't very bad here," said Calderwood. "I would say narcotics addicts cause a lot of the trouble in larger metropolitan areas.

"THEY CRAVE sweets as a substitute, and, of course, take the money to use for more narcotics."

A recent laundromat burglary ring in Chicago used half-dollar sized slugs to empty change machines. The machines give nickles, dimes and quarters for the larger coin, or, in this case, the slug.

Public schools use the machines to dispense milk, fruit, paper, pens, cookies and soup. Three local business managers feel there is a place for the machines but admit they create problems.

"I haven't had much experience with vending machines," said Arlyn E. Waite, business manager of district 59 in Elk Grove. "The school board here has removed most of them until they can establish controls.

"THEY CREATE A maintenance problem with candy wrappers and paper cups. But we do use cookie and soup machines in the cafeterias to supplement bag lunches."

Ralph E. Walberg, business manager in Prospect Heights elementary schools, said he removed the food dispensing machines from the cafeteria two years ago because the margin of profit didn't support the lunch program.

"The smaller children aren't aware of what coins to use in which slots," he said. "The machines, unless serviced every day, continually run out, or get jammed up."

Combs, facial tissues and soft drink machines are among those used in high school district 214, says John W. Schaff, business manager.

BUT USE OF the machines continues on a large scale, says Schreiber. Automatic restaurants and drive-ins are coming, as well as automatic grocery and department stores.

The business has grown, he points out, primarily because it provides a service and convenience not offered elsewhere. (B8

FROM SHERWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Miller, 1102 Clarendon, are welcoming their daughter and her family this week. Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Oakley and Julia Ann are visiting from Richmond, Va.

"Spring is on the way," reports Mrs. Jack Zeisler. "At least it's as far north as Winston-Salem." The Zeislers have just returned from North Carolina to 1144 N. Harvard, leaving behind golf and daffodils.

Best wishes that he'll soon be feeling better go to William Sauer, convalescing at 1215 Watling from recent surgery in Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital.

Jim Jr. is home for Easter vacation at the James Woods', 1106 W. Clarendon. He's a junior at VTI in Carbondale.

SHERWOOD welcomes Mr. and Mrs. Keith Melton and children, Steve, Scott and Nancy, who moved to 1212 W. Clarendon from Birmingham, Mich., in January. Nancy celebrated her seventh birthday recently with straw hats, balloons and fans for favors and a party for Terry Trummer, Karen Cokash, Christine Shuman, Irma Jones, Lynn Sandberg and Margaret Madison.

At the Nat T. Burfeinds, 1130 N. Harvard, they welcomed Bill home for the weekend from the University of Iowa. He brought with him a fraternity brother, Steve Towle of Davenport. Bill and Steve have just been initiated into Beta Theta Pi.

Kaspar, and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mussachio.

Mrs. James W. Harris stepped off the plane at O'Hare Sunday with her three daughters — two of whom had chicken pox. Friends are welcoming her back to 1010 N. Race by telephone. She reports that she hardly knows her home, as her husband redecorated it during the five-week trip to California. Elizabeth, Margaret, Ann and their mother visited Mrs. Harris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Curtis in Pomona.

FRIENDS HERE will remember that the Curtises lived in Ridge Park for several months last year, and that Mr. Curtis substituted in the Arlington High School. Mr. Slichenmyer, head of Arlington High School, once taught under Mr. Curtis when the latter was a principal, and they were happy to renew their friendship. The Harrises enjoyed their trip, which included visits to Disneyland, Marineland and Knott's Berry Farm.

"What is it?" asked Norma Barnes' daughter about the prize-winning sculpture at the art show? Mrs. Eugene Barnes, Suzanne, and Kathy attended the Art Show at McCormick Place, Chicago, on Sunday. The girls' biggest thrill came when they were allowed to choose their colors and splash paint, along with lots of other children, on a huge canvas.

Congratulations go to Bobby and John Griffith, who celebrated their fifth and seventh birthdays recently. They live at 625 N. Kaspar with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith.

Another birthday girl at 625 N. Kaspar is Evelyn Gallagher, whose March 15 birthday coincided with Bobby Griffith's. Evelyn was 9. Her parents, the James Gallagher's, entertained Libby, Bobby and John Griffith, Randy Wille, and Evelyn's brother and sister James and Kathleen at a small party.

Carmena in Houston. Bud joined them in New Orleans for carnival time and a visit to her sister, Mrs. J. A. Bisso. The Wallaces then went on to Lantana, Fla., to visit Bud's parents, returning here Monday morning.

Congratulations for their 18th wedding anniversary go to Mr. and Mrs. John T. Oertel, 708 N. Salem. To celebrate, daughter Joan took her parents and brothers, Johnny and Jimmy, to Sunday dinner in Elgin.

Her mother, Mrs. Lorraine Corda, helped her welcome guests Kathleen and Eileen McNamara, Patricia Shield, Marcia Bensinger, Dawn Dolice and her brother and sister, Michael and Mindy, to 923 N. Kaspar.

A trip to Chicago Sunday to celebrate their grandfather's birthday highlighted the weekend for the four Zoellick children. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baron E. Zoellick, 912 N. Kaspar, joined them in honoring Edward Zoellick there at a family dinner.

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD Linda Wiegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiegel, recently welcomed aunts, uncles, and cousins to a family birthday party. Linda had to postpone her party for school friends because her mother recently returned from Northwest Community Hospital and is recovering from pneumonia.

Twenty-eight relatives came to dinner at the Eugene G. Myslo home to honor birthday girls Barbara and Patty. Barbara was 4 in February and Patty was 6 on Monday. Patty and her two older sisters, Sue and Mary, were thrilled to attend the Ice Capades this weekend. She took lollipops to kindergarten Monday. Measles postponed Patty's party for friends, but Sunday she was honored again at her grandmother's, Mrs. Joseph Rurka's in Chicago. VIRGINIA TERRACE

The first rustle of Spring in the Terrace seems to emanate from party dresses and travel tickets . . .

Returning from San Francisco this week were Bob and Mary Chernesky, 1228 N. Chicago. When Bob flew down for his two-week stint with the Naval Reserve at Skaggs Island, Mary decided this would be an ideal time to accompany him with daughter Kathy and visit her brother and family, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Van Dyck in nearby San Francisco. In addition to visiting places of interest during the day, Bob and Mary were able to tour some of that city's famous restaurants and night spots.

Following a St. Patrick's Day theme for her natal day celebration was Patricia Coleman, 1411 Clarendon, who was 6 March 17. Erin go bragh guests included Christopher Burkhardt, Michael Herbert, Suzanne Burkhardt, Margaret and Martha Trowe, Lisa Yates, her sisters, Colleen, Maureen and Kathleen, and brother, Michael. Illness prevented Melaine Clarkson from attending.

Later that evening, at a family party hosted by her parents, Jane and James, Patricia was again honored. Guests included her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Coleman, and aunt. Miss Kathleen Coleman, of Mount Prospect.

STILL ANOTHER party with the flavor of the "auld sod" was hosted Saturday night by Polly and George Herbert, 1227 N. Chicago. Enjoying cocktails and an authentic corned beef and cabbage dinner were the Bill Gunnisons, Dean Arnolds, Ray Funks, Bob Gumzes and the Ray Ratcheks of Hasbrook. Following dinner the Herberts and their guests went on to the Vernon Hills Country Club for the "Shamrock Swing." After the dance the party adjourned to the Gunnisons' home for a late snack.

Last weekend's first sign of spring welcomed back the Ross family to 1252 N. Chicago from their week-long combination business and pleasure trip in the East. While Bill attended the Toy Fair, Pat and the children visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McNeill at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., and managed to tour many points of historical interest, such as Washington's Revolutionary War Headquarters site in Brooklyn, scene of the farewell to his troops; Trinity Church and churchyard, where many famous early Americans are buried; the central branch of the New York City Public Library, where more than 4,000,000 books repose. On the lighter side, Pat, Bill and the children viewed the taping of this week's Garry Moore TV Show.

EN ROUTE home the Rosses stopped in Murrysville, Pa., to visit Billy's godmother and family, the Paul Dalys.

Michael, son of Larry and Ann Brown, 1408 N. Yale, recently celebrated his fourth with a double celebration. On March 4 he was feted at a family party held in the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Jr. in Highland Park. Guests included his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Ferguson, and his uncle, Warren Brown, also of Highland Park.

The second part of his celebration took place on March 7 with a luncheon party at home. Playmates attending were "K.C.," Mark and Mickey Moser, Julie and Cindy Lollar and Jerry Milligan, accompanied by their mothers.

Under the impression she was going out for an ice cream treat, Ann Kennedy blithely strolled into Phyllis Fluhrer's living room, at 1433 N. Race, last Wednesday night and found herself the guest of honor at a baby shower. Guests included Betty Cech, Betty Sorensen, Alice Brown, Phyllis Busch, Helen Flesch, Joan Donath and Pierette Leckie.

LAST MONDAY afternoon, Patricia, daughter of Michael and Adele Yore, 1260 N. Illinois, was welcomed into Teensville with a luncheon party. Guests included Patty Couvoisier, Eileen Minedahl, Cathy McGough and her sister, Sheila Yore.

Another Terrace youngster to enter the teen years was Bob, son of Charles and Polly Millhouser, 1702 W. Oakton, who celebrated his birthday March 19 at a family party.

A dual birthday celebration was held in the Wiederhold home, 1322 N. Chicago, last Sunday evening. Guests of honor, who shared third birthday honors, were Dwight Wiederhold and his cousin, Bruce Hoffman. Guests included Mrs. R. Hoffman and the Ronnie Hoffman family of Maywood.

Tuesday afternoon a birthday party was held in honor of Scott, son of Ralph and Shirley Landes, 1251 N. Chicago, who was 4. Guests included Jill and Davie Rix, Pam Mercer and Kenny Koenig.

LA RUE AND ANDY Reed, 1328 N. Yale, and their sons, Tommy and Danny, recently returned from a two-week combination business and pleasure trip through the South. Their first stop was in Huntsville, Ala.. to visit La Rue's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Simpson, and were delighted to see Mr. Simpson, who was recovering from a recent operation, in good health. The Reeds then proceeded to the Holiday Inn in Tampa, where they spent the rest of their stay following the usual Florida pursuits of swimming, sun bathing, visiting the Jai Lai games, races at Sunshine Park and viewing major league exhibition ball games.

Scott, son of Cathy and Bill Gunnison, 1407 Clarendon, celebrated his ninth birthday last Saturday with a movie party. Guests who returned to the Gunnisons after the show for ice cream and birthday cake included Art Miller, Jim Grant, Roger Gumz, John Reinhardt, Tim Trummer and Tom Olson.

Another group of Terrace residents to attend the Shamrock Swing last Saturday night were the Ed Cechs, Jack Sorensens and the Hal Fluhrers. Following the dance they stopped at a local restaurant for a late snack.

Bob and Jo Hult, 1108 N. Chicago, and children, Jane and Jack, visited Jo's mother, Mrs. Charles Hunt in Prophetstown, last weekend.

A TWO-PART birthday celebration was held for Michael, son of Mary and Fred Maybee, 1251 N. Wilke, last weekend. Michael, who was 9, was initially feted at a dinner party in Kenosha last Saturday night with his parents and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDermott. The following day he was again honored at a family party at home attended by his sisters, Debra and Kathleen, brother, Timothy, grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Kreuscher, and cousin, Janet Kreuscher of Kenosha.

Last Saturday evening Ann and Larry Brown, 1408 N. Yale, attended a concert given by the University of Michigan Symphony Band at Maine Township in Des Plaines. This band, incidentally, was voted the outstanding college symphony band in the country and had just returned from a 16-week tour of Russia.

Despite the measles, Mark, son of Charles and Diane Moser, 1418 Illinois, celebrated his third birthday with a family party last Monday afternoon.

Used as Skating Rink

Developer Challenges Basin's Ownership, Trustees Answer

Ownership of the small retention basin at Douglas and Marion streets in Arlington Heights, which the park district fixed up as a skating rink this winter, was challenged Monday night.

Challengers were J. M. Minneci, a developer, and Mrs. Anna Marie Busalachi, who was owner of the land developed as Hickory Meadows subdivision.

As argued at the village board meeting Monday night, the 4.3 acres was dedicated to the village for a retention basin at the time of approval of the subdivision plats, but only for an experiment. This was in mid-1956.

Mrs. Busalachi now claims the land is hers, and she wants the village, the park district and a utility company to remove their equipment and a small warming house erected this winter.

She states she has put up "Private Property, No Trespassing" signs which have been taken down, and that a padlock she put on a gate to the basin was removed.

THIS EVIDENTLY was done by the park district or its agents. The skating rink is kept locked after 10 p.m. at night when the guards leave and the lights are turned off.

Menneci said the retention basin is filled with filth, silt and debris and that it has an unpleasant odor.

He showed a photostat of the title in Mrs. Busalachi's name and said they want to fill in the basin and build houses all around it on Douglas, Marion and Hickory, but that they would be willing to give the village about an acre in the middle.

CHAIRMAN HAROLD Carlson of the plan commission, in attendance at the board meeting, challenged a good many of Menneci's statements, reminding the board that he (Carlson) had sat on the plan commission when the subdivision was considered.

Carlson said the retention basin was not an "experiment" but merely the first one in Arlington Heights, that the engineering consultants had designed it to handle extra-heavy storm water and also as a play field for children in dryer weather.

"At the time, this was considered a dedication and we did not have any great trouble getting Mr. Menneci to agree to it," Carlson said.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack M. Siegel exhibited a recored plat with the anotation, "dedicated," written in as applying to the retention basin area.

Siegel said that although the village does not have title to the property, the plats act states that if any area is marked "dedicated" this automatically conveys title of the area to the village.

However, Siegel said, Menneci could go to court and ask that the dedication be set aside because he had been coerced into agreeing to it. Menneci said that he had indeed been coerced.

AS FOR CHARGES that the retention basin is a hazard to health and undesirable, refutation was offered by several members of the audience, in addition to Carlson, who also lives in the neighborhood.

Anthony Tomaso, 635 E. Clarendon, representing Arlington Greens Civic Association:

We helped get the skating facilities put in there and I have since received many calls about what a wonderful thing it is. There is never any stench. We are now talking about beautifying the basin area by planting shrubs. We definitely think it is a necessity for flood control.

TED KRIES, 1437 N. Douglas, representing Hickory Meadows Civic Association:

If they needed the basin for flood control in 1956 they certainly need it today. We think it is a desireable feature.

Another area resident said he skates at the basin and he never has seen anyone there after 10 p.m. as charged by Mrs. Busalachi.

The board saw little merit in Menneci's and Mrs. Busalachi's arguments, and Trustee William Moore offered a motion that the board reject their arguments and instruct the village manager and the police department to enforce the regulations at the rink and retain ownership rights.

ALTHOUGH THE motion was seconded by Trustee Richard Glantz, Trustee Eugene Schlickman questioned whether the village had clear legal rights to the property and said that although he did not sympathize with Menneci's position, he thought there were some unresolved questions.

Village President John G. Woods suggested the matter be referred to the board's legal committee for study, and Moore withdrew his original motion and substituted one incorporating Woods' suggestion. It passed by a voice vote. (A

His car struck the first vehicle headon, then spun to the right, striking the first vehicle again. The second impact sent the Collins car into the ditch. The driver of the second car was thrown out into the roadway on the right side.

Both drivers and a passenger, Lorraine Collins, 34, were injured and taken to Resurrection Hospital. Damage to both cars was listed at $1300 each. Conlon was charged with driving on the wrong side of the road.

IN A THIRD accident, at 7:15 p. m. on March 15 on Illinois 58, an eighth of a mile west of Illinois 83, Stephanie Tucker, 41, of 528 Charing Cross, Elk Grove, was eastbound.

Her car slid on an icy patch, according to police and struck a vehicle driven by Edward W. LeBlanc, 25, of 315 S. Elmwood, Palatine.

The Tucker car was spun around and struck a third car, driven by James L. Cherney, 32, of 249 Kingman, Roselle. This car, like the LeBlanc car, was westbound on 58.

Injured was LeBlanc. Among the uninjured were both drivers of the first and second cars and a passenger in the first car, Thomas Tucker, 15. Damages to the first car were $200; to the second, $1000, and to the third, $300. The first driver was charged with driving too fast for conditions.

Mike Hogue, 671 Lake, Palatine, and Walter B. Miller, 48, of Antioch, were stopped for a red light while northbound on Illinois 53 at Illinois 62. Also headed north was a third car, driven by Harlan Smith, 52, of 2143 W. 76th St., Chicago.

The Smith car, unable to stop, struck the Miller car pushing it into the Hogue car. Both Hogue and Miller were injured and taken to the Northwest Community Hospital where they were released after examination.

Damage to the Hogue car was $300; to the Miller car, $500, and to the Smith car, $100. Smith was charged with driving too fast for conditions. The accident occurred at 5 p. m. March 15.

TWO CARLOADS of people were injured in an accident which occurred at 6:20 p. m. March 17 on Elmhurst Road, a quarter mile north of Illinois 72.

A car driven by William C. Hurst, 27, of Melrose Park, pulled out of a side road, when a car driven by Curtis H. White, 23, of 4040 W. Grand, Chicago, attempted to pass it. The second car struck the first in the left rear.

Injured were Hurst, a passenger in the White car, Don Steinmetz, 22, of Arlington Heights, and passengers in the Hurst car, Gladys Hurst, 28; Connie, 12; Rickey, 9; Joseph, 10, and Randy Hurst, 7. They were taken to Northwest Community Hospital.

Unable to stop was a third driver behind them, Ronald A. Gregrow, 26, of 4726 N. Kewanee, Chicago, because, as he told state police, his windows were iced and he was unable to see clearly. His car struck the Barth car, which in turn, struck the Modica car.

BOTH BARTH and Gregrow were injured and taken to Gottlieb Memorial Hospital. Damage to the first car was $150; to the second, $150 and to the third, $600. Gregrow was charged with driving too fast for conditions.

Modern antenna equipment antiquates antenna gear of two and three years ago. New designs and coatings make better TV reception possible for viewers all over, and especially in fringe areas. The new patented designs and coatings are particularly good for color TV and FM radio. Pictures are delivered free of snow, ghosts and flickering on all ranges of stations from 2 through 13.

Remember, your TV antenna system is the eyes and ears of your TV receiver. The quality of picture that you see on the screen is based on the strength of the signal that can reach the TV receiver.

Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 and let LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights give you further information about your antenna importance. We have had considerable experience in this area and will guarantee our services.

Mom, Child Course Set

A new session of the popular Mother and Child Care course will start Thursday, March 29, at Northwest Community Hospital.

The six-week class, aimed at prospective parents—both fathers and mothers—will be held in the hospital doctor's lounge from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Thursday.

The class is sponsored by the hospital as a community service to area residents. All prospective parents are eligible for the course which follows the American Red Cross recommended class outline.

INTERESTED area residents are asked to register either by telephone or in person with Mrs. Martha Loss, director of nurses. The hospital telephone number is CL 9-1000.

Forms to be completed by the prospective attending physician must be completed before classes begin. The forms are available at the hospital or can be mailed direct to a doctor for completion. All medical staff members who use Northwest Community obstetrical facilities have forms available at their office.

The Mother and Child Care classes are taught by Mrs. Charlene Komay, R.N. Two physicians on the staff at the hospital — an anesthesiologist and a pediatrician—discuss various related subjects at two class sessions.

THE CLASS includes discussions of the emotional and physical problems that face expectant parents, an explanation of the physical development of the child during gestation, and a study of the needs and pitfalls to be expected during the first year of a baby's life.

In spite of a title given the course, Mrs. Komay emphasized most classes include both father and mother. One of the main purposes of the class is to take the tensions and fears out of approaching parenthood.

Tropical Fish Auction Tuesday

A tropical fish auction will highlight the March 27 meeting of the newly organized Suburban Aquarist Society in Mount Prospect's Lions Park fieldhouse at 7:30 p.m.

MRS. ROBERT Goddertz and Mrs. W. Shaw, Jr. have been working with their third graders, Troop 866. Their display featured citizenship in the "Church, Home, School" idea, using cardboard boxes to create a realistic miniature community.

Sharing the Health and Safety theme were fifth grade Troops 796 and 362. Safety "do's and don'ts" were illustrated by the girls of 796, while 362 used dolls to illustrate rules of good health and displayed a first aid kit they had made. As a safety and service project, Troop 362 recently rolled bandages which they gave to the local nurses club.

A homemaking display prepared by fourth grade Brownie Troop 867 featured sewing, embroidery and baked goods. Leaders are Mrs. William Schumacher and Mrs. E. W. Reed. (B9

Suburb Leader Vows GOP Reform

Old Guard Contented with 'Leftover Political Bones'

by DICK HOFFMANN

A Republican candidate for Palatine Township Committeeman in the April 10 primary blistered the "Old Guard" in his party's ranks in an angry policy statement released this week.

Max R. Kolin, 2108 Flicker Lane, Rolling Meadows, scorched the Republican Central Committee for being satisfied with "the leftover bones the Democrats tossed them."

Kolin, who is engaged in a primary struggle with Alex MacArthur of Palatine, acting GOP Committeeman, asked: "What has this to do with Palatine and any suburb of Chicago?"

HIS ANSWER: "The city of Chicago has consistently lost population while the so-called Republican suburbs have gained in numbers during the last decade. Have the Republican suburbs become stranger and taken county domination away from the Democrats? No! Under (Cook County Central Committeeman Francis X.) Connell and the Old Guard Township Committeemen of these suburbs, nothing was done to integrate these newcomers into our Republican Party."

Kolin says this situation has existed since Connell's predecessor, Ed Moore, held the reins of the central committee.

TO COUNTER this contentment with leftovers, Kolin pledged these planks in a platform upon which he is taking a stand.

1) To vote for reorganization of the County Republican Central Committee "when I am elected Republican Committeeman of Palatine Township. This means ridding ourselves of Connell and other 'tag along' leaders."

2) To open Republican meetings to all Republicans, not use the organization as it has been used in Palatine, as a private club, he charged.

3) To use any worker who volunteers, not tell the hopeful volunteer "don't call us, we'll call you" and never call, as has been the custom in Palatine Township, Kolin maintained.

4) To reactivate the Palatine Young Republican Organization "which is all but defunct in Palatine Township and make both the Republican Women's Club and the Republican Club of Palatine into organizations that will never produce a baker's dozen listeners to a candidate for the Congress of the United States as was recently done by the Palatine Republican Club."

KOLIN ADDED that he would insist on face-to-face meetings with constituents instead of depending on "postcard campaigning as has the Old Guard Republican Committeemen."

MAX KOLIN

He declared that when the Republicans were turned out of Washington and Springfield, they left nothing upon which to rebuild. "This was because," he asserted, "the former Republican officeholders were dedicated to either a 'me-too' policy of agreement with the Democrats in return for personal favors, or a lack of fortitude to stand up for a sane fiscal policy, states rights, and good solid conservatism."

Turning from what he termed the "1960 disaster," Kolin touched on the broader beliefs he thinks his party embraces.

He said the Republican Party believes that tax reform can supply the answers to many of our major problems. "Proper tax reform would stimulate business and industry investment, providing growth in production and employment. We believe in the elimination of featherbedding practices by labor and business; opposition to all kinds of monopoly, whether by business, labor or government; and the maintenance of a stable dollar."

He said the GOP has sometimes "been represented as a party of isolationism, 'fiscal obsession,' ignoring human needs, metooism, and stand-patism. This is not true. It is a distorted, dishonest description manufactured by Left-Wing liberals. Republicanism is positive dedication to the conservative roots of our American heritage.

"IT IS BASED upon the dignity of each individual and his needs; upon the preservation of our free society and its needs . . .

"Through the application of sound, progressive conservative beliefs, the Republican Party and its leaders can—and will—meet the challenges and opportunities of our time. We can—and will—preserve the dignity of each individual and still meet his needs . . . I cannot believe that the only answer to the threat of communism is to destroy the freedoms which have made us great. We do not have to change our principles to meet with, compete with, and beat the Communists in this seemingly endless Cold War." (B8

Houser, Moore Clash In Campaigns Here

With the April 10 primary election only three weeks away, Wheeling Township's two candidates for Republican committeeman leveled blasts implicitly aimed at the other this week.

In behalf of William Moore, a charge was made that the supporters of Thomas Houser indulged in "deliberate and calculated refusal to permit the voters of the township the opportunity to compare the two candidates.

Howard C. Sorensen, Moore campaign manager, claimed that Houser's supporters were in charge of the Candidates Night of the township Republicans March 15, and avoided allowing the two committeemen candidates to speak, confining the meeting to hearing candidates for other offices.

HE SAID Moore had submitted a written request "to the committee" that the two Republican committeeman candidates be put on the program, and extended a "personal invitation for his opponent" to join in the request. "Obviously they were afraid of the comparison" rather than a reliance on "partisan propaganda and campaign releases." Also, Moore issued a challenge for Houser to meet him in a public forum.

Houser this week warned of "the dangers inherent in placing the responsibilities of two demanding public offices upon the shoulders of one man." His reference was to the fact that Moore is presently a trustee on the Arlington Heights village board.

"EACH OF these jobs is extremely demanding," Houser said. "There is serious doubt that both can be handled properly by the same man at the same time."

Moore has continually referred during his campaign to the point that Houser is employed outside the township in his job as trial lawyer for a railroad firm.

On the other hand, Moore, also a lawyer, notes that he has his office in Arlington Heights.

HOWEVER, Houser pointed out, "I believe that when a man agrees to become a village trustee, he gives a dedicated promise to the voter that he will give unstintingly of himself to village affairs.

"A township committeeman must make a similar pledge to the voter.

"It would be out of the question to ask a man to attend a meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board, when on the same evening. he was expected to attend a meeting of the Cook County Republican Central Commitee," Houser continued.

"Also, it is not a question of "dual responsibility," but of serving two masters."

"AMBITION IS only part of leadership," Houser concluded. "Ability, availability and responsibility are other necessary parts. . ."

Neither Houser nor Moore, in their written statements, mentioned the other by name.

Council Meeting

The Cook County Public Health Council will hold a meeting Thursday, March 29, in the Des Plaines City Hall. Representatives of all local organizations are invited to attend.

The meeting will acquaint the representatives with the work of the council. For further information, call CY 6-5253. (B8

For Congress

Rumsfeld and Burks Garner Endorsements

Donald Rumsfeld and State Rep. Marion Bursk each picked up endorsements this week as the two-way battle for the Republican nomination to Congress in the 13th District moved into its final stages.

Rumsfeld, a 29-year-old resident of Glenview, received a major boost Tuesday when Carl R. Hansen of Mount Prospect announced his support. Hansen is a candidate for GOP committeeman in Elk Grove Township.

"The Republican Party must immediately take a fresh outlook and nominate men who are aggressive and vigorous," Hansen said. He pledged his corps of more than 250 volunteers to work for Rumsfeld.

ALSO recommending Rumsfeld's nomination was the Wheeling Township Young Republican Club, which voted overwhelmingly in favor of the former Congressional aide Monday night.

Burks, 49, an Evanston resident, won the support Sunday of the Schaumburg Township Republican Organization headed by Jesse Lehman, GOP committeeman. The organization's 17-member executive board reportedly approved Burks' candidacy, thus pledging all members to support him.

Other Republican candidates for Congress are Edward Gordy of Evanston and Raymond Morley of Northbrook.

They joined Rumsfeld and Burks last Thursday night in speaking to some 200 Wheeling Township Republicans at a forum in Arlington Heights.

In the race for GOP State Central Committee, Candidate David Brown of Wilmette announced this week he has the support of Henry Busse, Wheeling Township committeeman who is retiring after serving five terms.

Busse is reported to have said, "He (Brown) is the best of four qualified candidates."

OTHER candidates are Ralph Church of Evanston, Alex MacArthur of Palatine, and Roland Moore of Skokie.

The 13th District is composed of the 50th Ward in Chicago and the suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington, Northfield, Niles, New Trier and Evanston.

The Primary Election will be held Tuesday, April 10.

April 10 Primary

Superior Court Bench Has Seven Vacancies

One of the few true elections this primary — where voters will choose between Democrats and Republicans to actually put men in office — has been receiving the least attention in the predominantly partisan campaigns.

This is the election for Superior Court judges in Cook County, with both Republicans and Democrats putting up full slates for the seven vacancies.

Historically, the reluctance of lawyers to "knock" other lawyers keep the judgeship contests on a more sedate level than other contests.

THIS HAS THE effect of allowing the winners to be decided along party lines alone, with the stronger party electing their candidates to the vacant seats on the bench.

Each of the candidates of both parties has been given a "qualified" or "well qualified" endorsement by the Chicago Bar Association, although the Republicans had to do a bit of maneuvering to make this so.

One of the GOP candidates, Emil Caliando, was not given an endorsement by the association and withdrew as a candidate. He was replaced by Saul A. Epton, who has been a judge previously and at that time had been endorsed by the association.

THE OTHER Republican candidates are James B. Carey Jr., Thomas A. Chuhak, Nathan A. Cohen, George Fiedler, Arthur Hallett and James C. Leaton.

Against them the Democrats have put up Raymond P Drymalski, Herbert Paschen, Pasquale A. Sorentino, Arthur A. Sullivan, Richard Harewood, and two Chicago Municipal Court Judges, Irving Landesman and George B. Weiss.

The only public issue which the race has generated so far is the relative representation of the two parties on the bench.

BECAUSE THE Cook County Democratic organization is stronger than the Republican organization, there are more Democrats than Republicans on the bench. Republicans argue that election of their candidates to the Municipal Court judgeships will help equalize the situation.

The Chicago Bar Association recently took a "preferential" vote with the greatest number of votes going to Democrat Weiss, who has been on the bench since 1934, and Republicans Carey, Cohen, Fiedler, Hallett and Leaton.

Nevertheless, the usual light primary vote can be expected to elect more Democrats than Republicans, although this may not necessarily be so.

Independents who do not like to express a party preference and so do not vote in the primary yet who would like to equalize the parties' bench strength, can go to the polls April 10 and vote for the judgeships only, without declaring a party preference. (B8

Assistance Hike Blamed on Season

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — Seasonal unemployment caused a jump in assistance caseloads, the Illinois Public Aid Commission reported this week.

The January caseload was 461,218 persons, 15,300 more than the December count of 445,935 more than the rolls of January, 1961.

THE COSTS also showed an increase. In January it rose to $24.6 million from December's $24.4 million. In January, 1961, the costs were $20.3 million.

A total of 130,642 recipients received General Assistance, or poor relief, during January. This compared with 120,334 in December. In aJnuary, 1961, the count was 165,023 persons.

Aid to Dependent Children increased in January to 237,394 persons from the December count of 232,435. In January, 1961 it was 157,686.

These two categories constitute the biggest cost factors among the five public aid programs.

In Cook County, Aid to Dependent Children paced all other aid categories with 168,384 persons receiving $7,892,618. In DuPage county in this area, there were 257 persons who were granted $9,366.

Following was the General Assistance category. In Cook County, there were 74,503 persons who were given $4,396,352 for the month compared to $23,806 for 467 persons in DuPage County.

OLD AGE Assistance was granted to 28,145 persons in Cook County at a cost of $2,482,708 while in DuPage county $27,047 was spent on 353 persons.

Disability Assistance in Cook County for January amounted to $1,575,996 for 15,210 recipients. In DuPage County 23 persons received $1,267.

Blind Assistance in Cook County was granted to 1,352 persons at a cost of $139,611, and in DuPage County this aid, amounting to $1,384, was passed on to 15 persons. (A14

Says Taxes Don't Have to Be Hiked

(UPI) - The president of the Illinois Retail Merchants Association said in Hinsdale Monday the 1963 legislature may not have to raise taxes.

Joseph T. Meek said tax collections are increasing and the only problem remaining was tax spending.

Speaking to the Chamber of Commerce of La Grange and La Grange Park, Meek said he is optimistic because:

—Business is better.

—Tax reporting has been simplified and enforcement stepped up.

—Court decisions are expected soon on litigation dating back to 1937 that has tied up $80 million to $90 million in tax funds.

—JANUARY sales tax collections were $10 million higher than the year before.

—The state will collect about $50 million more during the first quarter of 1962 than it did last year.

In a speech in Rock Island March 14, Meek proposed that the federal government return a fixed percentage of income tax collections to local government.

"Having presented the government with the right to preempt our tax sources, we have a right to preempt some of them back in this hour of states rights crisis," Meek told a meeting of about two-dozen mayors.

MEEK CALLED for a constitutional amendment to return the fixed percentage to the states, which in turn would be reimburse municipalities also on a fixed percentage basis.

The return of $290 million to Illinois, a sum less than 10 per cent of federal collections from Illinois taxpayers in 1959, would allow the municipalities to slash real estate and sales taxes, pay for urban rehabilitation and expansion, discourage payroll tax levies, avoid the waste of federal bureaucracy and prevent municipal bankruptcy, he said. Townships to Get $1 Million

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) - Illinois townships and road districts have been allotted $1,109,593 as their share of the motor fuel tax paid into the state treasury during February, the Illinois Department of Finance reported Monday. (A-14

BGA's Candidate

Rumsfeld Committee Laying Final Plans

Members of the Rumsfeld for Congress Committee in Wheeling Township this week began making final preparations as the campaign for Congress in the 13th District moves into its last stages.

The committee is supporting the candidacy of Donald Rumsfeld, 20-year-old investment broker who lives in Glenview.

According to Thomas W. Novotny, chairman of Rumsfeld's campaign in the townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Barrington and Hanover, the committee plans to station volunteer workers in major shopping areas to distribute literature, buttons and other campaign material.

OTHER Rumsfeld workers will form a "flying squad" to canvass voters who would like to support Rumsfeld's candidacy, Novotny said.

These two projects are under the direction of Mrs. Donald Bunton, 317 Windsor Drive, Arlington Heights, who indicates those wishing to aid the campaign may phone at CL 5-8356.

A. R. McIntyre, Wheeling village president, and Thomas J. Miller, a member of the Wheeling Board of Trustees, threw their support to Rumsfeld after hearing him speak in Arlington Heigh's last Thursday, Novotny reported.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS trustees supporting Rumsfeld are Norval Stephens, Richard Glantz and Eugene Schlickman. So is C. O. Schlaver, Mount Prospect village president.

"Voters boarding commuter trains in Arlington Heights next Wednesday, March 28, will find an early - rising candidate named Rumsfeld there to greet them with an old - fashioned handshake," Novotny said.

Rumsfeld, who last week received the endorsement of the Better Government Association, has been attending numerous coffee meetings in this area, the most recent being co-sponsored by Mrs. Frank Kolerus and Mrs. Fred Reimann of Mount Prospect.

RUMSFELD has been styled by his supporters as an "intelligent conservative" whose approach to problems "can be likened to that of the late Sen. Robert Taft."

He has called for limitations on government control, particularly at the federal level, and protection of the rights and freedoms of the individual; responsible economic policies, and a position in foreign affairs "distinguished by firmness, clarity and purpose."

The holder of a political science degree from Princeton University, Rumsfeld spent three years as an administrative assistant to Congressmen, during which time he took law courses at Georgetown University. (B8

☒ VOTE FOR

WILLIAM J. SCOTT

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE for TREASURER of the state of ILLINOIS

Bank executive, lawyer veteran and former Assistant U.S. District Attorney.

Primary Election, TUESDAY, APRIL 10.

Donald Rumsfeld Believes...

- The security of the United States and peace in the world require a consistent American foreign policy that is alert to the pressing dangers of Communism. Our aim should be to reinforce the economic, political, military and social ties between the U. S. and those nations which stand beside us in the fight for freedom throughout the world.
- In this space age, America must spend whatever is required to maintain a military position capable of deterring and resisting Soviet aggressions.
- Prosperity, full employment and economic growth come from freedom of opportunity. Government must encourage investment, expansion, risk-taking . . . not discourage progress through red tape, interference and antiquated tax laws.
- Monopoly power in any form . . . whether in business or labor . . . is against the public interest.
- We should meet the needs of our changing and complex society with creative action oriented to the citizen, not to political expediency . . . relying on local responsibility and respect for the rights and abilities of the individual.
- We must resist programs that substitute coercion for cooperation . . . centralization for individuality. Stifling taxation and federal domination of farming, education, medical care, power resources and of urban affairs—all implicit in the Democratic party's program—constitute a serious threat to our freedoms and to our ability to grow and prosper.

THE SURE WAY TO KEEP THE 13th DISTRICT REPUBLICAN

VOTE APRIL 10 FOR

To Succeed Marguerite Church

- Endorsed by Palatine Township Regular Republican Organization
- Recommended by the Better Government Association
- Endorsed by Chicago Daily News, Chicago Sun-Times, Chicago's American
- Supported by thousands interested in a man who will inject youthful vigor in the Republican party, who is dedicated to honesty and candor — in government and business!

It is vital that Marguerite Stitt Church be succeeded by a Republican who will carry on her record of service and dedication . . . who will continue to lead the Republican Party to victory in the 13th Congressional District.

Donald Rumsfeld is the man who can and will do this.

His roots go deep here. He grew up in Evanston and New Trier, lives in Niles Township. His performance as a Navy pilot, his experience on the staff of two Congressmen, his interest in a dynamic, effective Republican Party all point up his qualifications for public service, his ability to win in November.

"Donald Rumsfeld has remarkable know-how in politics and government and was very effective in his work for me. He has the ability and energy along with the desire to serve a district long and well. It seems to me that it is all too seldom that people of his calibre seek a position in government service."

—David Dennison, Republican, Ohio
Member 85th Congress

"Donald Rumsfeld served most effectively as a member of my congressional staff. He possesses outstanding qualities of character, a good mind and keen insight into legislative problems."

—Robert P Griffin, Republican, Michigan

Expect Final Action On College March 28

by HELENE BRISTOL
Education Editor

Final action on the survey report of the proposed north-northwest suburban community junior college is expected next Wednesday, March 28.

Two major stumbling blocks face the survey committee before final conclusions and rerommendations of the survey can be made.

First of the problems is the estimated 600,000-plus population found by the survey subcommittee in the nine high-school districts presently included. State laws covering establishment of public junior college districts limit the maximum population to 500,000.

Second, the survey committee must deal with the possible withdrawal of one or more of the districts from the survey.

Several of the areas have indicated a possible desire to exclude their district from the final recommendations and conclusions, or to at least separate their districts from the balance of the survey area.

IT IS expected the final report will recommend a two-year college for the area, but there is a question whether the completed survey will recommend the inclusion of all nine high school districts.

The nine districts presently included in the North Suburban Chicago Regional College Survey are Palatine-Schaumburg, Arlington-Prospect, Maine, Ridgewood, Northbrook, Niles, Evanston, New Trier and Highland Park.

The last chapter of the survey report containing conclusions and recommendations is being drafted by a special "committee of ten" representing the chairman and one member of each of the five survey subcommittees.

THE SURVEY has been divided into five major areas—population, curriculum, building and sites, public relations and financing. Two residents from each of the nine high school districts served on each of the subcommittees. Each subcommittee was aided by a state university educator in its work.

The survey is the "first step" in a series of actions to create a community public junior college district. Following the extensive survey investigations, both the county and state education department supervisors must check the information and hold hearings on the accuracy of the findings.

Final step in the creation of the proposed junior college district will be a referendum called by the county superintendent of schools.

A VOTE by all residents will determine whether the district should be formed, with a majority vote required—not in each district, but in the over-all area.

Under present state laws once the referendum has been called no individual section of the overall area can withdraw from the district and no additional areas can be added.

Presumably, each high school district would decide whether to join in the junior college district before the referendum was called. Some districts are planning a straw poll of their area, while others will conduct their voter-poll through meetings or public reaction to the survey report.

THE PROBLEM of excessive population can be removed easily through legislative action, survey spokesmen felt. The 500,000 population figure is used frequently in Illinois legislation to separate "down state" areas from Chicago.

Through rapid population growth, many areas now have more than 500,000 population, and it is assumed the legislature next year will increase the 500,000 population figure in the junior college legislation.

The reports of the five subcommittees were discussed at a meeting of the entire survey committee last week. Suggestions were adopted for additions and changes to bring these reports to final form. Complete harmony marked the meeting, according to Erie Jones of Palatine, the survey chairman.

JONES SAID he was "deeply impressed" with the way the five sub-committees proceeded to get together their reports. "They have worked hard and the reports in all areas are complete and comprehensive — really comprehensive and thorough," he emphasized.

Head of the six-member professional staff consultants is Dr. Eric A. Johnson of Illinois State Normal University. The professional consulting staff was retained by the survey. Costs of the survey are being prorated among the nine high school districts included in the proposed junior college area.

Chairmen of the five sub-committees are Dr. John Speer of Morton Grove, curriculum; Morgan Yost of Kenilworth, building and sites; Norman Olsen of Des Plaines, finance; Howard Olsen of Palatine, population; and David R. Mann of Hoffman Estates, public relations. (B8

CHICAGO AREA COUNCIL

The council thanks all groups who have sent green stamps to the office. Because of this generosity, they are the possessors of another tyepwriter. "If each group will donate one book, they will be better equipped to 'Give Service,'" commented the council. Pixie Blue Birds of Arlington Heights donated one and a half books; Mrs. Midge Wickstrom and Mrs. Ruth Danker are co-guardians of this group.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Dancing Daisies, will be making trivets, relates their leader, Mrs. Marge Stevens. Bases for the trivets are metal trays used in packaging luncheon meats. Small ceramic tiles are cemented inside the base in the girls' own design and then grouted for the finishing. This group will fly up at the end of March at their own ceremonial.

The Grand Council Fire will be held later in the year when the girls hope to perform a hula dance. One of the mothers of this group has been teaching these fourth graders different forms of the hula.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Dancing Star Maidens recently toured Danneger's Bakery where they saw the large ovens and all the other equipment necessary to keep a busy bakery supplied. They were also given treats of cup cakes and cookies.

One of the requirements toward Fire Maker's rank is for the girls to plan their own council fire and to use ceremonial equipment that has previously been made. Two groups did this last week.

Wah-Wah-Tay-See group, which includes Patrice Eisentraut, Mary Beth Gustafson, Kim Lacker, Christine Oberlin, Bonnie Overton, Cheryl White and Gail Whiteside, had made beaded headbands. The theme candle was friendship for the council fire they had planned.

All of the Ta-Cin-Cas participated in their ceremonial, although it was planned by the five girls who hope to take rank at the Grand Council Fire. They are Shirley Allen, Linda McDougall, Lynda Norris, Diane Oldenburg and Monty Lou Jensen.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Okiciyapi Camp Fire Girls, looking forward to an activity-filled spring and summer, reflect on past get-togethers during the winter months to dispel any rumor that the group is hibernating until warm weather returns.

Halloween hi-jinks, Christmas caroling for neighbors and shut-ins, January's potlatch dinner, a fun-filled roller skating and splash party re-uniting present and former Camp Fire sisters at February's close, and a March style show of home-sewn fashions, were highlights of a busy group calendar.

In all this hub-bub of activity, long-range service projects and yearend goals were not forgotten. Seventh through ninth grade Camp Fire Girls continued to collect children's books for the pediatrics ward of the local hospital and other children's institutions. Further service was devoted to lending a helping hand to younger Camp Fire and Blue Bird groups seeking assistance.

A special display was set up in the Memorial Library to mark Camp Fire's 52nd Birthday Week, and the youthful teenagers joined their many Camp Fire and Blue Bird sisters in taking part in Birthday Sunday observances in the churches of their choice March 18.

Okiciyapi Smoke Signals, the group's chatty newsletter, made its initial appearance in February with copies being sent to 27 past and present members. Co-guardian Mrs. Robert Roth's prolonged stay in Northwest Community Hospital prompted the girls to send get-well wishes with hopes that she will soon be enjoying good health again.

Dates to Remember

March 24—Rehearsal for the Council Fire at Arlington High Girls Gym, 9 a.m. to noon. This applies to all Camp Fire Girls and third year Blue Birds. Questions will be answered by Pat Miresse CL 3-8185.

March 25—Grand Council Fire, 3 p.m., Arlington High Girls Gym.

PALATINE

Palatine District had "s annaul mother-daughter tea Sunday in St. Paul Church. Refreshments of sandwiches and cookies were made by the Blue Birds and Camp Fire Girls.

The afternoon's entertainment was provided by the girls. Aowakia and Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls sang while Joan Andreason accompanied them on the piano. Kathy Ormerod with the oboe and Barbara Zadny with the clarinet played a duet of three selections. A handicraft table was there with articles made by the girls in their own groups throughout the year. Two hundred fifty girls and mothers attended.

MOUNT PROSPECT

Twelve TanNahZuGaToMa Camp Fire Girls attended the production, "Tom Sawyer," at the Goodman Theatre in Chicago Saturday, March 10. They journeyed to the city and back on the train, but walked the distance between the depot and the theatre for their daily constitutional. Hot dogs were purchased at the station for lunch.

Real thrill of the day came when the girls secured the performers' autographs during the intermission and directly following the end of the performance. Those who enjoyed the theatre party were: Mrs. M. Peterson, leader; her assistants, Mrs. C. Nelson and Mrs. K. Showers; Jane DeMar, Marilyn Frohberg, Barbara Hjelm, Christine Januzik, Marilyn Johnson, Marisa Nelson, Nancy Packard, Lynda Peterson, Kathy Ryan, Madeline Schier, Barbara Showers, and Kathleen Graham. YMCA Sets Membership Record in New Building

At the recent ninth annual meeting of Northwest Suburban YMCA, Stanley C. Amren of Mount Prospect, vice president of Charles Bruning Co., was re-elected chairman of the board of directors. In accepting the post, Amren paid tribute to the work of the board and the staff of the local "Y" in establishing the largest membership of any YMCA of its kind in the world.

Since opening its new building in January 1961, Northwest Suburban "Y" has recorded 8,765 full privilege members. This has all been achieved in this first year's operation of the new facilities.

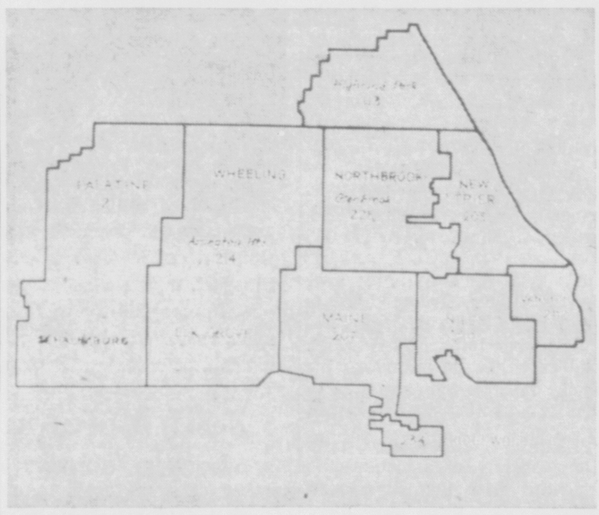
FOUR VICE presidents were also named to serve the "Y" board of directors in 1962. They are James Norman of Itasca, general manager of Fastex, division of Illinois Tool Works, Des Plaines; William J. Busse of Mount Prospect, president of Mount Prospect State Bank; Robert Bukowski of Arlington Heights, assistant cashier of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., Chicago; and Fred T. Rogers of Palatine, president of Palatine National Bank.

STANLEY AMREN

Newly elected board members include Dr. Gordon Ward and Stephen Jurco, both of Arlington Heights; Robert Atcher of Roselle; Thomas Crouch and Edwin Bruning, both of Palatine.

FAHEY FLYNN, radio and TV commentator, climaxed the annual evening with comments on "The YMCA and the World Today." Flynn was inducted as an Honorary Chief and presented with an Indian head dress by the Longhouse of Indian Guide Tribes of Northwest Suburban "Y."

The Y-Indian Guides is the fastest growing youth movement in the country and highlights a program built around Indian lore for boys 6 to 12 years of age and their dads.



QUESTIONS HAVE BEEN raised whether all nine high school districts presently included will remain in the North Suburban Chicago Regional College Survey studying the possibilities and needs for a north-northwest suburban public junior college district. Twin problems of 600,000 population in the area, with maximum population limited by state laws, and reluctance of some of the more affluent districts to be included in a public college area, have brought the problem to a head. Final recommendations of the committee are expected March 28. (B8

THE CHARLES KLEHM & Son Nursery of Arlington Heights will participate in the World Flower Show being held March 24 through April 1 at McCormick Place, Chicago. Theme of the Klehm exhibit pictured above is "Garden Pleasures." It was designed by Harold O. Klopp, landscaped architect for the show. It portrays a patio area as the focal point, with a yew hedge, tree peonies, and a path leading into a more informal woodland scene. (B8

YMCA Charters 14 New Indian Guide Tribes

Northwest Suburban YMCA's Indian Guide program took a big step forward in capturing the imagination and enthusiasm of dads and sons in the area last week when the formal chartering ceremony of Northwest Nation and Longhouse took place at the "Y."

Over 40 "big braves"—chiefs, tallykeepers and wampum bearers— representing 14 new tribes in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, were on hand to witness and participate in the program. Opening the meeting in typical Indian council fire fashion was Dick Jandl of Arlington Heights, co-chairman of the Y-Indian Guide steering committee.

DAVID SHELDON, YMCA staff member on special assignment to help organize the Indian Guide movement, introduced visiting "palefaces," among them Dick Lavers of Arlington Heights, member of the "Y" Board of Directors whose special interest is in Indian Guides, and Charles McClellan, executive secretary of Northwest Suburban YMCA.

Receiving a headband with feather, each guest was named Honorary Medicine Man of the Nation.

Dr. Robert Briskey, director of the Hearing Evaluation Center at the University of Wisconsin and a nationally known leader in the Y-Indian Guide movement, spoke to the group on "What Y-Indian Guides Can Mean to You and Your Son."

THIS MOVEMENT is sponsored by the YMCA for fathers and sons, with both having to participate together in mutual projects and activities. Northwest Suburban "Y" is in the process of starting several groups in this area. Any fathers and sons interested may call the "Y" at CYpress 6-3376 for more information. (B9

Church to Observe First Anniversary

Lutheran Church of the Cross, Arlington Heights, will observe the first anniversary of its organization during the 9:30 a.m. services Sunday, March 25, in Pioneer Park fieldhouse.

The Rev. John W. Johnson, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church, Gary, will discuss the work of the church in the city during the anniversary service.

He will exchange pulpits for the day with the Rev. Bruce K. Benander, pastor of Church of the Cross, who will speak at the Gary church on the church's role in the suburbs.

Reception of 13 adults and 17 children into membership recently increased the church's rolls to 85 confirmed members and 154 baptized members, the Rev. Mr. Benander announced this week. This represen t s growth of nearly 100 per cent in the past year.

HE ALSO announced that Richard Dewar has been named to the church's building committee, which is interviewing architects for the congregation's future church to be located on church property adjacent to Forest View High School on Goebbert Road.

The Rev. Frank Kirshner, pastor of Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, Northrook, was guest pastor for mid-week Lenten services at Church of the Cross Wednesday night, speaking on "We Are There, Seeing Judas." (B8

Tempers Flare Over Rezoning Petition

Farm Land Topic Again

Tempers flared Monday night at the Arlington Heights Village Board meeting when Trustee Eugene Schlickman took some sharp rebuffs for his pointed attack on chairman Harold Carlson of the plan commission during discussion of a rezoning petition.

The petition concerned land which has caused a good deal of ill will and resentment in recent weeks — the area known as the Kirchoff and most of the residents of Hatlen Heights.

The petitioner, LaSalle National Bank represented by Attorney Bernard Siegan, requested rezoning of an additional five acres to make the total B-2 zoning equal 12 acres. The remaining 35 acres would be R-5.

At the time the area was annexed in spite of an 8-1 negative vote of the plan commission, the board thought that an increase in the size of the commercial area fronting Central Road would allow for a better development and would satisfy one of the main objections of the plan commission—and so indicated to the petitioner.

WHEN THE petitioner complied with this suggestion by going back to the plan commission and requesting an additional five acres of B-2, the plan commission turned it down, disregarding the known wishes of the village board. The vote was 4-2, with only six of the 13 members present.

In view of the obvious sentiment of the village board — Schlickman was the sole opponent of the previous annexation and rezoning—Carlson was questioned Monday night on the vote of the commission and asked why it voted the way it did.

"I can't explain the action of the plan commission," Carlson said, adding that he was one of the two who voted in favor of the petition.

"We considered Westgate and heard of other shopping centers which were built on areas too small and needed larger areas to be a successful tract; and this increase would reduce the density of the area and take out about 100 living units—"

REFERRING to the controversy about the annexation in the first place, which the plan commission had opposed, Carlson said that some of the commission members, when this last vote was taken, "possibly had a chip on their shoulders."

He added that only six of the 13 members were in attendance, and he didn't know how the vote would have turned out if the rest of the members had been present.

"Harold," Trustee William Moore asked, "was any consideration at all given to the board's request; was the commission aware of the committee report on this?"

"I think they may have been thinking of the annexation and not the zoning," Carlson replied, implying it might have been their way of showing they still opposed the annexation, even though it was an accomplished fact and they were only supposed to be considering a rezoning request.

A SHORT time later Trustee Schlickman took the floor and said he agreed that the area had been annexed and the only thing that should be considered now was the rezoning. But he said he didn't find any evidence to support the request.

"Harold," he continued, turning to Carlson who was sitting in the audience, "you made serious charges against some members of the plan commission . . . which reflect doubt on the integrity of the plan commission members . . . " As he continued in this tone he was interrupted by Carlson.

"I can substantiate my 'chip on the shoulder' statement, but I'd prefer to do it privately."

Moore attempted to get the floor but was challenged by Schlickman as Village President John G. Woods' gavel banged loudly, and it was obvious Woods was displeased with the interchange, and the turn the discussion was taking.

WHEN MOORE got the floor, he began quietly by saying that if Schlickman had the board's committee report in front of him, he couldn't sincerely question reason for the rezoning petition or Carlson's comments on the commission's vote.

He interrupted his own sentence to read a portion of the report and boom at Schlickman — "We told the man to go in and ask for it and I, too, can't see how the plan commission missed that point."

Woods said he had attended the first hearing of the commission and he was positive one of the commission members' major objections was the shallowness of the B-2 area, regardless of what that member later recalled he said before voting against the latest request.

"I sat in that meeting and he (Clyde Ferry) really stressed that," Woods said, "although he did question whether that was the place for a shopping center."

To Carlson, Woods said that no one in the village had worked harder or more tirelessly for the village during the years than the present plan commission chairman.

"HAROLD, I know of no one in the village who has . . . perhaps some have equalled, but no one has exceeded your service to the village."

As the mood grew quieter, Woods said he was certain that Schlickman had not meant to attack Carlson on a personal basis, and Schlickman shook his head in agreement.

Carlson, for his part, told Schlickman that he had the utmost respect for the integrity of the plan commission and did not mean to give any other impression; that his remark was merely an offhand phrase used to mean that he believed some of them still were expressing opposition to the whole situation.

Richard A. Monroe, president of the Hatlen Heights Civic Association, was given an opportunity to speak, and after reviewing the arguments repeatedly put forth in previous hearings, said that what his group really objects to is "the unknown."

"WE DON'T know what will go in there," he said.

Previously Woods had read aloud the language of the restrictive covenant which runs with the land, and which provides that no building permits shall be issued for any portion of the land unless a planned development is approved by the village board.

This previously had not been enough of a guarantee for the Hatlen Heights objectors, and was not Monday night.

Monroe made an alternate proposal: To annex Siegan's property under the R-1 (single family residence) zoning.

This was an impossible request, since the land already had been annexed R-5 and B-2, and the only matter before the board Monday night was rezoning of five acres of the R-5 to B-2.

REGARDLESS, Monroe said that if his proposal was adopted, Hatlen Heights would agree not to legally contest the annexation, providing Siegan dropped his protests to Hatlen Heights' proposed annexation to Mount Prospect.

Although the 47 acres have been annexed to Arlington Heights, and duly recorded along with the restrictive covenants, there have been indications that Hatlen Heights' residents believe there is a loophole in the annexation revolving around the requirement of the ordinance that owners of annexed property must also apply for annexation to the Arlington Heights Park District.

However, since the area annexed is already in the Mount Prospect Park District and an area cannot be in two park districts, this would automatically make that section of the ordinance inoperative, in the village attorney's opinion.

The Hatlen Heights group has not made any definite plans known about future action, but a recent maneuver had little success.

A MEETING last week of the Prospect Ministerial Association drew only three members to hear Monroe plead the case of Hatlen Heights and try to get the clergy into the controversy on the grounds that the subdivision's residents had been morally wronged. The ministers decided the annexation issue was out of their province.

One further argument was advanced Monday night by a member of the Hatlen delegation. He asked why there would be 12 acres instead of seven, since there presently are no plans for development of the area.

Woods explained that a study of normal size buildings in a shopping center, review of parking area required on an average, and entrance and exit considerations, all pointed to the fact that seven acres was too small a parcel to properly develop as a shopping center, and 12 acres would be better.

This proved an unsatisfactory answer, probably because of a suspicion that there were development plans for the area, but that they were being kept secret.

THIS VIEW could have resulted from published rumors attributed to an unnamed Mount Prospect trustee who reportedly said there was going to be a hotel-motel with bar facilities on the commercial area.

Woods and other Arlington Heights trustees have stated flatly that they know of no such plans, that they believe the area will be developed as a shopping center.

In the end, Trustee Richard Glantz made a motion to reject the negative recommendation of the plan commission, it was seconded by Moore, and approved 3-1 by the trustees, Schlickman dissenting.

Woods' vote, needed for the required fourth vote because of the absence of two trustees, made it 4-1 for rejection.

By the same vote, the area was rezoned from R-5 to B-2.

Seven Candidates File for High School Board Offices

What started out as an uneventful school board election in Arlington-Prospect High School District 214 has turned into a candidate stampede.

Until the sudden and unexpected resignation of Daryl Oldaker, school board president, two weeks ago, only two candidates had filed for the expected single-seat vacancy.

Today there are six candidates for the two available posts.

In addition John Haas of Prospect Heights, selected as board president after Oldaker's resignation, had filed petitions for re-election.

Haas is unopposed in his bid for re-election since by state law one seat on the board must be held by a resident of an unincorporated area, and Haas alone of the present board members and the announced candidates fills this classification.

The latest group of candidates include three for the two-year term vacated by Oldaker and one additional candidate for the regular three-year term.

SEEKING ELECTION to the two-year term are Edward L. Mills of Arlington Heights, George H. Paris of Mount Prospect and Walter P. Strobel of Arlington Heights.

Latest candidate for the regular three-term is E. Charles Lockwood, formerly of Prospect Heights but now a resident of Arlington Heights. Previously announced candidates are Mrs. Lois Rezner of Mount Prospect and Eugene W. Sackett of Wheeling.

Mrs. Rezner and Sackett held a marathon "early bird" session on the first day for filing petitions of candidacy. Candidates normally listed in the order in which petitions are filed, and experienced politicians claim the first spot on the ballot means many additional votes.

BOTH MRS. Rezner and Sackett were obviously aware of the "pol's" abvice because both arrived early in the morning before the opening of the high school district office.

Sackett arrived at the hour when the school building is opened for early-bird students, believing he would be first in line. When he walked to the office door he found Mrs. Rezner there already.

She had arrived at 5:30 a.m. and talked one of the custodians into letting her into the building to await the opening of the office.

IN SPITE of his later filing, Lockwood has the compensating advantage of past experience on the school board. Lockwood was appointed to the high school board in 1958, ran for re-election in 1959 and resigned early last year when he moved to Arlington Heights. As a former resident of Prospect Heights, Lockwood had held the "unincorporated" seat.

When he moved into the incorporated village of Arlington Heights he resigned in favor of John Haas who was appointed to complete Lockwood's term.

Lockwood is a wholesale businessman. He holds a B.S. in electrical engineering from Northwestern University. While serving on the high school board he worked on the important building committee, giving him valuable experience in the upcoming fourth high school construction.

SACKETT is a physical education teacher at Glenbrook High School and the Wheeling Park Superintendent. Mrs. Rezner has held a long list of PTA posts, currently completing a two-year stint as president of the Randhurst Council of PTA's. As a PTA member and a charter member of the League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights she held several posts dealing with school finance and revenue.

The vacated three-year term sought by Lockwood, Mrs. Rezner and Sackett is currently held by William Spomer of Arlington Heights. Spomer has not picked up petitions for re-election and is not expected to file.

Haas, an attorney with offices in Mount Prospect, is the former president of the Prospect Heights Elementary School Board. He is active in civic affairs in Prospect Heights.

THREE candidates are vying for the two-year post created by Oldaker's resignation.

This marks the third year Edward L. (Bud) Mills has sought election to the Arlington-Prospect High School Board. A graduate of Arlington, Mills attended Michigan State University. He is now manager of Webber Paint Company in Arlington Heights.

Mills has a unique interest in the high school district since he has had a child in the high school system since 1956 and will continue to have a student in the schools until 1976.

Republican Club Vote Won by Tom Houser

Members of the Wheeling Township Young Republican Club voted unanimously Monday to recommend the election of Thomas J. Houser of Arlington Heights for the office of Republican Committeeman in Wheeling Township.

The club also gave an overwhelming majority to Donald Rumsfeld of Glenview, candidate for Congress in the 13th District.

Rumsfeld's closest challenger, State Rep. Marion Burks of Evanston, was accorded one vote.

IN A THIRD contest, Ralph Church of Evanston was given the nod over Alex MacArthur of Palatine. Church won the club's recommendation for the GOP State Central Committee by one vote.

Houser, of 416 S. Waterman Ave., has also been endorsed by the Better Government Association and last December won a preferential vote from precinct captains of the Wheeling Township Regular Republican Organization.

"Needless to say, I am extremely pleased with the club's display of confidence in me," Houser said Tuesday. The 32-year-old trial attorney added that he was "satisfied" with the club's other recommendations.

ACCORDING TO Gerald A. Moe of Buffalo Grove, YR president, members of the club's 11-man education committee personally interviewed each of the candidates for the three offices considered.

He said the recommendation process required 139 man-hours of work, and that the "vast majority" of the club's 87 members will "more than likely be hard at work" to nominate the recommended candidates in the April 10 Primary Election.

Mystery Lady Is Identified

The Arlington Heights "mystery woman" has been identified.

She is Mrs. Walter F. Brown of 1146 N. Dryden Place.

A story in the Herald's March 15 edition told of an unidentified female resident of Arlington Heights who first suggested that 100 new voting machines be used in a trial run in Wheeling Township.

E. P. Steinbrinck, assistant chief in the county election department, explained the woman visited his office "some time back" and put in the plug for Wheeling Township as the test site.

STEINBRINCK couldn't recall and had no record of who the woman was.

Mrs. Brown phoned the Herald last Thursday afternoon after reading the story headlined, "Mystery Woman Key to Voting Machines."

"I really got a kick out of your story," she said. "I guess the 'mystery woman' is me."

As president of the Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club, Mrs. Brown said, she went to County Clerk Edward J. Barrett's office early last December to discuss the club's election school slated for Wednesday, March 28.

WHILE SHE was talking to Steinbrinck, Barrett came into the room and introductions were made. Barrett mentioned the new machine and Mrs. Brown asked if he would try it out in Wheeling Township. Barrett said he would.

"Of course, they need these machines much more in Chicago where many people are inclined to vote twice on the same day," Mrs. Brown remarked. "But we're very happy to have the experiment conducted out here."

The new machines are supposed to provide new safeguards for clean elections.

THEY OPERATE on a credit card premise, a card similar to those used to charge gasoline being inserted into the machine to authenticate the voter's qualifications.

The machines are on order from a New York City corporation. Election authorities hope they will arrive in time to be put to use in the April 10 Primary Election here. (ACM

Schlickman Doubts 'Wisdom'

Trustees Debate Decision on Euclid-Route 53 Interchange

Whether or not to press for a Euclid Street interchange with Route 53 when Euclid is extended west through the Arlington Park race track property was debated Monday night by the Arlington Heights village board.

The village plan commission has opposed the extension itself, and the Chamber of Commerce also has expressed opposition, but Trustee Richard Glantz and Village President John G. Woods strongly supported such an interchange.

Glantz said his conversations with county officials made it clear that Euclid definitely will be extended west from Wilke to connect with Route 53 this summer, so the remaining question is whether the village wants to press for an interchange at the connecting point.

GLANTZ said he understands the state, which is constructing Route 53, plans an interchange, but that there is strong pressure from Rolling Meadows officials to block such a move.

He said the Rolling Meadows representatives believe that without the interchange more motorists will travel through shopping areas of Rolling Meadows, to the benefit of Rolling Meadows.

Glantz also said Euclid will be widened from Rand Road east and the only narrow area left will be within the Village of Arlington Heights, and this undoubtedly will be widened at some future date.

SO ASSUMING this, Glantz asked, do we want to sit and do nothing or do we want to do what we can to make sure that Euclid has an entrance and exit at Route 53?

Harold Carlson, chairman of the plan commission, said the commission was unaware that there were definite plans for the extension of Euclid, and for this reason it took a stand against the extension. However, he said, even if Euclid is to be extended, he believed the commission would not favor an interchange.

The plan commission's reasons for opposition included:

1. EUCLID Street is presently almost entirely residential or institutional in its development.
2. Palatine Road as a limited access highway, and Central Road are adequate for cross-town through traffic.
3. Such an extension would necessitate the widening of Euclid Street resulting in the destruction of hundreds of very large and beautiful trees.
4. The major traffic flow by residents through the village is north and south to the commercial areas and transportation facilities.

ANOTHER reason which was reflected in the objection of the Chamber was that "The extension and resulting widening of Euclid would not seem to serve to the benefit of the local business establishments and might serve as a further encouragement for local consumers to travel to outlying shopping centers."

Village President John G. Woods said that after considering the proposal, he was forced to the conclusion that the interchange would bring more business into the village that it would take out, and "frankly I'm surprised at this communication from our Chamber of Commerce."

In a previous letter to village board members, Trustee Eugene Schlickman warned against premature action, and doubted the wisdom of such an interchange, which would increase traffic on Euclid.

"PERSONALLY," he said, "I do not care to see any roads other than State and Northwest Highway drawing traffic through the village."

"You may recall that a few years ago the county sought to widen Euclid," he added, "but it abandoned this plan when a substantial number of citizens protested in fear of removal of many trees, and a change in the character of the area."

The board decided that before taking a direct stand, it would direct the village manager to get the pertinent facts on construction plans from the state and county, consider these in concert with the plan commission, and then make its decision. (A

Second Meet Set

Disappointing Crowd At 'Peace' Meeting

Disappointment was expressed on the turnout for the organizational meeting of a Women for Peace group ror the Northwest Suburbs, but plans were made for additional meetings and future activities.

Next meeting is to be April 5 at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Rosalie Kirchner, 7650 Laver, gne, Skokie.

About a dozen women from Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Wheeling and Skokie appeared for the first meeting at Rand Park Fieldhouse in Des Plaines last Wednesday.

SPEAKER was Mrs. Sidney Lens, of Hyde Park and wife of the author of an account of Civil Defense, to which a recent edition of Progressive Magazine was devoted.

Idea of Women for Peace, an international organization, is to get women together to express in some way their concern for peace, it was reported. It was stated that women are perhaps less rigid in their approach to such questions than men.

Women for Peace now has a mailing list of 50,000, it was pointed out. It was begun by Mrs. Dagmar Wilson, children's book author, of Washington, D. C., in October, 1961. She individually called several women she knew throughout the United States, urging them to begin a telephone campaign.

FIRST meeting of Women for Peace in the Chicago area was held on the North Shore in November, 1961, which resulted in a peace march of about 5,000 to downtown Chicago.

The national organization encourages its various chapters to demonstrate in some way once a month.

Another Chicago area peace march is slated for April 21, beginning in Lake Forest and ending at Orchestra Hall in Chicago, where a rally is to follow.

Representatives of the organization were reported as stating that the women's movement has earned respect, and has achieved some national publicity.

IT HAS spread to Western Europe, Australia and Japan, and it is hoped to begin a branch in Russia.

In Chicago, chapters are located on the South and North Shore areas, and in Manor, Bridgeport, Albany Park, Le-

On Saturday, Bert and Joyce helped Carol and Wayne Wilkins celebrate their 11th wedding anniversary with dinner at Speros in Palatine. Joyce attended a three day workshop held by the Illinois Council for Mentally Handicapped Children at the Morrison Hotel.

Lorrie Brazeau and Marge Murray, sisters, and their respective spouses, Chuck and Leo, spent the evening with their sister, Mrs. John Beegan and her husband in honor of Tammy Beegan's birthday.

THE CHUCK Durecs, 401 Bob-o-link, were guests of the John Mikals of Elmhurst on Sunday, and unexpected Sunday guests of Jim and Kay Wilson and Mrs. Myrtle Stickrod, 628 Bunting, were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stickrod, sporting beautiful tans after two weeks of sun bathing at Miami Beach, Fla.

The Meadows welcomes Fred and Tina Teller, and children, Craig and Nancy, who have just moved from New Jersey. Tuesday, Kay Wilson and Mrs. Stickrod had Tina as the guest of honor at a party to meet 16 of her new neighbors.

Fun with the younger set included an afternoon spent in Chicago with luncheon and a movie with Aunt Bette Mikolasek for Heidi Halabrin, a birthday supper party for David Strahan, 609 Larkdale, with guests Linda Carleau, Susan Wielonték, Jimmy Eurich, Kim Christenson, Mark Roos and Jimmy Waldron to help blow out the candles on the cake. On Saturday the Strahan children were treated to a matinee at the Ice Capades by their parents, Phyllis and Don.

Johnny Rateike had as his second birthday guests his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Anna Rateike, Arlington Heights, his maternal great - grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Shepherd of Des Plaines, Kay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Eppler of Barrington, and Kay's sisters, Karyl and Bette Shepherd of Chicago. Also included were the Norman Pfortmiller family and the Harold Benharts, all of Roselle. (AM

Open House Sunday At Catholic School

Richard A. Cowen, 124 N. Gibbons Ave., Arlington Heights, will be guest of honor this Sunday at an open house in Northfield Township.

The open house, sponsored by Miss Sheri Loyd, executive board member of the Northfield Young Republican Organization, is being held to introduce Northfield YR's to Cowen, who is a candidate for chairman of the Young Republican Organization of Cook County.

Cowen, currently treasurer of the county YR organization, was given unanimous endorsement in his bid for chairman earlier this month by members of the Wheeling Township Young Republican Club.

"I FEEL confident of Dick Cowen's success," Miss Loyd explained. "His qualifications for this office far exceed those of his opponents and his fine record of service to the Republican Party is not to be overlooked."

The open house will be held in Miss Loyd's home, 2284 Asbury Road, Northbrook.

Members of the county YR organization will meet for their annual convention May 11 and 12 in Chicago's LaSalle Hotel to elect the county chairman. (ACM

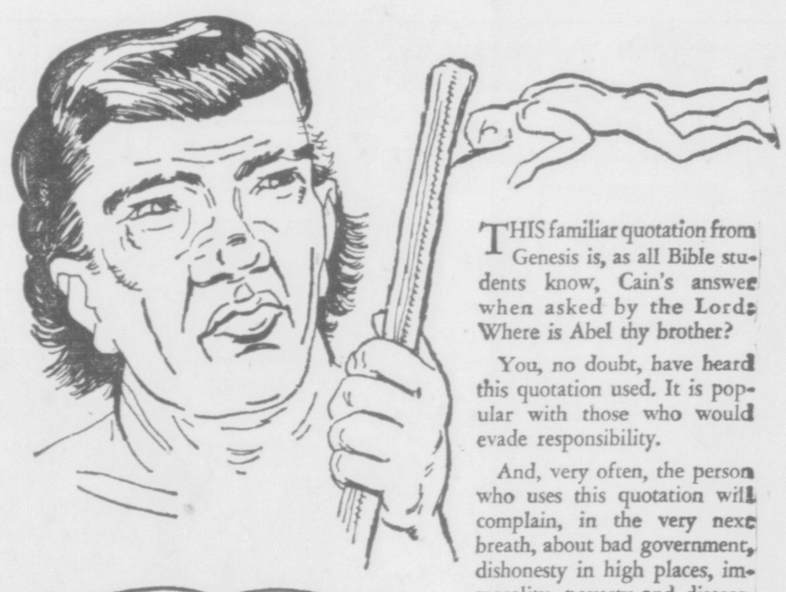
Your Keeper
"Am I my brother's keeper?" — Genesis 4:9



THIS familiar quotation from Genesis is, as all Bible students know, Cain's answer when asked by the Lord: Where is Abel thy brother?

You, no doubt, have heard this quotation used. It is popular with those who would evade responsibility.

And, very often, the person who uses this quotation will complain, in the very next breath, about bad government, dishonesty in high places, immorality, poverty and disease. These people make no attempt to do anything about their complaints.

These things and the other ills of the world would not exist if we acted as our brother's keeper.

Because we are; each unto the other.

The new squadron, known as the Skokie Valley Power Squadron, will draw its membership largely from suburbs in an area from Glenview west to the Fox River and north to Lake Zurich.

Meetings are held at the Deerfield Park District Fieldhouse. The purpose of the U.S. P.S. is to promote better boat handling and seamanship, as well as safety on the water and to cooperate with the agencies to the U.S. Government, such as the Coast Guard and the Navy.

COURSES IN Piloting, Seamanship, Advanced Piloting, and Navigation are given, as well as elective courses on Weather, Engine Maintenance, and Sail.

These courses are offered at local high schools at night. The courses are open to both men and women; however membership in the Power Squadron is limited to male citizens of the United States over 18 years of age.

At the present time a class in Piloting and one in Seamanship are being given at Glenbrook High School on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Several more courses will be offered in September.

COMMANDER of the new Squadron id Dr. Eugene O. Nadeau of Northbrook. Palatine member is Frank Malone of 735 E. Morris Drive.

On Feb. 10, the new squadron was presented its charter at a dinner held at the officers club at Great Lakes Naval Station. (B-8

'Operation X' Is March 28

Mrs. William Andrew of Prospect Heights this week announced the names of the five election judges who will participate in "Operation (X) Election," the clinic on election procedures to be sponsored by the Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club on Wednesday, March 28.

Pauline Baugous, Carol Van Heltebrake, and Marguerite Tuttle will act as Republican judges, while Jeanne Thorsen and Lee Koeneman will serve as the judges of the Democratic Party. Mrs. Thorsen is the president of the Wheeling Township Women's Democratic organization.

THOSE WHO attend the clinic will have an opportunity to see a typical precinct judges' "work day" - from the time they arrive to check the readiness of the polling place at 5 a.m. to the time the last vote is counted and records completed.

As possible problem cases are presented, Al Steinbrink, assistant to the Cook County Commissioner of Elections, will serve as the authority on correct election procedure. Questions from the floor will be welcomed.

Barring a delay in shipment from New York, one of the new electronic voting machines which will be given a "trial run" in Wheeling Township for the Primary Election April 10, will be a part of the polling place set-up on stage for the clinic.

FOLLOWING THE meeting, Willard Fleckenger, custodian of voting machines for Cook County, will demonstrate to all judges present the proper use of these new machines. This will be the only instruction given prior to April 10.

All interested voters are invited, and the club has extended a special invitation to all judges and precinct captains and workers of both parties in Wheeling and surrounding townships. (ACM

Speakers Slated

Democrat Volunteers Set Friday Program

"Primary Elections and the Democratic Process" will be the subject of discussion tomorrow night, Friday, when Douglas B. Anderson, executive assistant to U.S. Sen. Paul Douglas, and John H. O'Dowd, director of development of the John Marshall Law School, address a meeting of the Wheeling Township Democratic Volunteers.

The meeting, open to the public free of charge, will begin at 8:15 p.m. at the VFW Hall, Northwest Highway at Yale, Arlington Heights.

ALTHOUGH both Anderson and O'Dowd are liberal Democrats, they have divergent views on such questions as the open vs. the closed primary, the nature of party discipline in a democratic society, the role and function of the so-called "independent" voter, and the value and danger of pressure groups in government, according to Norbert Hruby, Volunteers' president.

These questions will be argued by the speakers before the meeting is opened into a forum for public discussion, presided over by Hruby.

"No matter how sophisticated a person is in politics," Hruby said, "he will find that he can learn something from these two committed professional observers.

MR. ANDERSON has been in practical politics for more than 15 years, and Mr. O'Dowd, though a young man, has held top editorial posts with newspapers in two American trouble spots.

"Both have seen the inside of politics, and both are willing to speak frankly of what they have seen."

Anderson was born in Chicago in 1900, served in World War I, after which he earned degrees at Northwestern University and Garrett Biblical Institute. Ordained a Methodist minister, he served in various churches for 15 years.

IN THE 1948 election, he was a member of the campaign committee to elect Paul Douglas to the Senate. After Douglas' election, Anderson became his executive assistant in charge of the Senator's Chicago office, a post he has held to the present.

John O'Dowd, Michigan-born but South Carolina-bred, had a newspaper career before becoming an educator. After graduation from The Citadel in 1949, he worked first as a reporter, then city editor, of the Florence (S. C.) Morning News, and afterwards as assistant state editor of the Waco (Texas) Tribune and Times Herald.

Under his leadership, the Florence Morning News became the first in the South to support the Supreme Court decision on segregation.

FOR ITS coverage of this historic event, his paper received a national citation from the AP Managing Editors Association. In 1956 he joined the editorial staff of the Chicago Sun-Times.

He left journalism for education in 1957 when he became dean of students at the University of Chicago's University College. Last year he became the executive officer of the John Marshall Law School. (ACM

31 Girls in Cast

Orchesis to Present Its Interpretations

Arlington high's Orchesis group will present their annual interpretive dance program Friday and Saturday night, March 23 and 24, at 8 p.m. in the school's Little Theater.

The show, "Interpretations 1962," will feature a variety of dance types, according to director, Mrs. Martha Weldon.

THE PROGRAM'S 15 "acts" include comedy numbers, light and modern variations, and contemporary interpretations. Some 31 Arlington girls are in the "cast."

Tickets will be available at the door.

"The girls have done their own choreography and costuming," Mrs. Weldon pointed out. "We feel that the show will be entertaining and artistic."

Special lighting effects will enhance the numbers, the director indicated.

One number, "Moods of the Spectrum,' combines changes in lighting, music, and mood to illustrate the "colors" or moods of life. This dance was arranged by Jan Ferry and Linda Johnson, who interpret it with a third dancer, Kathy Klehm.

"THE JOKERS" features fantasy, fun, and frolic as choreographed by Jan Miller and danced by Peggy Miley, Maureen Slater, Gail Hardison, Joan Wilcox, Daryl Down, Linda Mittag, and Sue Tapley.

A modern interpretation of sleepwalking was choreographed by Yvonne Hartwig and Karen Alkire, who join Sue Tapley and Linda Johnson in the dance.

Other numbers include a few solos, three duets, and other group presentations.

Participants designed and made their costumes for the show. (ACM

Trustees Reject Bids On Machine, Tower

Bids on a street line striping machine and a fire training tower were rejected Monday night by the Arlington Heights village board, and both items will be re-advertised.

There were four bidders on supplying the machine to paint lines on streets: R. H. Lyons, $936.88; Kelly - Creswell Co, $954; Unimaseo, Inc., $1,082; Schuster Equipment Co., $1,-209.15; Wald Industries Inc., $1,389.82.

Village Manager L. A. Hanson had originally recommended acceptance of the low bid of the Lyons company after checking out its references and the people it had sold equipment to.

LATER, he said, he found out that the company had changed models and purchasers of the newer models apparently were having some difficulties with them.

Because of this, Hanson recommended rejection of all bids, and the board concurred.

On construction of a fire training tower for the village fire department, six bids were submitted, with the bid of the T. L. Berry Construction Co. of Lyons, Ill., substantially lower than the others.

THE BIDS were: Berry, $4,-589; J. S. Drew Construction Co., Palatine, $6,350; Victor Kowiecski, Arlington Heights, $7,980; Al Sander, Arlington Heights, $8,382; Bullerman, Des Plaines, $8,588; and Palonia Construction Co., Chicago, $8,-940.

On checking out the bids for accuracy, Hanson said it was discovered Berry had neglected to quote some items.

Since his bid was much lower than any of the others, and the only one under the budget amount of $6,000, Hanson recommended the bids be rejected and he be allowed to negotiate with the Berry company for a price less than the next highest bid.

Some members of the board, notably Trustee Sanuel Wit, believed this would be giving an unfair advantage to Berry.

SINCE THE other bidders complied with the terms, why give Berry preference, he said. Trustee Eugene Schlickman argued that the Berry bid was the only one under the $6,000 budget, and he understood the missed items would add only $800 to the Berry bid, still leaving it under the budget and under the next lowest bid.

The majority vote of the board, with President John C. Woods voting to break a 2-2 tie, elected to reject the bids and re-advertise, rather than negotiate on the basis of the bids submitted. Two board members were absent. (A

Q. When a man is taking a girl to a nightclub, should he escort her to their table before excusing himself to go to the men's room?

A. Yes. It is the girl's privilege to go to the powder room first, but the man should always get his companion properly seated at their table before leaving her.

Lions Club Speaker

'Too Many Farmers,' Mag Editor Claims

Too many farms, too many farmers, too much food, and too high price supports. That just about sums up the problem of agriculture in our nation's economy, according to Dr. Paul C. Johnson, editor of Prairie Farmer magazine.

The farmer's plight and the nation's food problem were aired before the Arlington Heights Lions Club Tuesday.

The speaker launched an educational program inspired by Carl F. Mees, chairman of County Extension Service, which will be offered to service clubs and civic organizations in Cook County.

"SINCE THE number of farmers has dwindled in this country from 35 per cent of the population in 1910 to five per cent today, the farmer is no longer as strong a voice in his behalf," said Johnson.

"It will be up to the urban dweller to help solve the farmer's problems. The purpose of these programs is to arm this rapidly growing group of urbanites with the facts so that they can understand and help resolve these problems. The population shift has placed the farmer's perplexities on the shoulders of this urban society."

"Governmental price supports have magnified our surpluses and their consequences by helping to maintain marginal land and marginal farmers in a business where they do not belong.

"STATESMEN FEAR that knocking out price supports may herald a collapse of our economy, a deluge of unemployment, and some still fear the farmer's ballot," Johnson explained.

Other facts Johnson exposed were:

—Number of farms has been cut in half the last 20 years. Increased efficiency, better management, and much greater investment have increased our food supply so that one man in 20 feeds the other 19.

In contrast, Russia requires 50 to 60 per cent of its population to feed the balance.

—FOOD PRICES the farmer receives have dropped 7 per cent in the last 10 years, while other prices have advanced 23 per cent. The farmer can withstand this because he is more efficient and his yield is greater.

—In spite of reduction in agricultural man power, America has not starved but produced an over abundance of food stuffs, reducing the cost of living.

The average family today spends about 20 per cent on food, preparing and packaging, while the Russian family spends 60 per cent of its income for food.

—THE AVERAGE farm requires an investment of $100,000. It takes far better educated and trained help to properly manage a business of this size.

—The farmer's problem is deep seated. Price supports keep over one and one-half million people on farms that should be placed elsewhere. Eighty million acres of land would be better put to use in reforestation and water conservation projects. This is poor land with poor productivity.

—It is not easy to find the answer and effect it because we are naturally adverse to letting prices drop and some people go bankrupt. But some day the nation and the farmer will have to face the prospect of "slugging it out" with nature's law of supply and demand.

HE MUST be prepared to be strong enough to withstand the struggle, and the nation must stand ready, if necessary, to help the intelligent farmer who is working the productive land, and maintain an adequate food supply for our country's needs.

"The adjustment will be hard to take," Johnson said. "Our society will have to share in the responsibility of the displacement and retraining of these people. Until such time, we are only abetting a false economy and a false market." (A

Withhold Approval of Ridge Estates Plats

Approval of the plats of Pioneer Ridge Estates near Pioneer Park, which will be developed with $35,000 to $40,000 homes, was held up temporarily by the Arlington Heights village board Monday night to consider offering a concession to the developer in view of special circumstances.

The property, which borders the north end of Pioneer Park and is bounded by Sigwalt, Fernandez, Grove and Kaspar, has recently been purchased by a family firm, the Sellergren brothers of Park Ridge.

The previous owners were challenging in court the R-2 zoning of the area, seeking to build on smaller lots. The Sellergrens redesigned the layout to meet the R-2 requirements, and in so doing lost, in effect, five lots.

THE PLAN commission noted this loss, as well as the fact that the village will not have to bear costs of court action now, and recommended the Sellergrens not be assessed the full amount of money which ordinarily would be due the village in lieu of land dedication for public purposes.

Another consideration is that the developers will put in a sewer extension necessary because of the redesigned layout at a cost of about $2,000.

Normally, 10 per cent of the assessed valuation is required in lieu of land dedication, but this would amount to perhaps $8,000 or $9,000 and the plan commission suggested that because of the already considerable cost to the developers, this be reduced to $4,500.

THE COMMISSION also recommended that this fee be payable on a per-lot basis, $100 each time a building permit was issued for one of the 45 lots, to ease the financial burden.

The board decided to look into the situation further before acting, although it appeared sympathetic to the developer's situation, and will take action at an adjourned meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. (A

Books on Gardening Now at Library Here

By BETTY AINSLIE

Spring is a shy miss, reluctant to get her feet soiled by the dirty snow winter has left carelessly about. But the flowers, balmy breezes and sunshine are bound to arrive sometime and gardeners who can hardly wait to get some black soil on their hands can do their reading on the subject of gardening now.

Your Arlington Heights library has several shelves of information and brightly illustrated books on flowers and plantings. Everything from planning your own landscaping or starting a rose garden, to the care and feeding of blooming shrubs will be found between the covers of books.

A NEW giant-size book for the horticulturist and plain gardener is called "Flowering Trees of the World." This large edition by Edwin A. Menninger is the first and only comprehensive work on tropical flowering trees, and the 425 illustrations are all in full color.

"The Wonderful Life of Flowers," by Paul Jaeger, also has elaborate and life-like colored pictures. This book discusses, along with the problems of the home gardener, the effect of heat and light on flowers.

If you have a flower-growing shrub, planting or tree trimming problem you'll find the answer in a set of encyclopedias called "New Illustrated Garden Encyclopedia," brought out by the Greystone Press. The author, T. H. Everett, is assistant horticulturist and curator of education at the New York Botonical Gardens.

WHETHER you tenderly care for one rose, fifty or five hundred, you'll find that "Roses For Every Garden," by R. C. Allen, will offer you some hints on better blooms you may never have thought about.

"Orchids For Home and Garden" by T. A. Fennell Jr. shows how you may raise these delicate plants in your own living room.

A fragile, many - colored flower, the African violet, has long been a favorite of growers in every climate. Montague Free has written a book to help the indoor gardener in "All About African Violets."

Elizabeth Lawrence has written a practical and yet humorous small book called "The Little Bulbs," which tells of her experience in gardening in North Carolina. She also shares with you her correspondence with friends who may have your same gardening problems.

A few others among many in the 635.9 classification in the library are: "The Book of Planters" by Robert Scharff; "Lawns and Landscaping" by T. H. Everett; "Hanging Flower and Plant Decorations" by Zelda Schrilke; and "A Garden For You" by Thomas C. O'Donnell. (A

Hospital Lists New 'Emergency' Service

New facilities, procedures and a public-information program are underway at Northwest Community Hospital for its emergency room service.

The "new look" in the emergency room is aimed at better serving the public and aiding both the hospital and staff physicians to give and get the most efficient and effective value from the emergency room facilities, hospital spokesmen stated.

One of the major changes in the revamped 24-hour emergency-room operation is the opening of a new examination room to increase facilities and to help patients get faster service.

IN ADDITION to the existing emergency treatment room, examination rooms, office and waiting facilities, plans have been completed to open the hospital surgical recovery ward to emergency patients should an overflow occur in the existing areas. The recovery ward, normally not used during evening hours when most emergency patients arrive, adjoins the emergency aid station.

To help the public get the best and fastest service from the emergency room, the hospital has issued a booklet stressing recommended procedures to be followed in event emergency care is needed.

Major emphasis is placed on calling the victim's doctor before going to the hospital unless delay may be dangerous. A call to the hospital to indicate the patient is "on the way" also will speed service, hospital officials emphasize.

IN THE EVENT the patient must be rushed to the emergency room immediately, hospital spokesmen urge that a member of the family or a neighbor call while the victim is being taken to the hospital.

Stress on trying to contact the patient's doctor is given by the hospital. Alan B. Campbell, hospital administrator, points out that a call to a family physician may be the fastest way to get emergency care, particularly if the doctor is in his office and able to treat the patient there to avoid the delay of his travel to the hospital.

"Another advantage is that the patient's doctor may be able to give advice on immediate first aid that may be important," Campbell noted.

"PROBABLY MOST important is the fact that a patient's own doctor can provide hospital personnel with exact information as to your condition so that everything can be ready on arrival at the hospital," Donald W. Snyder, assistant administrator, said.

"Even in an emergency, patients should realize that the family doctor is familiar with the individual medical history and would probably have information crucial to treatment," Snyder added.

"The family doctor can best prescribe treatment as he knows the patient's reaction to certain drugs, allergies and physical defects," Snyder emphasized.

BOTH administrators pointed out this did not mean the hospital was trying to discourage patients from using the emergency room, but they stressed the family doctor was a vital part of effective treatment and should be the first called in an emergency, if possible.

Treatment in the emergency room is not on a "first come, first served" basis but will be given according to the urgency of a patient's condition.

A resident doctor is always present in the building and additional doctors are "on call" if needed. The emergency room is staffed by qualified professional medical workers, with specialists available if needed.

HOSPITAL spokesmen warn that some delays may be encountered at the emergency room. If a more urgent case arrives, care will be given to the most critical patient. The X-ray and laboratory departments are closed after 4:30 p.m. and if service is needed after regular closing hours there will be a delay while the technician "on call" goes back to the hospital.

Carry-out prescriptions for narcotics can only be dispensed by a registered pharmacist. These will be available only from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on all other days. Medication other than narcotics will be available for emergency use.

Other regulations require the hospital to have written consent for treatment. In the case of unmarried minors—in Illinois women under 18 and men under 21—consent of one or both parents is required. The only exception to these regulations is in cases of extreme emergency.

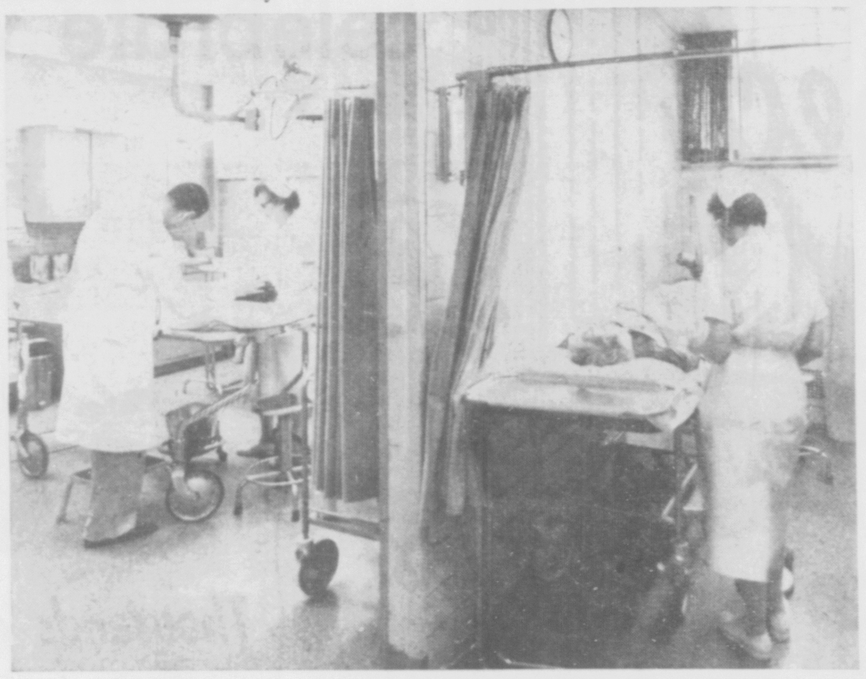
TO AVOID misunderstanding, the hospital has established a standard price manual on a sliding scale to cover the extent of care given. Minimum emergency room fee is $8 which includes the services of a house physician.

Payment for emergency room care is expected following treatment unless the patient is covered by Blue Cross, Workmen's Compensation or school insurance. Hospital spokesmen hasten to add that no patient would be turned away because of lack of funds.

With the new facilities, hospital spokesmen emphasize their hope to give "even better service than before" to emergency room patients. In 1961 there were 7,801 patients treated in the emergency room, an average of 22 patients every 24 hours.

Unfortunately, according to the hospital staff, this does not mean only one patient every hour since trouble seems to arrive in groups.

They do stress it does mean adequate facilities to care for all emergency case loads encountered to date—with a wide "extra" margin for additional service. (B8



EXTRA SPACE FOR emergency room treatment of patients has been added by Northwest Community Hospital to increase service to community residents. In addition to the two treatment rooms shown here, an additional examining area has been built and arrangements made to open the surgical recovery ward for emergency room patients when a large group of emergency victims arrive at the same time. Here a hospital resident physician and registered nurse care for one patient in the central emergency room while another nurse gives preliminary care to another patient before the arrival of the doctor.

Pass Law to Prevent Tax on Suburbanites

LANSING, MICH., (UPI) — A prohibition against a city income tax being levied on nonresidents Tuesday gained approval in the Michigan House of Representatives.

The bill, introduced by Rep. John Bowman, D-Roseville, was aimed at preventing Detroit from taxing the income of suburban residents who work in the city.

Suburban Democrats were joined by Republicans to pass the measure by a 63-40 vote.

Bowman said the suburban residents who work in the city should not be taxed under any income tax the city officials might pass in the future.

"We recognize that the city has its financial problems, but the people in the suburbs are taxed up to our ears," Bowman said. "We hope the Detroit people realize that we have problems, too."

DETROIT representatives fought Bowman's bill on the principle that it might be extended at some future time to mean a state income tax could not be imposed on Michigan workers who do not live in the state.

Rep. Michael O'Brien, Detroit, said the city faced the prospect of being made a "ghost town" by the constant expansion of highways which "provide the means to get in and out — but mostly out — of the city of Detroit." (B8

Making Final Plans For 'Scout-O-Rama'

Frank B. Newton, Scout executive of the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America, will soon complete the direction and production of his 16th annual and consecutive Scout show, as final plans for the huge Scout-O-Rama to be held at O'Hare International Airport on May 5 and May 6 are being made, according to Harold English, president of the council.

Newton has been Scout executive of the council for the past four years, and in 1959 directed the first of the annual series of Scout-O-Ramas to be staged by the Scout council.

According to Newton, the 1962 Scout-O-Rama being staged by the council, will be the biggest outdoor Scout show to be staged any place in the middle west.

OVER 14,000 Scouts and adult leaders will make up the cast for the two performances, and approximately 67,000 persons are expected to view this spectacular Scout event.

Cubs, Scouts and Explorers have begun selling 50 cent general admission tickets for the show since March 19th, and the sale will continue through the time of the final performance on May 6th.

Newton is a resident of Mount Prospect; is a member of the Park Ridge Kiwanis Club, the Des Plaines Elks Club, and President of the Northwest Suburban Welfare Council.

The Northwest Suburban Council is an active, participating member of the Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Suburban Community Chests, the Skokie Valley United Crusade, the United Fund of Park Ridge, Inc., the Barrington United Drive, the Mount Prospect Combined Appeal, the Prospect Heights Annual Appeal, and the Palatine Community Combined Appeal. KICKIN' IT AROUND

by BOB FRISK

IT'S NEWS WHEN SOMEONE today decries the jump shot in basketball.

You hear it described as the reason why defenses no longer are valid in the hardwood sport.

A lone detractor is Dolph Stanley, veteran coach now at Rockford Auburn. Stanley brought Equality (1934), Mt. Pulaski (1936) and Taylorville twice (1940 and 1944) to the state tourney and later coached the red-hot Beloit College team. So his opinions are respected.

"We don't go much for jump shooting," Stanley declared before the tournament firing got under way three weeks ago. "When you shoot a jump shot you're out of rebounding position, you can't fake or execute a change of pace. We like to go in for the layups," he said.

Dolph continued, "We emphasize ball-handling. That Collinsville team last year wouldn't have been able to use that loose zone-press against my 1944 Taylorville team. Those kids were ball-handlers. They'd have gone right through that kind of defense."

He also is a firm believer in the man-to-man defense although, he noted, his Auburn team faced zone defenses regularly throughout the regular schedule.

Insofar as a match between that Taylorville powerhouses and the classy Collinsville Kahoks of 1960-61, we admit it would be an interesting tussle although we never saw Taylorville play. However, both clubs had only real challenger en route to the state championships.

The Taylorville Tornadoes, featuring such hot-shots as Johnny Orr and Ron Bontemps, had a 40-36 squeeker with Champaign in the tourney semi-finals before crushing Elgin for the title. Once Collinsville made it to Huff Gym there was no stopping this hardwood machine, but the Kahoks were pushed to the limit by Centralia before winning the Super-Sectional encounter, 66-64.

ELDORADO I SA NEW name among sites for a big tournament, but its new gym served admirably Tuesday evening for the Super-Sectional clash between Marion and McLeansboro.

The Eldorado palace seats 4200 comfortably, has an elaborate scoreboard which gives just about everything but the birthplaces of the players, has drinking fountains at each bench and has a clock at each end so both teams always are aware of the time.

There are no posts in the gym to obscure vision of some fans, so all seats are good ones.

Eldorado is a school of 450.

BASKETBALL FANS WERE stunned recently at the bizarre turn of events that took place in the Waterloo, Ill., District tournament but no more so than the victorious Freeburg quintet.

Freeburg was swamping Valmeyer, 95-41, with a minute to play and was still in a full-court press. The Valmeyer coach, Vern Tomlinson, got a time out and instructed his players to hand the ball over to the Freeburg team each time they gained possession.

Fans and Freeburg players were taken back at the sight of Valmeyer players passing the ball to Freeburg players for easy baskets. Freeburg wound up a 105-41 winner.

Tomlinson said afterwards, "I just figured if they wanted 100 points that bad, I'd help them."

HAVE YOU NOTICED A lessening of criticism of officials during tournament time?

Maybe you haven't, and perhaps you think there hasn't been any change. Actually, you hear little complaints from participating coaches, because the coaches, in effect, select the officials.

Under the former system the Illinois High School Association assigned all the tournament officials. It still assigns them but is guided by lists compiled by the coaches at special meetings for this purpose.

The coaches are asked to agree at these meetings, held around the state, on a list of the top 20 officials in their area. Each then is asked to rate the 20 in the order they prefer them.

Later Al Willis and Milt Sprunger of the IHSA make up assignments, using the preference lists as far as possible. Sometimes there are conflicts because several areas may rate th same men as tops.

With 5,000 officials in the state the Illinois High School Association is happy to have the guidance of the coaches in choosing the best whistlers.

Chicago Champion Rolls On

by BOB FRISK

Carver's deliberate Challengers, a leading exponent of the old-fashioned but still effective ball control game, advanced into the Elite Eight of Illinois schoolboy basketball with a 48-42 victory over St. Patrick of Chicago Tuesday afternoon in the Super-Sectional contest at Northwestern's McGaw Hall.

Working methodically for every shot and giving the rangy Shamrocks a lesson in rebounding, the Chicago Public League champions vaulted into the lead to stay with one minute remaining in the first period and held on for the crucial victory.

With the victory the Carver quintet advanced into Friday's quarterfinals against Centralia, winner of the East St. Louis Sectional with an impressive 78-66 conquet of Belleville. Game time will be 3 p.m. at George Huff Gymnasium in Champaign.

Eight thousand rans witnessed the hardwood spectacle between the two Chicago entries, and their enthusiasm (or lack of it) reflected the tempo of play on the floor. Only twenty-eight points were scored in the first half with Carver enjoying a 17-11 bulge.

ST. PAT'S, the Arlington Sectional titlist, fell farther behind as Carver hit seven straight points midway in the third period, and although the Shamrocks moved to within four with 5:50 remaining in the game, they couldn't come any closer.

Trailing 35-25 at the outset of the fourth period, the Shamrocks started to come alive. Frank Hollendoner, St. Pat's 6-foot-10 junior pivotman, bagged a two-pointer and 6-foot-2 Joe Meier netted one from the side. With 5:50 remaining Hollendoner slipped by Carver's 6-foot-6 Joe Allen for a layup and now the Shamrocks were within four (35-31).

Three minutes later Carver held an 11-point lead and was coasting home with the victory.

THE CHALLENGERS were able to turn on the power whenever the Shamrocks started to make some noise thanks to the close-in work of Allen and Cazzie Russell and the long-range sniping of 5-foot-7 Bruce Raickett.

Unable to hit from outside with any regularity against St. Pat's zone defense at the outset of the game, the Public League champs found the range in the slowed-down second period with Raickett and Russell rifling in side jump-

NORTHERN ILLINOIS University Coach Bill Healey presents 6-0 sophomore guard George Bork with ball Bork used to set NIU home-court record of 44 points in Huskies' 110-74 win over Winona State during 1961-62 season. Presentation followed season in which Bork led NIU scorers with 21.7 average, won Interstate Conference scoring crown with 20.2 average, was named Northern's most valuable player and honorary co-captain, led voting for All-IIAC team, and won IIAC MVP award, first for a Northern player since the loop's first honor poll in 1951. Bork holds Arlington High School career and season scoring records, was West Suburban Conference scoring champ as senior prep two years ago.

Cards' Tennis Units Prepare for Openers

The state champions from Evanston High School will furnish the opposition next Wednesday afternoon as Arlington's veteran-stocked tennis squad kicks off its ambitious 1962 schedule.

Competition is slated to get under way at 4 p.m. on the Evanston courts with both the varsity and frosh-soph units of Arlington launching their schedules.

Ken Schaller and Rog Steingraber again are directing the fortunes of the two teams at Arlington.

BLESSED WITH the return of six of his top seven boys, Schaller has reason to express some optimism over the forthcoming campaign, and he's arranged a formidable schedule for his veteran outfit.

Following the opener with the state champs from Evanston, the Cardinals will hook up with perennially powerful New Trier on Friday, March 30. Two rough quadrangulars at LaGrange and Blue Island and duals with Niles East and Waukegan will precede the actual West Suburban competition which gets underway on Tuesday, April 24, at Hinsdale, home of the league champs for the past seven years.

Graduation took top singles player Bill Thompson, but carrying Arlington's hopes for 1962 will be letterwinners Tom Benson, Bob Bohac, Chuck Close, Rusty Walters, and Dave Wollerman and sophomore Jim Jakubiec, who saw extensive varsity action as a plebe.

AS THE Cardinals prepare for their season opener, either soph Rick Wollerman or junior Jim Tindall will be filling that seventh position behind the six veterans.

Arlington blossomed into a first-class net power last spring when it pushed Hinsdale's always-powerful Red Devils to the limit in the West Suburban title scramble.

Possessor of a 3-2 victory over Hinsdale in dual meet competition and a 7-0 West Suburban record, the varsity Cards fell one point short of the Red Devils in the final battle for team supremacy. At one time in the 1961 campaign Schaller's red-hot varsity rolled up 14 straight dual meet triumphs.

HEADING THE Arlington returnees is Benson, a two-time letterwinner who annexed the No. 2 singles crown in the West Suburban as a junior. Tom posted a 22-2 mark last year and whipped Hinsdale's Kappy Pielet 6-2, 6-4 for the loop crown. As a sophomore, Benson was runnerup in No. 3 singles in the WSC, losing to Pielet on that occasion.

Bohac, also a possessor of two varsity letters in tennis, reached the league finals in No. 3 singles last spring before falling to Hinsdale's Bill Ninnes, 3-6, 9-7, 6-0.

TOM BENSON

Wollerman, Close, Walters, and Jakubiec worked primarily in doubles in 1961. Wollerman is a senior with Close and Walters both juniors and Jakubiec a sophomore.

ARLINGTON WILL be facing another powerful Evanston team when it journeys to the Wildkits' courts next Wednesday. The Suburban League entry has several veterans back from its championship squad, including talented Dave Power who picked off the No. 1 singles crown in state action.

Prospect High School's Knights are not slated to initiate their net schdule until Tuesday, April 10, when they will host Maine West.

WSC Outfit Rolls To Easy Victory

by DICK GOTTSEGEN

There was no doubt about it.

The Dukes of York Community High journeyed to Aurora Tuesday evening with but one thought in mind.

They came to win!

The Elmhurst crew hammered Thornton High of Harvey, 84-63, at the Aurora East Super-Sectional, and in the process treated a capacity crowd to one of the most spectacular exhibitions of pinpoint shooting seen in these parts for some time.

AND BECAUSE of their efforts, the West Suburban Conference runners-up have earned the school's first trip to Champaign. The Dukes, now 25-3 for the season, will tackle McLeansboro (24-5) in the opening quarter-final contest at the University of Illinois' Huff Gym.

Game-time has been set for 1:15 p.m.

Thornton's Wildcats, runners-up in the state behind Collinsville last year, simply were no match for the torrid York quintet.

Utilizing an explosive fast break, the Dukes literally ran the Wildcats off the floor. With Bob Rudolph and George Johnson virtually monopolizing the defensive backboard, York consistently beat Thornton on every probe downcourt.

THE WILDCATS attempted to slow the Dukes down with a three-quarter-court zone press. This tactic backfired, however, as Thornton chronically neglected to cover Johnson under the basket.

Once again, York's defense clicked with precision. Deployed in a man-to-man alignment, the victors forced the harassed Wildcats in to a state of confusion.

Thornton's Leon Clark, who is every bit as good as he has been cracked up to be this season, was a hard man t ocontain, but, for some strange reason, the Wildcat star was provided with surprisingly few opportunities to score.

YET, WHEN he did get his hands on the ball he knew just what to do and where to move. Clark finished up as Thornton's high scorer with 19 counters four more than teammate John McKibben's production.

Balance once again paid off handsomely for York as all five Duke starters cashed in in double figures. Don Anderman and Jim Dawson led the way with 20 and 18 points respectively while Al Malecha, Johnson and Rudolph chipped in 15, 13 and 12 in that order.

Only during the opening minutes of the first quarter was the ultimate outcome of the game actually in doubt. The two squads played on even terms for the first five-and-one-half minutes before York blasted the battle wide open.

WITH THE score tied at eight-apiece, Malecha dropped in a 15-foot jump shot to push York to the front, 10-8. Rudolph hit a short jumper, Malecha scored on the business end of a fast break and Johnson converted a free throw as the Elmhurst lead mushroomed to seven points, 15-8.

Clark and Bob Covert rammed home back-to-back baskets as Thornton narrowed the gap to three points with 12 seconds to go in the period, but a three-point play by Malecha enabled York to open an 18-12 bulge at the buzzer.

The red-hot Dukes really poured on the coal at the outset of the second period. Dawson fired home a jump shot from the corner and then dunked a 20-foot set.

ANDERMAN followed with a layup despite being fouled by Covert, and then canned the free throw as the Dukes now led by 13, 25-12.

The end had come for Coach Bill Purden's Wildcats. Scoring at will, York opened up a couple of 15-point leads during that second session, and still maintained a decisive 43-21 advantage at the intermission.

It was at the outset of the third quarter that Thornton mustered

McLeansboro Tops Marion; York Next

ELDORADO, ILL., (UPI) — Tiny McLeansboro connected on 15 of 16 free throw attempts in the game and withstood a desperate Marion press defense in the fourth quarter to eke-out a 53-52 win in the Super-Sectional here Tuesday night.

McLeansboro, smallest of the "Elite Eight" with an enrollment of 465, thus qualified for the school's first trip to Champaign and ran its record to 24-5. McLeansboro will meet York Friday at 1:15 p.m.

Twin brothers Jim and John Burns paced the victory with 21 and 11 points, respectively. Bill Johnson had 15 for Marion.

Marion led 27-24 at the half, but dropped behind 36-30 at the three-quarter mark as they connected on only one of 15 shots from the field in the frame.

Marion rallied for a 48-45 lead with 1:54 left in the game, but then the Burns twins took over for the winning Foxes. Jim Burns also controlled rebounds in a brilliant effort.

Marion scored 22 field goals to 19 for McLeansboro but hit only 8 of 14 free throw attempts.

Centralia Bumps Belleville, 78-66

...EAST ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — The Centralia Orphans, rolling to their 29th consecutive victory, downed the Belleville Maroons here Tuesday night 78-66 and gained the right to move into the finals of the Illinois prep basketball tournament.

Led by their aggressive guards, Don Duncan and Ron Johnson, Centralia broke the game open about midway in the final quarter to chalk up the win.

Although Belleville had a height advantage, the Orphans, who lost only their first two games of the season, dominated the play by outrebounding the losers and through the ball stealing tactics of Johnson and Duncan.

Belleville managed to stay even with the Orphans most of the way and held a 32-31 halftime advantage. The winners used a full court press throughout the contest.

Duncan led all scorers with 26 points and was followed by Johnson with 20. Barry Jackson was high man for Belleville with 17 points.

PRESENTING THE sectional championship trophy to St. Patrick's Wayne Locke and Joe Meier after the Shamrocks' convincing 84-57 victory over Maine East last Friday evening is Dr. Eugene Oliver, principal of host Arlington High School and the tourney manager.

Mac Says

by G. A. McELROY

IT IS STATE TOURNAMENT WEEK and basketball madness is at its peak in eight schools which will compete at Champaign Friday and Saturday. Eight disappointed ones fell by the wayside in super-sectionals Tuesday and some teams will not play at Champaign which are much stronger than those still in contention. After Bellville defeated unbeaten Madison in the sectional, anything can happen. We expect Centralia and Rock Island to make very strong bids for the title though they had two of the toughest Tuesday opponents of any of the entries.

Until St. Patrick came on the scene in the Arlington sectional we thought the area Northwest of the city was rather weak this year. St. Pat may go a long way. We expect it will polish off Carver's team Tuesday and then run head-on into Centralia in the last round at Champaign. The Shamrocks could win that and take the state with the shooting and the quality of talent on their team. In both sectional games they shot over 50%, taking only good shots and making them count. It is the first year a Chicago Catholic school has joined the association and competed in the tournaments.

Palatine did not look good losing to Maine East in the sectional but there should be no regrets. The team had a wonderful season, going much farther than expected. The Student Council at Palatine High hired a top orchestra and had a victory dance sock hop Saturday night to show the appreciation of the student body for a fine season. That final game always has to be a loser for that is the way the state tourney plan works. Anyway, John Seehausen and Ron Kozlicki played as well or better in that game than any Palatine cagers we have watched in 30 years. They were both at their best when the going was the toughest. That is the test which separates the great athletes from the run of the mill players.

Bob Haarlow, who scored 24 points as his team was beaten by one point by York in the sectional final, has had something like 75 college offers. All the Big 10 schools are after the 6'3" forward who has helped give Hinsdale a great season. Haarlow's dad is commissioner of Big 10 Conference basketball officials and was a Big 10 scoring leader himself at the University of Chicago a good many years ago.

ON MARCH 27 Mel Johnson, Geneva basketball coach, will be honored for his 34 years in the profession. His wife is a grade school principal and his oldest son, Ronald coached Kaneland to within one game of the state tourney last week, losing to Auburn of Rockford. Son Roger took over the LaGrange team when the head coach, Art Sandusky, was forbidden to appear at games by the state office after a run-in at a Maine Township game with a time keeper. Son Ken is a star of the Kaneland team coached by Ron.

Indoor track is under way and coach Ron Helberg in his second year as head coach has 180 boys out for the sport at Palatine. For the first time it appears that the Pirates are going to come up with some good transfer talent, particularly at the sophomore level where the grapevine indicates a potentially great shot putter and a 10-second 100-yard dash man are possibilities. All the track boys will have to be transported to the junior-senior school in town this year as a track has not yet been constructed at the new school. Andy Merutka, who broke the state shot put mark last year, is tossing the metal ball just as far indoors as he did at the state meet and he has his sights on a new mark well over 60 feet.

Arlington beat the Alumni in an post season game, 43-35, as Becker scored 15. Palatine and Bensenville will compete in the Naperville indoor relays with Audus and Kiefer heading the Bison squad coached by John Trapp. Coach McElroy of Palatine will enter Jim Langhoff and Klaus Timmerheaus, outstanding distance runners, in the mile run. . . . Over the past five years, Palatine basketball teams have won 86 and lost 19 and 8 of the 19 were in tournaments. The conference record for that period is 43-7. Lightweight teams in five years have won 54 and lost 23 and have a 38-12 Northwest Conference record. . . . In the past season with a 14-5 record the leading Palatine scorers were Howes 171, Schwolow 163, Harris 142, Warder 44, and Birks 39.

10 YEARS AGO (March 21, 1952)

Hebron is favored to win the state tourney this week. The Green Giants have a 46% shooting average for the season. . . . Palatine has 90 boys out for track from a student body of 400 and Coach Dick Welty is optimistic as 14 are lettermen. . . . Arlington voted Jay Vawter the honorary captain position in basketball for the past season. Vawter scored 415 points as the Cards lost 15 and won 7.

Vaughan, Zaehler Selected On All-Star Wrestling Unit

by BOB FRISK

Doug Vaughan and Wayne Zaehler, Prospect High School's two representatives in the state wrestling meet, were named to the Interim League's All-Star mat squad announced recently by the coaches.

Vaughan, a senior, was selected at 133 pounds, and Zaehler, a junior, was honored at 120 on the 12-man squad. One boy was named at each of the 12 weight classes.

The Foundry Road Knights and East Leyden landed two positions on the honor squad. Willowbrook, Deerfield, Proviso West, Glenbrook, Morton West, Niles West, Wheaton, and West Leyden each claimed one slot.

There are no repeaters from the 1960-61 all-star aggregation.

EAST LEYDEN won the Interim League wrestling championship for the 1961-62 season with a 9-2 record in dual meet competition. Glenbrook and Morton West tied for second with identical 8-2-1 standards.

Prospect's Knights finished fifth with seven victories, three setbacks, and a tie in their ten loop outings.

95 POUNDS

Willowbrook's Ed Leppert lost only one match all season, a heartbreaking 4-3 decision to Reavis' Bernie Mahaljevic in the state finals. Leppert, who had beaten Mahaljevic in the sectional finale, was 16-1 in his senior year.

En route to the title tussle in the state meet at Arlington the talented Willowbrook grappler dumped Savanna's Gary Grundall, 5-0; Quincy's Darrell Elsworth, 6-2; and Tilden Tech's Clarence Smith, 4-1.

103 POUNDS

Deerfield's Ted Parker, a sophomore, compiled an outstanding 22-1-1 record and finished third in the state meet. His only loss was a 3-1 decision to champion David Seward of Savanna in the state meet semi-finals. Ted came back for a 4-0 victory over East Aurora's Jim Orstead for consolation honors.

Parker pinned his three opponents in district competition, two of three in the sectional, and the first two men he faced in the state meet.

112 POUNDS

James Mentz of Proviso West is a junior who posted an impressive 12-2-1 record during the season. An outstanding competitor, Jim is headed for a big season in the 1962-63 campaign.

120 POUNDS

Only a junior, Prospect's Wayne Zaehler compiled an outstanding 19-7-1 mark and picked up the Knights' single point in state tourney action. After falling to Reavis' Tom Giambarberee in his opening bout in the state meet, Wayne came back for a 3-2 victory over Edwardsville's Bob Nelson. Zaehler bowed out with a 6-3 loss to Naperville's Bill Hoyt.

Hoyt was the only boy able to whip Zaehler on two occasions this winter. Wayne avenged three of his setbacks with victories over Mark Walker of Palatine and Henriksen of Niles West and a tie with Len Cecala of East Leyden.

Glenbrook's Bob Leider posted an impressive 22-3-1 record during the past season and was unbeaten in conference competition. He was third in the rough Waukegan Sectional tourney, just missing a trip downstate. Bob also was a standout in football last fall, earning all-league honors at end.

133 POUNDS

Prospect's Doug Vaughan lost only two bouts all season and one was to state champion Al Mejdrich of Downers Grove. The talented senior won district and sectional crowns but dropped a 9-5 bout to Waukegan's highly regarded Steve Bay in a first round bout in the state finals.

A varsity regular for three years, Vaughan served as captain of the Knights for 1961-62 and was "an excellent leader" according to coach Dick Mudge. Doug was unbeaten in dual meet competition, dropping both his matches in tourney action. Vaughan certainly has to rank as one of the finest wrestlers in the mat history of Prospect High School.

138 POUNDS

State champ Larry Foster of East Leyden was a one-sided choice for all-league honors at 138.

Foster claimed district and sectional crowns prior to grabbing state laurels and won a Waukegan Holiday tourney title in December. Larry is president of his senior class and was quaterback on the football team last fall.

145 POUNDS

Lee Olson of Morton West completed a brilliant wrestling career without a loss or tie in four years of dual meet competition. He was unbeaten in 67 matches over that period, and the only two setbacks on his phenomenal record were incurred in state tourney competition.

Lee was runner-up to Rich East's Marty Lyman in the state meet at Arlington after rolling up a 14-0 mark in the Interim League. Awarded the Booster Club's Outstanding Wrestler Award, Olson posted a Morton record of 33 wins by pins.

154 POUNDS

East Leyden's Tim Murphy won the district championship and finished second in the sectional behind state champ George McCreery of Palatine, but Tim dropped his first bout in the state finals to Stuart Marshall of Niles East. Murphy held McCreery to a tie earlier in the season.

165 POUNDS

Bob Herkert of Niles West claimed the state championship at 165 with an impressive 7-2 victory over Savanna's Richard Ernst. Herkert had difficulty in only one bout in the state meet, edging La Grange's Steve Hanau by one point in the semi-finals.

Herkert won the Prospect Invitational title during the holidays with a 6-2 victory over Downers Grove's Barry Ganek.

180 POUNDS

Gordon Heaton of Wheaton, who compiled an 18-6-2 record as a junior, was headed for bigger and better things this winter when an injury forced him out of the state tournament series. Heaton did own a victory over Morton West's Lee Mungai, fourth place finisher in the state at 180. Gordon was an all-league football tackle.

HEAVYWEIGHT

West Leyden's Duffy Knott captured the district and sectional crowns with victories over York's Eric Avery, but he lost to Avery in the third place battle in state competition.

One of Knott's two losses in the state finals was a 6-1 decision to state champ Bob Billberg of Waukegan.

A 6-foot-2, -pounder, Duffy was an all-league football tackle.

Sectional Finale

Shamrocks Roll Past Maine Demons, 84-57

Maine East's six-game winning streak and astonishing success along the tournament trail came to a skidding halt last Friday evening in the Arlington High School gymnasium.

The rangy Shamrcks of St. Patrick High School of Chicago overpowered coach Bernie Brady's determined but outmanned Blue Demons and coasted in with an 84-57 decision before a packed house.

Surprising the prep basketball world with its late-season surge and tourney success, the Park Ridge quintet simply met its match Friday and the contest was as good as over in the first period when the classy Shamrocks vaulted off to an 11-4 lead.

AFTER CLAIMING a tie with 5:10 remaining in the first stanza on Jeff Jonswald's free throw, the Blue Demons fell behind to stay as Joe Meier and 6-foot-10 Frank Hollendoner canned two quick baskets.

Handcuffed with the solid St. Pat's defense, Maine East went over seven minutes without scoring in the first half, rarely getting a good shot or more than one on each journey down the floor against the taller Shamrocks.

With the victory St. Pat's enjoying a big year as a member of the Illinois High School Association, earned the right to meet Chicago champion Carver in Tuesday's Super-Sectional encounter at Northwestern University's McGaw Hall.

RARELY HAS A team in recent years had as little trouble picking off the Arlington Sectional crown as the Shamrocks did last week. St. Pat's opened with an 18-point victory over Suburban League entry New Trier and then posted its 27-point triumph last Friday.

Taking the lead for good with five minutes remaining in the first period, coach Max Kurland's Shamrocks steadily pulled away from the Blue Demons with everyone but floor general Bill Geist getting into the offensive act.

Geist, a 6-foot-2 senior who rarely shoots but who does everything else well, scored only two points in the two tournament games, a third period layup against Maine. However, Geist is the "head" of the St. Pat's team and with those four other hot-shots pecking away, Bill doesn't have to do much scoring.

FOR THE second straight tourney game St. Pat's had four boys in double figures with 6-foot-2 Meier, a steady performer, collecting 22 for individual honors. Frank Hollendoner, the 6-foot-10 junior, added 19 though sitting out most of the second half and jumping-jack Wayne Locke and 6-foot-5 Tom Talaga netted 15 and 10 respectively.

Steve Smith, Maine East's 6-foot-5 pivotman, tossed in 22 points for the Blue Demons, but most of Steve's markers came when big Hollendoner was sitting on the bench. However, Smith played a fine game in his hardwood finale for Maine and received a well-deserved ovation from the four thousand fans in attendance when he departed late in the fourth period.

Taking an 11-4 lead into the second quarter Friday, St. Pat's clamped on a press and increased its margin to 28-8 in a matter of minutes as Hollendoner chipped in seven straight points. Frank bagged a free throw and Locke swished a 10-footer in the closing seconds of the first half to hand the Shamrocks a 38-17 bulge at the intermission.

ST. PAT'S didn't let up in the third period and held a 29-point lead with two minutes remaining. Hollendoner retired to the bench with three minutes left in that third period and St. Patrick on top, 47-22. He didn't return but it dodn't make much difference.

The reserves took over for the mighty Shamrocks midway in the fourth period and both clubs took turns at tossing in points with fifty-seven registered in the hectic windup.

ers and All-Stater Cazzie a one-hander from just outside the free throw arc.

The majority of Carver's baskets came from under the basket although Raickett's 15- and 20-footers helped keep the defense honest. Raickett finished with five baskets and two free throws for 12 points.

FOR A YOUNG man who reportedly had trouble with a bad knee, Carver's Allen handled himself pretty well, collecting the Challenger's first seven points, 18 for the evening, and turning in a solid effort at both boards.

Russell, the 6-foot-5 Carver guard who is one of the state's most highly regarded performers, only tallied eigh points, but also was tough under the boards. Russell has some exceptional moves, a fadeaway jump shot, and he drives hard in the offensive patterns.

Carver will carry a 25-4 standard into Friday's quarter-final game in Champaign.

its final rally of the evening. Trailing by 13, 48-35, with 6:19 left in the period, the Wildcats struck.

Covert batted home a rebound but Malecha hit a free throw and York still led by 12, 49-37. But in quick succession, Clark, Reuben Poindexter and McKibben found the mark as Thornton narrowed the gap to six points.

BUT THAT was the best the Wildcats had to offer. York had weathered this storm and now prepared one of its own.

By the time the period had ended, York had regained a 10-point plurality. The rest was easy.

Pirates Post Easy Win

Proviso East Gymnasts Top State Meet at Willowbrook

Proviso East decided it was time for a change.

In both the 1960 and 1961 editions of the Illinois High School Association gymnastics championships the perennially powerful Pirates of the Suburban League had to settle for runner-up slots.

In 1960 Proviso East finished 5½ markers behind state champ Arlington.

In 1961 the Pirates finished a mere half-point behind the state champions from York High School.

HOWEVER, THE powerful Pirates weren't to be denied in 1962, and they piled up 61½ points last weekend and coasted to the team title in the gym spectacular held at Willowbrook High School in Villa Park.

With their 61½ markers the Proviso crew finished 25½ points on top of host Willowbrook and defending champ York, co-holders of second place. Niles East posted 35 points for fourth and Arlington's Cardinals claimed 32 to edge New Trier for fifth.

Rounding out the top ten teams were Thornton (26), Proviso West (24½), Evanston (22), and the Prospect Knights (21½).

The two defending individual champions both came through with impressive efforts Saturday in heading their specialties for another year.

PEKIN'S DOUG Reynolds, who tied Arlington's Bill Sayre for the tumbling crowin in 1961, was an easy winner this year with a brilliant 190 effort. Reynolds' performance in the finals was so spectacular that the four judges gave him scores of 96, 95, 95 and 94.

York's Gerald Fontana turned in a repeat on the high bar with a 182 score after posting a 175 in winning as a junior.

Other individual champs were Proviso East's Bob Ensalaco on the side horse with a 182 count, Thornton's Ken Wiegand on the parallel bars with a 186, Niles East's Elliott Pearl on the still rings with a 187, York's Ray LaFrancis on the trampoline with a 179, and Proviso West's Bill Silhan in the all-around with an 805.

AMONG THE area schools Willowbrook posted its 36 points with 12½ on the trampoline, 7½ on the high bar, 13 on the still rings, and three in tumbling.

Counting for the Villa Park outfit of coach Vic Lesch on the tramp were Jerry Moore with a fifth, John Dolan with a tie for sixth, and Jeff Stein with a ninth. On the high bar Allen Brelig picked up the Warriors' markers with a tie for third.

Karl Burgener claimed an impressive second and Dennis Brelig a seventh for the Brooks on the still rings, and Stein finished eighth in tumbling.

Arlington turned in its 32 points in just three events, the trampoline, parallel bars, and tumbling.

COACH GAY Hughes' Cardinals recorded 19 of their markers on the parallel bars thanks to Jerry Russell's second, Ray Lindeman's fifth, and Dave Wollerman's seventh. Russell claimed a 182 count to finish four markers behind Wiegand, the champ from Thornton.

On the trampoline Clay Chrisman, a junior, posted a 176 score for runner-up honors behind York's LaFrancis, and Chrisman also posted a seventh in tumbling to finish as Arlington's top scorer in the state finals.

Prospect, coached by Rick Farris, counted in four events with eight markers on the side horse, 5½ on the high bar, five on the still rings, and three on the parallel bars.

DICK ANDERSON recorded a 167 score on the side horse for third place, and Warren VanderVoort claimed a tie for fifth on the high bar with a 168. Dick Liebenow's sixth place finish accounted for the five points on the still rings, and Gary VanderVoort gained the final three with his eighth on the parallel bars.

The state title was the second for Proviso East. Other schools which have annexed the coveted state crowns include Arlington, York, New Trier and Lindbloom of Chicago.

End Of The Line

Pirates Eliminated By Maine East, 67-54

by DICK GOTTSEGEN

What can you say?

Palatine, showing the effects of a long, grueling campaign, merely ran out of steam at Arlington last Thursday and, in so doing, concluded its activities for the 1961-62 basketball season.

A red-hot Maine East quintet took full advantage of Palatine's sluggish condition to register a surprisingly easy 67-54 victory over the Pirates.

By virtue of the victory, the Blue Demons gained the dubious honor of meeting St. Patrick's of Chicago in the Arlington final. And, as things turned out, Maine wrapped up its season Friday.

For the Pirates, the string had run out. Coach Dick Kolze's boys had gone further than most had even dared to dream for, and it was only a matter of time before the arrival of the inevitable end.

Nevertheless, it was definitely Maine's ability rather than Palatine's inability that decided the game. Playing some of their best basketball of the season, the Demons outshot, outrebounded and outhustled the Pirates throughout a great majority of the contest.

COACH BERNIE Brady's boys canned 29 of 62 attempts from the field for a respectable 45 per cent accuracy mark. The Pirates, on the other hand, could hit the target on only 21 of 59 shots for a 36 per cent mark.

A lack of offensive balance coupled with an inadequate defense led to Palatine's destruction. On the attack, Ron Kozlicki and John Seehausen were the whole show for the Pirates.

Unable to move around Maine's mammoth Steve Smith, Kozlicki resorted to a series of turn-around jumpers that did the job. The Pirate junior finished up as the game's top scorer with 25 points.

THANKS TO those 19 points netted against Maine, Seehausen became the highest scorer in Palatine High School history. John's three-year career point total of 935 betters by 13 the mark of 922 set by Paul Schrage in 1951-52-53.

No less than three boys tallied in double figures for the victors. John Hanson, a dead shot from out, led the way with 19 while Smith and Bill King contributed 16 and 15 respectively.

The Park Ridge quintet set the early pace as it stepped out to a quick 5-2 lead on a pair of jump shots by King and Jeff Jonswold's free throw.

JOHN SEEHAUSEN

George Collins connected on a drive for the Demons but Palatine nullified that effort with four straight points to take a 10-7 lead. Kozlicki hit a free throw and a turn-around jump while Seehausen canned a one-pointer.

The Pirates maintained that three-point bulge until late in the period when the roof caved in. With Maine down by a pair, Smith dropped in a layup to knot the count and then King scored from underneath to give the Demons a 17-15 edge at the quarter.

MAINE NEVER trailed from there on in. That two-point lead mushroomed to a full eight points midway through the second quarter, and the Demons still led by six at intermission, 38-32.

Yet, the Pirates still had enough left to stage one final flurry at the outset of the second half. Kozlicki and Hanson traded baskets, but Kozlicki poured in the next five points as Palatine pulled to within a single point, 40-39.

But victory eluded Palatine's grasp as the Demons rebounded with a barrage that eventually buried the Pirates beneath an oppressive 11-point debt, 56-45, at the three-quarter mark.

Had Palatine been able to hit from the charity stripe in that final quarter, it might have been a different story. But the Pirates blew six straight free throws when trailing by 10 early in the period and that was it.

St. Paul's Five Captures Fourth

St. Paul of Mount Prospect encountered some stiff opposition in its games last weekend in the Northern Illinois district basketball tournament.

On Saturday evening Timothy, last year's district champ, walloped St. Paul, 57-36. Holding a 27-17 halftime advantage, the South Shore Zone champions employed an excellent fast break in the second half to pile up its 20-point margin.

Chuck Cosman paced St. Paul's scoring with 13 points while Andy Simpson added 11.

ST. PAUL played Ashburn, the Southwest Zone titlists, on Sunday in the consolation round, and Ashburn repeated its form of last year when it also won third place in the district tourney.

St. Paul fought to a 27-24 halftime lead but succumbed in the second half and lost a 55-44 decision, settling for fourth in the meet. Cosman again led the losers with 17 points. Gerry Mueller added 10 while Simpson and Dan Moritz each netted eight.

St. Paul's appearance in the district tournament marked the first time in several years that a team from the Northwest Suburban Zone gained the finals. Over 70 teams vied for honors and St. Paul's picked up an impressive fourth.

Cosman was the second best scorer in the tourney with 67 points.

Big Leaguers

Seven former Michigan State baseball players, including five pitchers, are on 1962 major league rosters.

Managers Are Needed for Arlington LL

The Arlington Heights Little League announced that the total registrations to date number 1284 boys. In order to take care of this number, it has been necessary to expand the program by eight teams.

Two teams each have been added to the Varsity, South Intermediate, North Intermediate and North Junior leagues. This requires extra help to man the expanded leagues.

Although parent participation is a must as far as enrolling in the league is concerned, not too many men have signed up as managers. Russ Larson, Manager Recruitment Chairman, states that managers are needed on the Redlegs of the Seniors, Bruins of the North Intermediate East, Pioneers and Tripletts of the North Intermediate West and the Gems, Spartans, Atoms and Buckeyes of the South Juniors.

Anyone wishing to take over one of these teams should contact Russ Larson, CL 3-3473 or Mert Taylor, CL 5-8850.

TAYLOR SUGGESTS that there may be some men who do not have any Little Leaguers in their family, but who will be willing to help out in the Arlington Little League program.

Call the Little League office Monday, Wednesday or Friday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.

Ken Hood, league president, reminds all boys, 10, 11 and 12 years of age who have not played on a major league team and wish to try out that the tryouts will be held Saturday, April 7, and Saturday, April 14, weather permitting. Be sure to check the Herald for all coming announcements.

Arlington Frosh Trackmen to Vie In Evanston Meet

Arlington High School will join eleven other schools Saturday morning in the Frosh Invitational track and field meet in the Evanston High fieldhouse.

Competition will begin at 9 a.m. with entries expected from Arlington, Antioch, Evanston, Glenbrook, Highland Park, Maine East, Maine West, New Trier, Niles East, Palatine, Waukegan, and Niles West.

Arlington's Russ Attis listed a tentative alignment at the outset of the week but indicated that it was subject to change before the actual competition unfolds Saturday.

HANDLING THE shot put for the Cardinals will be Chester Lowiec, John Edie, and Bob Hoban with Jack Barr and Somers in the pole vault. Bob Conner, Ralph Morrisett, and Colovos will vie in the high jump with Chuck Hood, Fred Grote, and Jim Welton in the broad jump.

Attis plans to use Tom Hartig, Jerry Watts, and Steve Christiansen in the 60 yard high hurdles with Hartig, Grote and Welton in the lows. Gerald Culbertson, Colovos, and Hood will handle the 50 yard dash for Arlington.

In the distance runs the lineup looks like this: 880 — Jerry Watts, Shea and Bob Fredrickson; 440 — Chuck Norris, Fredrickson and Jim Nolan; Mile — John Brunner, Hartig and Conner.

The relay teams ranked as question-marks at the begining of the week although Attis did indicate he would enter squads.

Lockport's Sophs Win Tournament

Lockport's frosh-soph basketball team climaxed a brilliant season last Friday evening with a 63-58 victory over Joliet in the title game of the Wheaton Soph tournament.

It was Lockport's third victory over Joliet this season, the only losses on the Steelmen's record. Lockport, who advanced to the finals with a 68-51 win over Wheaton, outscored its South Suburban League rival in the first quarter, 24-11, then held on to take the decision.

Barney and Spink paced the winners with 22 and 17 points while Joliet's Spier netted 14. Lockport converted 31 of 38 free throws.

Joliet had bumped Arlington's Cards, 78-48, in the opening game of the Wheaton tournament.

Morton Pontiac Gals Increase Loop Lead

Morton Pontiac of Beverly Lanes, Arlington Heights took three straight games from River-Rand Bowl of Des Plaines Saturday to move two games up on second place Ridge Motors from Sims Bowl, Des Plaines, in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Despite taking two of three games from faltering Steve's Restaurant of Jeffery Lanes in Wheeling, Ridge failed to gain on the red-hot Morton five. One game separated the two teams last week.

Meanwhile, Moyle Construction of Country Lanes, Lake Zurich, took two games from last place Northfield Bowl of Northfield to move within three games of Steve's, now in the third place slot.

The triple setback moved River-Rand into a tie with Northfield.

PAT PROEBSTLE and Joan Lindahl, both of Arlington Heights, paced the Morton win over River-Rand. Pat had a 582 series, including a 204 game, while Joan rolled a 534 series both contributing to Morton's high team series of 2611.

Alice Ulrich of Chicago led the losers with a 532 series. Joyce Walker of Des Plaines chipped in with a 512 series.

Rosemary Babich of North Chicago rolled a 213-203-168 — 584 series to lead Ridge and take high individual game and series honors for the night's action. Teammate Edith Wayne of Des Plaines (529) had a 205 game. Ridge took high team game honors in the second encounter with 889 pinfall.

STEVE'S, bowling well but experiencing a run of "bad luck," had a higher total pinfall (2591 to 2540) but couldn't catch Ridge until the last game. Ann Neumann of Morton Grove who had a 574 series, including a 209 game, and Jan Crovetti of Highwood (553) paced the losers.

Vi Douglas of Palatine and Alice Nichols of Arlington Heights led Moyle's win over Northfield. Vi rolled a 538 series, including a 204 game. Alice wasn't far behind with a 533 series.

Northfield was paced by Gloria Lucchesi of Winnetka whose 515 series included a 202 game. Teammate Ceil Borre of Wilmette contributed a 511 series.

Decatur Edges Urbana's Tigers

DECATUR, (UPI) — Ken Barnes' short hook shot with eight seconds remaining gave Decatur a 41-40 victory over a tourney-inspired Urbana team in the Super-Sectional prep basketball game here Tuesday.

Urbana's Chuck Burt notched a basket after Barnes hit his winning one, but the horn sounded to end the wild game.

The Tigers from Urbana carried the only losing record into the tourney (11-15) and had lost twice to Decatur in regular play by lopsided scores.

But the Reds almost got knocked into a cocked hat first by a deliberate Urbana game and then by a final rush by the Tigers. Decatur blew a seven-point lead in the third quarter. Urbana only took 26 shots and made 16.

Barnes and teammate Jim Johnson each scored 13 points the lead the Reds while Bob Mock had 15 for the Tigers to lead all scorers.

Quincy Coasts to Crucial Victory

QUINCY, ILL., (UPI)—Quincy's Blue Devils blasted Springfield, 72-53, in the first round tourney game here to earn a quarterfinals berth at Champaign Friday.

Two juniors, Larry Gross and Bob Wilson, led Quincy to the victory with 19 points each. Senior Bob Rineberg added 10 tallies.

Quincy meets Washington, winner over Pontiac in a thriller at Peoria, 58-57, in the final quarterfinal game slated to start at 9 p.m. Friday.

Springfield's Senators held on in the first period that ended with them behind a point, 13-12, scored only five point in the second period, and were behind 28-17 at the half. From then on the famed Senators' defense fell apart.

Bob Trumpy, 6-5 stalwart, led the losers with 20 points. Ron Monroe added 14.

Netters Claim Volleyball Title

The Netters were crowned champions of the Arlington Heights Park District Wednesday Night Volleyball league as a result of their victory last week.

With just one game left in the 1961-62 season, the Netters came up against the second place Setters in the all-deciding match. Should the Setters have won, they would have gained a tie for first place and forced a play-off.

THIS, HOWEVER, was not the case as the Netters met the challenge by defeating the Setters 29-24.

The Old Pros gained a tie for second by barely edging out the 755th Radar Jammers, 28-27.

The Servers pulled themselves out of the cellar with an impressive win over the Old Men, 47-21.

During the next couple weeks, the Wednesday Night league will meet the Thursday Night teams in a single elimination tournament.

Explain Centralia's Nick-Name

CENTRALIA, ILL., (UPI)—A sportswriter's simile and a coach's love for the underdog changed Centralia High School's nick-name from "Cardinals" to "Orphans" back in the 1930's.

Jimmy Evers, athletic director, recalled this week that the team was playing at the Pontiac Holiday Basketball tourney in 1937 or 1938.

"Our school was like a lot of other schools in those days—we didn't have any money. Our players' uniforms were ragged and some of them were patched with adhesive tape," said Evers.

EVERS SAID Jack Ryan was covering the tournament for the Chicago Daily News and described the Centralia team as looking like "A bunch of orphans."

The late Arthur (King Arthur) Trout, who coached Centralia teams for 37 years and led them to three state titles, liked "Orphans" so much that he applied it to his teams.

"Trout was a great lover of the underdog. If he saw a man kick a dog, he was ready to fight," said Evers.

Glenbard East Wins Interim Track Title

Glenbard East's Rams, a distant second behind Proviso West in the West Suburbs indoor track meet, turned around and posted an impressive team victory Saturday in the first annual Interim League indoor track and field championships at Morton West High School.

Proviso's Panthers had to settle for runner-up honors this time with Prospect's Knights third and Glenbrook fourth.

Glenbard East piled up 43 points in winning the title and held an 11-point bulge over the runner-up from Hillside. Coach Bob Scott's Prospect aggregation collected 23½ markers in claiming third.

BECAUSE IT was the first league meet, all marks went into the book as new records. However, Barney Peterson of Proviso West, the defending state champ, set a new fieldhouse mark in winning the 880 yard run in a snappy 1:58.3.

Prospect picked up one individual first thanks to junior Dan Johnson's impressive effort in the pole vault. Johnson cleared 11 feet to tie Glenbard's Craig Young for the top position.

The Knights landed a second place tie with soph Dave Gobeille in the high jump, and Jim Peters recorded a third in the shot put. Dick Westergaard tied for third in the pole vault.

Announce Details For Bowling Meet

Details on the 3rd National Seniors Bowling Tournament for men over 55 years of age have been announced by the sponsoring United States Seniors Bowling Association.

The competition will take place over the weekends of April 7 and 8, 14 and 15 on the Brunswick lanes of Orchard Twin Bowl in Skokie, a suburb of Chicago.

Charles Jahn, USSBA President, reported that the event will consist of three games to be rolled over six lanes with prizes awarded for handicap and scratch scores in each of the organization's four age groups.

"These classifications," Jahn explained, "will allow our bowlers to compete against men of the same capabilities. It is an equalizer against a 75 year -old having to match a 55 year old." USSBA age groups are: Class A — 70 years and over; Class B — 65 to 69; Class C — 60 to 64; and Class D — 55 to 59.

Organized in 1959 by Jahn and Dr. H. A. Hattstrom, now Executive Secretary, the USSBA is active in the promotion of bowling as a health, relaxation and social activity among senior citizens.

"While we are still an infant as far as organizations go," Jahn continued, "we will soon have the numbers which will place us on an even keel with the senior groups in other sports competition."

Booster Club Banquet Set

The Cardinal's Booster Club will hold its winter sports banquet tonight (March 22) at 6:45 p.m. in the Arlington High School cafeteria.

Honored guests will be the members, coaches, and managers of the basketball, gymnastics, wrestling and swimming teams. The cheerleaders of the varsity and frosh-soph squads also will be guests.

The speaker of the evening will be Dwight "Dike" Eddleman, former outstanding athlete from Centralia High School and the University of Illinois.

Fox Hunt Slated for Bow Hunters

All archers are invited to join the Sioux Wahsky Bow Hunters in a fox hunt on Sunday, March 25. The hunters will meet at the Sioux Wahsky range, located at Route 59 and Batavia Road, at 8:00 Sunday morning.

A 1962 hunting license is required and only broadhead arrows may be used. As the club has received permission to hunt in several spots, it is advised that all hunters bring lunch.

Special Events Planned for Big Weekend at U. of I.

"Elite Eight" Tournament Week End has again arranged many facilities for entertainment of the thousands of high school students who will be in Champaign-Urbana for the state basketball tournament Friday and Saturday, March 23-24. Most of the special events, co-sponsored by the Illini Union and the U. of I. Athletic Association, will be held in the University Armory, directly across Gregory Drive from Huff Gymnasium.

Activities will be in progress in the Armory from 9:30 a.m. until 11 p.m. on Friday and from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. Saturday. They include ping pong, a basketball toss, pep rallies with combos (12:15 and 6:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday), free movies, juke box dances, and refreshments. Also in the Armory will be an activities roundtable to enable visitors to gain more information about the various student activities on the University campus. All tournament games will be shown in the Armory over television sets.

Cheerleading contest will be held again, and the cheerleaders judged best in the Friday games will be given an award in Huff Gym during the intermission between games on Saturday night.

One of the highlights of the weekend will be the crowning of the Tournament Queen at 10:30 p.m. Friday in the Armory. The queen will be introduced at 11 p.m. Friday at a dance in the Illini Union Ballroom. Dale Hamilton's orchestra will provide the entertainment.

Rocks Handle Auburn

ROCK ISLAND, ILL. (UPI)—The Crimson Tide of Rock Island rolled over favored Rockford Auburn, 64-44, to win a berth among the eight quarterfinalists who will battle for the Illinois state prep cage title Friday and Saturday.

The Rocks will play Decatur at 7:30 Friday night.

Auburn had one good quarter, the first, and then the roof caved in. Rock Island's little Jerry Harvey, Lou Kaiser and Steve Sullivan fired in baskets to overcome an early 19-10 Rockford lead.

The count was 26-25, Auburn, at the half. Rock Island went ahead to stay on Kaiser's layup with 5:20 remaining in the third period. The Rocks outscored Auburn, 39-18, in the last half.

Harvey and Kaiser counted 18 points each and Sullivan had 16. Jasper Robinson, Auburn's flashy junior forward, paced his team with 16 before he left the game via the five-foul route in the final period.

Complete Perfect Season

Klehm's Demons chalked up another victory to climax an unbeaten season in the Arlington Heights Park District Thursday Night Volleyball league.

Klehm's experienced some very anxious moments as a game Able Electric team looked like it might stage a possible upset. At halftime, the Demons had a comfortable seven point lead.

THEN ABLE Electric began to add up the points, and about mid-way through the second half it had gained a one-point lead. The two teams matched points until Klehm's put on a final rally with three minutes to go and won the game, 30-24.

In other games the Spikers pretected second place by beating the Reuter Rovers, 32-23, and the Strats out-scored the Jay Cees 34-22.

Joining the Prospect Knights and Arlington Cardinals in the indoor attraction will be defending champion New Trier, host Evanston, Glenbrook, Highland Park, Maine East, Maine West, Morton, New Trier, Niles East, Niles West, Proviso East, and Waukegan.

THE COMPETITION will mark the first appearance of Arlington's varsity trackmen in the 1962 campaign. Prospect's varsity thinclads already have five dual meets and a conference engagement on their record.

Coach Russ Attis of Arlington High School listed his tentative alignment at the outset of the week although the actual lineups for the various relay units were still uncertain.

Attis will work with John Embrey and Dale Coventry in the shot put, Jeff Beckman and Ron Harstad in the broad jump, John Burgermeister and Jeff Hoy in the high jump, and Al MacDonald and Bob Laughlin in the pole vault.

VETERAN John Latta, the Cards' only state qualifier last spring, and Tom Fagerson will compete in both hurdle events with Bob Splitberger and Mike East in the 50-yard dash and Jim Hendricks and Robin Auld in the mile run.

Attis has four letter winners back at Arlington this year in Latta, Hendricks, Burgermeister, and oy Woodruff. Woodruff is primarily a discus man and will be available for the outdoor campaign.

Prospect's Bob Scott listed several possibilities for his Knights although only two boys may compete in each individual event.

THE TWO hurdles entries will be determined from among Ron Koepke, Tom Bremner, and Jim Anderson. Ralph Garafolo, Ken Reed, or John Carsello will vie in the 50-yard dash with Jim Peters, Bruce Andrise, and Pankau in the shot put.

Pat O'Keefe, John Orr, and Reed are entered in the broad jump with Dave Gobeille, Roy Ladnstrom, and O'Keefe in the high jump and Dan Johnson, Dick Westergaard, and Dan Price in the pole vault.

THE VARIOUS relay alignments are still tentative, but they will be determined from the following possibilities:

Varsity two-mile—Kent Taylor, Ryan, Kent Nelson, Rog Luedke.

Frosh four-lap—Jim Renner, Wayne Kuklinski, Dave Nelson, Wayne Christensen, Terry Clark, Mike DeLucca, Andy Kargakos.

New Trier Falls

St. Patrick's Five Cops Tourney Opener

The Suburban League's best wasn't good enough last week in the opening game of the Arlington Sectional basketball tournament.

Highly regarded New Trier, co-champion in the Suburban League for the 1961-62 hardwood campaign, ran into powerful St. Patrick of Chicago, and the rangy Shamrocks rolled to an effortless — after the first half — 62-44 victory.

Taking a seven-point lead into the final eight minutes of play, the St. Patrick's five of the newly-organized Chicagoland Prep division simply overpowered the Indians and waltzed home with an impressive decision.

NEW TRIER held the lead on only one occasion, late in the second period, and couldn't match the Shamrocks either in shooting or under the boards.

Four boys hit double figures for the St. Patrick outfit with 6-foot-10 Frank Hollendoner, only a junior, collecting 20 on some effective work from under the basket. In addition, the rangy pivotman was a bulwark on both boards.

Joe Meier fired in 16 points, 6-foot-5 Tom Talaga collected 14, and Wayne Locke drilled 12 for the high-flying Shamrocks. Guard Bill Geist went scoreless but was a standout on defense in rebounding.

NEW TRIER made a game of it in the first half thanks to the effective sniping of 6-foot-3 Harvey Fox, a deadly shot from the side. Fox popped in 11 points in the first two segments and was checked with two in the final two periods.

A steal and layup by Tommy Nisbet, son of the coach, pushed New Trier into its only lead of the game with 1:55 remaining in the first half, but St. Pat's bounced back on Hollendoner's layup and free throw and was never headed thereafter.

The Shamrocks, beaten only by Farragut of Chicago during the regular schedule, held a slim lead through the opening minutes of the third period, but increased their advantage heading into the fourth stanza as Locke, Hollendoner, Talaga, and Meier all chipped in points.

MEIER'S JUMPER from the side boosted the Shamrocks into a 41-32 lead with one minute remaining in the stanza, but Nisbet matched that from the key. Talaga, an All-State end in football, slipped in for a layup only to have Nisbet, New Trier's only offensive threat in the final half, pop in another jumper from the key-hole.

The final period was all St. Pat's and then some. With five minutes remaining Talaga's layup gave the Chicago entry a 50-40 margin and with three minutes left the Shamrocks held a 58-42 advantage.

Grade School Meet

Dempster Jr. High Captures Mat Crown

Dempster Jr. High of Elk Grove and South Jr. High of Arlington Heights finished 1-2 in the team competition Saturday in the annual VFW Grade School wrestling meet staged at Prospect High School.

The powerful Dempster entry collected 74 points for a nine-point bulge over runnerup South, a three-time winner in the annual mat spectacular.

An impressive crowd witnessed the tourney with 173 boys competing. Ninety pins were recorded, including two snappy falls in 10 seconds by Rich Schwan and 11 seconds by Tom Manderscheid.

Ribbons were furnished for the first four places in each of 14 weight classes and trophies were presented to the top two teams.

ROUNDING OUT the team scorers were Jack London Jr. High of Wheeling with 48 points, Grove Jr. High of Elk Grove with 45, Prospect Heights with 32, and Miner Jr. High of Arlington with 20.

Tournament manager Dick Mudge of Prospect High School indicated that the entries had to be closed Saturday morning because of the increased number of boys competing. Mudge stressed that stricter regulations insofar as individual entries will be enforced in future tournaments.

Assisting Mudge with the tourney were Julius, Fliehler, John Fish, Maurie Levy, Hal Henson, and Neal Anderson, all wrestling coaches at District 214 Schools. Their cooperation was appreciated and their aid invaluable in the smooth operation of the meet.

There were no repeaters among the individual champs.

Four boys pinned their way to titles to rank among the most impressive grapplers in the 1962 tournament. Claiming falls each of their bouts were Loster at 97, Meacham at 105, Douglas at 125, and Bettison at heavyweight.

The most exciting bouts in the finals were staged at 145 pounds and 165.

BRIAN FORD needed a referee's decision to edge defending champ Pete Phillips for the 145-pound championship with the two boys battling to a 9-all deadlock in regulation time. Bill Niemeyer edged South Jr. High's Don Lindmark, 4-3, for the 165-pound crown.

OK Siegel's Objecting To Project

Authorization was given Monday night to Jack M. Siegel, Arlington Heights village attorney, to object at the next hearing to the proposed Dundee Highlands development at the northeast corner of Dundee Road and Wilke Road (if extended).

Reasons for the village's objections included: Aggravation of water drainage problems in the area; development would be served by private water company possibly paving the way for future problems; no definite plans for the development were presented; the petition is in error in requesting a multitude of blanket special uses instead of rezoning; each part of the development should be handled separately.

THE DEVELOPMENT, which depends on granting a special use permit allowing a variety of presently illegal uses, is being heard by the county zoning board of appeals, which has not set a date for its next session.

Dundee Highlands would include single family homes, apartments, townhouses, a restaurant with bar facilities, and a swimming pool. At the last hearing, it was brought out that present plans indicate Route 53 will cut diagonally across the tract. (ACM

Church Plans Lenten Play

With the world spotlight focused so often these days on China, the presentation this Sunday, March 25, of the Bishop's Company of Santa Barbara, Calif., should be of both dramatic and historic interest.

The Phyllis Beardsley play, "Pass By This House," will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Arlington Heights Methodist Church as part of the church's evening Lenten service.

The play tells the story of a doctor who gives up a successful medical practice to take his family to a remote village in China where he attempts to fight the evils of communism.

THE BISHOP'S Company, taking a cue from the origin of English theater, uses the area before the church altar as a setting, and asks the audience to share in the creation of the play by participating in a worship period to set the mood.

The Bishop's Company was founded in 1952 and has toured more than 700,000 miles in 49 states and Canada, playing at churches and colleges.

It was in Arlington Heights once before when it presented "Cry the Beloved Country" in 1960, and also appeared as part of the program of the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Evanston. (A

Suggestions Forthcoming In Estates

The matter of police and fire protection for Scarsdale Estates, an unincorporated subdivision lying outside Arlington Heights boundaries, is expected to be taken up at the next regular village board meeting April 2.

Scarsdale Estates and the village have been unable to agree on annexation or alternate means of providing protection for the area, and after repeated extensions during negotiations, the village terminated fire and police protection.

Trustee Sam Wit told the board Monday night that Scarsdale residents are in the process of coming up with suggestions—many of the residents have been out of town recently—and that the board would probably hear from them within two weeks. (A

Annual Kite Karnival Is Postponed

The annual Kite Karnival sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District has been postponed until Saturday, April 7, at 1 p.m. at Pioneer Park. It originally was scheduled for March 24.

Bill Appleby, superintendent of recreation, said rescheduling is necessary because of the late thaw and wet field conditions.

LOCAL YOUNGSTERS can compete for awards in five categories: 1. Largest kite 2. Smallest kite. 3. Prettiest kite. 4. Kite which flies the highest. 5. Most original (homemade) kite.

To be considered a kite must fly aloft for the greater portion of the judging and use at least 100 feet of regular kite string.

Participation is free and no registration is necessary. In case of bad weather the event will be held the following Saturday at 1 p.m. (A

Presbyterians to Display Their Creative Abilities

The Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights will meet in Fellowship Hall at 12:30 p.m., on March 28, with luncheon being served by Circle 6, under the direction of Mrs. C. S. Pedersen, chairman, and Mrs. H. F. Bloss, co-chairman.

The program of the afternoon is being presented by a large number of talented women of the church, who have created a living, active force to the theme "Walls of Separation," a theme which is difficult to define but is a symbol of the chaos of the times.

Can there be a real Christian goal in different spheres which are truly different faces to the same God-fulfilling purpose in life, and how do they affect those people living and working around them? These are only a few of the questions of the times, being portrayed and expounded on by this group of women from the church.

This dramatic meditation will be presented through tableaus, choral speakers, Mrs. Robert Tindall, Mrs. Ralph Banks, Mrs. M. Eugene Baughman, Mrs. Robert J. Vogel and other dramatic readers.

Mrs. Charles C. Parvin will be the special soloist, and Mrs. Earl S. Auge will complete the musical portion of the meditation.

Other women of the church taking part in the varied program are: Mrs. Charles H. King, Mrs. Robert C. Hawley, Mrs. Glenn Pierre, Mrs. Edward Broderick, Mrs. Thelma Taylor and Mrs. Phillip Wray.

THE CLUB maintains a lending closet of sick room supplies available free of charge to any resident of Arlington Heights. To obtain these items those interested may call Mrs. L. Yowell at CL 9-3253 or Mrs. James Valkenaar at CL 9-3559 for crutches or Mrs. T. R. Thomas at CL 9-3804 for vapor- (A

Newcomers Celebrate St. Patrick's Day

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated by new Newcomer couples of the Arlington Heights Newcomers club with a potluck night at the Rolling Meadows Bowl. After dinner, which included mixer games and a prize for the couple who had moved from the furthest point, most couples adjourned to the bowling alleys where again a contest was held. Everyone's good time was credited to Mrs. Charles Aldag and her membership committee.

Everything from an astronauts world flight to a loaf of bread and salomi appeared as chapeaux on the heads of newcomers at their recent Mad Hatters luncheon. Prizes were given to Mrs. George Kopp, Mrs. Bill McKnight, Mrs. Robert Fletcher and Mrs. George Sanko for the most unusual hats.

CARDS FOLLOWED the luncheon with the following winners: Bridge, first prize, Mrs. Raymond Frederick; Canasta, first prize, Mrs. Richard Hughes; Pinochle, first prize, Mrs. Foster. Little hats on centerpiece trees made by Mrs. Jerry Powell and her committee added to the fun of the luncheon.

Mrs. Francis Morgan and her committee announced plans are in the making for the club's annual spring charity dance.

Anyone wishing further information about the club's varied activities may contact Mrs. Charles Aldag, CL 9-3962. (A

Dapper Dans Cop 2nd Spot

The Dapper Dans Quartet from Arlington Height captured second place in the novice barbershop quartet singing contest last weekend, competing against the other 12 finalists in the annual contest.

Members of the quartet are Jack Musik, tenor; Bob Silva, lead; Bruce Berger, baritone; and Ernie Robb, bass. All are from the Arlingtone Barbershop Chorus in Arlington Heights.

The four have been singing together as a quartet for less than a month and the contest represented their first public appearance together.

EARL AUGE, director of the Arlington Chorus, a chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, said the Dapper Dans exemplify the idea of the group—to have fun and preserve barbershop harmony.

Men who like to listen to or sing the old songs in barbershop harmony style are invited to attend the informal Arlingtone practices held every Monday at 8 p.m. in the lower auditorium of the Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Association building. Trustees Rule Out Barricade

For the first time, vehicle weight limitations were imposed this week on roads in the Village of Arlington Heights.

The village board Monday night designated three streets on which commerical vehicles exceeding 4,000 pounds are forbidden to travel, except for vehicles making pickups and deliveries.

They are Rockwell, Fairview and Park, east of State Road.

A member of the audience at the board meeting, Richard Blaisdell, told the board he lives in the area, and commended the board for taking action to limit the commercial vehicles traveling through the residential neighborhood.

With a straight face, he also suggested a further control to prevent commercial traffic from Mount Prospect crossing Arthur Street into Arlington Heights — a steel barricade at the border on Rockwell Street.

In view of recent controversy with Mount Prospect, the village board (tongue-in-cheek) seemed to see some merit to a barricade between the two villages, but indicated none would be erected — not yet, at least.

The Way We See It

Better Investment For School Monies

The Arlington-Prospect High School Board of Education has asked the three Wheeling Township school trustees to consider a reduction in the salary of the township school treasurer.

The Wheeling Township school treasurer is paid a salary of $6,000 a year. In addition, 7.26 per cent of his salary is paid into a retirement fund by supporting school districts.

Total expenditures, however, for maintaining the school treasurer's office amount to $16,500, about $500 under the average expenses incurred by township school treasurers throughout Cook County. This cost of $16,500 is shared by the five school districts in the township.

The school district is recommending a study of this expense because, since July 1, 1961, school districts are required to maintain their complete set of accounts under a state uniform accounting code.

What this action has done, in effect, is to reduce the school treasurer's role to that of check signer and keeper of a check register.

Since Cook County is the only county left in the state of Illinois which retains the services of a township school treasurer, we would go one step further than the school board in recommending that his position be abolished by an act of the legislature.

In 1953, the state legislature did eliminate this anachronism from the gaslight era in 99 state counties. Pockets of resistance were strong enough in Cook, and Madison and St. Clair Counties in the East St. Louis area, to thwart this change. By 1961, Madison and St. Clair Counties fell to the forces of reason, leaving Cook County as the last stronghold of township school treasurers.

The township school treasurer, who in Wheeling Township serves the high school district and the elementary school districts of Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove and Feehanville, is charged by state law with holding all school funds and must sign all school checks or bonds. In practice, however, the local school boards decide investment and deposit of school funds, all checks are prepared at school offices, and all bills are approved for payment by the school boards.

Cook County Superintendent of Schools Noble J. Puffer has defended the township school treasurer's system as providing the traditional checks and balances required of the democratic process. An annual audit of the transactions of a school treasurer, hired by the school district at a minimal fee, or of the school business manager, however, should provide the necessary safeguard against mismanagement or worse.

In an area of financial crisis such as marks the operation of our educational institutions generally and suburban school districts — with their exploding populations — particularly, it should be in the interests of sound government to make every investment a wise one.

There is every reason to question whether retention of the township school treasurer's services is even necessary.

Arlington-Prospect High School District 214 follows the lead of Palatine High School District 211, which last year brought about the reduction of the township school treasurer's salary from $5,200 to $3,500, and in the process appointed a certified public accountant to fill the unexpired term of the incumbent, who had moved from the area.

It is significant that the total cost estimated for establishment of a special education program to serve Arlington-Prospect and Palatine high school districts and all its underlying grade school districts in four townships amounts to $16,000, $500 less than is exhausted for maintaining the school treasurer's office in Wheeling Township.

This sum would include an administrator's salary, clerical help's pay, and a percentage of office space rental paid for by the schools.

Such a special education program, which District 214's board of education has approved and proposed to the other districts, would create instruction programs for the blind, hard-of-hearing, deaf, socially maladjusted, physically handicapped, educable and trainable mentally handicapped, as well as potential programs for the highly gifted student.

This cost would be prorated on the basis of the number of students from different school districts requiring such special assistance. Such a program would appear to be a wise investment such as we spoke of earlier. It would also seem to place expenditures for the office of township school treasurer in proper perspective.

Atmosphere of Doubt

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors, meeting in a special session March 14, was informed by the Cook County State's Attorney's office that the township road commissioner had been cleared of charges brought against him by a former foreman.

The charges centered around granting of a $10 raise to himself from the township's road and bridge fund and the rental of a tractor belonging to the road commissioner's son to the township.

The state's attorney's office took due note of the fact that Oscar Everson, the road commissioner, had reimbursed the township for the amount of his raise which is limited to $20 per day by state statute. It also said that rental of the tractor to the township by his 17-year-old son did not constitute an irregularity since the boy received the rental money.

This seemed to satisfy the auditors that the matter was closed. But there appears to have been more questions raised at the meeting than answers forthcoming.

Auditor Russell Conklin questioned the work vouchers of Richard Schmidt, the former foreman who had leveled charges at Everson. He wondered how Schmidt could be working so many hours a month and still charge the township for welding work for the same months — unless he was welding on township time.

There are also a number of bills questioned by John P. McGivney, another township auditor who had also complained to the state's attorney. McGivney wants answers to the purchase of a pickup truck, since records do not show three price quotations were secured for it as required by law, and he wonders about bills for work on equipment which are not shown as belonging to the township in insurance records.

Everson says he can justify every bill submitted for payment, and Schmidt claims he was motivated in his action in the cause of good government. In order to clear the atmosphere of doubt, we look for further explanations to some of these questions.

Critic's Corner

'Change' Is Undesirable

by STEVE FRANZMEIER

News Editor, Roselle Register and Itasca Register

The public and the public press should be at least as dedicated to perpetuating the good as eliminating the bad.

There's a plaque of cynicism stalking this country today. It has become fashionable to criticize. We are like a bull in a China shop, kicking at the dishes — our social customs, governmental structure, educational policy, ad infinitum.

This is why we must become a race of Luther Burbanks, intentionally seeking out the healthy strains in our way of life, then fondly nurturing them, helping them develop and withstand the forces of change.

UNFORTUNATELY, the spirit of Luther Burbank, the famed horticulturist, is far from our minds.

Our respected leaders even flail away at the system of government intended by the founding fathers.

FRANZMEIER

Federal Judge Learned Hand and Supreme Justice Felix Frankfurter are leaders of a movement which opposes our system of checks and balances, the strength in our Democratic system. They favor a change to a strong legislature to which the executive and judicial branches would be subservient.

THIS ATTITUDE in high places is symbolic of the national mentality. People are addicted to change for no better reason than that they are intoxicated with the prospect of future good.

"We never live but we hope to live," said a philosopher. "Since we are always preparing to be happy, it is inevitable we should never be so."

But, on the other hand, Blaise Pascal said: "Our nature consists in motion; complete rest is death."

Too much of a change or too many changes, however, often defeat the purpose of change which is improvement of the present.

For example, consider the "change syndrome" fostered by advertising agencies. No man in his right mind will claim that the annual style changes in women's dresses are NECESSARY. It is only because of the siren calls of the ad man that women discard last year's dresses because "nobody is wearing that style anymore."

IT IS THINGS like this which make this writer a conservative. Things are never so bad that they deserve the ravages of the liberals. Liberals look at all that has gone before through an obedient kaleidoscope which reflects their notions of what a study of the past should prove, namely that the past was wrong.

To liberals, to the common man dissatisfied with his present good fortune, we quote Pascal: "The struggle alone pleases us, not the victory . . . In disputes we like to see the clash of opinions, but not at all to contemplate truth when found."

And, again, Pascal: "He who should find the secret of rejoicing in the good without troubling himself with its contrary evil would have hit the mark."

Invoking Double Standards

Examples for Youth

by DICK HOFFMANN

Associate Editor

A Chicago television columnist recently was bemoaning the rise of questionable literature; as an example he cited a magazine of "sexual candor" which will soon make a public debut.

Perhaps debut is the wrong word; public confessional would be more in keeping with some of the announced projects. The TV columnist (I think the connection is that he fears such candor might eventually pop up on the late show) submits a list of proposed article titles to reinforce his argument that we're all being swept down the sewer in a torrent of smut.

Such candor rankled a men's magazine (which prints pictures of pretty girls clad mostly in a strong breeze) to such an extent that it came out with an article about the ladies' editorial fare titled "The Pious Pornographers."

There are to be articles on phallic symbolism, and "The Automobile as a Sex Symbol." The editors seem to be dredging familiar waters in this instance. Vance Packard ("The Status Seekers," "The Hidden Persuaders") has fished this stream till it's depleted of stock.

HOFFMANN

THERE IS ALSO "Memoirs of a Stripper" which has the columnist's self-righteous hair bristling. Again, the editors of this magazine of sexual candor appear to be uncovering terrain as common to everyone as the faces on Mt. Rushmore. Gypsy Rose Lee blanketed (another poor word choice) this area in published reminiscences when most of our mothers were still young enough to entertain hopes of breaking into show business.

Another planned project by these candid editors which has our TV columnist blushing in living color is "Madame Tellier's Brothel." Once more, the poor fellows are found to be busying themselves with dated material. Polly Adler did a report in-depth on the bawdy business in "A House Is Not A Home."

There was one subject the offended columnist mentioned which has yet to be treated in print, to my knowledge. This is "The Contraceptive Industry," a sterile subject at best (pardon the pun).

IT SHOULD BE further noted that the ladies' magazines have examined most of these tabu topics, and many more, with a candor which would probably drive men to reading the more evasive prose of Henry Miller or someone. The mass circulation women's periodicals have placed under the editorial microscope for examination about the whole range of sexual experience from frigidity to promiscuity, from the physical effects of love-making on the heart to the emotional nuances of boudoir behavior the sophisticate should seek. For good measure, they toss in the adventures of some round-heeled Hollywood actress under the heading of glamour.

Instead of demanding public bonfires to purge our minds of forbidden thoughts, we should look to ourselves. I don't see teenagers lobbying for girlie magazines and others devoted to sexual candor. These are responses to the demands of the adult reading world. Show me the clean hands of the businessman and workingman who delights in dirty jokes and then goes home to whale the Beelzebub out of his kid for reading something other than "The Atlantic Monthly."

Part of the alleged problem is the reverence we attach to figures (Ouch, another one). No, I don't mean the 38-24-36 trilogy. I mean our awe of things statistical. Anything can be done with numbers, including the demonstration of a startling rise in juvenile crime or an alarming upward trend in venereal disease and pregnancy among teenagers and the like. These studies seldom show an awareness of the tremendous increases in population this country has experienced.

THERE IS ALSO a better reporting system of such instances, so that where formerly the father sent the girl and child trudging off in the snow to an unknown destination she and her offspring now are bundled off to a maternity center where they join the statistical ranks. The juvenile offender or youngster who contracts a venereal disease also becomes a statistic; formerly he might only have been known as one of the "bad boys" who gathered in the gulley to smoke corn silk.

Our moral breakdown — from executives who huddle in hotel rooms to fix prices, to labor leaders who invest members' dues to reap personal gain — encourages licentiousness in many forms. Censors will not solve the problem. We will when we stop invoking double standards and are guided by ethics instead of greed.

As for the magazine on sexual candor, I predict that it will be about as popular as Metrecal in Red China. It's pioneering on a frontier that's already been homesteaded.

Kerner Pledges Youth Support

He chased it down the street, but before he could reach it a car stopped. The driver jumped out, grabbed the hat, jumped back in and drove away.

'The Blood of the Lamb'

Unique Reading for Lent

by MARTIN E. MARTY

I recommend for Lenten reading Peter De Vries' new novel, "The Blood of the Lamb" (Little, Brown, $4.00.

Please read the whole book, and not just the first half.

MARTY

The first half is typical De Vries: funny, ribald, offbeat, full of puns, and occasionally slightly offcolor. If you read only that you may wonder why someone with a turned-around collar (my Sunday garb) has such a turned-around sense of values as to recommend such a book. Keep on reading. Suddenly you find that De Vries has sneaked up on you and you are surrounded by the most moving, involving, agonizing fiction (it must have an autobiographical base) you will have known in a long time.

BY MUTUAL conspiracy, reviewers are refusing to give away the cruelly ironic twist at the end of the novel. Without it, we would have not a happy ending but at least a redeemed ending. With this strange turn we have a telling blow at the mid-section, a wallop between the eyes, a turning of a knife in the heart, a sense of having been tricked, cheated, "taken in."

Basically, this is the story of the loss of faith of a fundamentalist Dutch Calvinist on Chicago's South side. His brother's death contributes to the loss. During his life there is a bit of reconstruction despite a hopeless marriage. The dying of a 12-year-old daughter of the hero (Leukemia is the cause) is the crucial point in the novel.

At the virtual end of the story it looks like the usual easy return-to-religion plot; then comes the ironic twist. It would have been more satisfying religiously had the author simply re-found his faith but it would have meant the death of art and it may have told us less about life.

RATHER THAN reveal more of the plot of this tragic-comic novel which must be read, I would like to elaborate on one theme that kept coming back to me as a Christian minister as I read it.

De Vries succeeds in getting the reader to empathize with a father as he hears the words of doom pronounced over his daughter. It is at this point that the cheapness of words, words, words is revealed. Here is where everyone had advice, everyone — whose daughter is not dying — has cheap solutions. Here is where religion can cheapen the experience by premature and too-ready verbalization. I often think of this when I am called to help a family interpret a crisis or a catastrophe. As a Christian I am convinced that a loving God can gain the victory through such agony, but I do not think that his servants should dash around with little labels with answers on them; little band-aids to cover the wounds.

WHAT IS needed is a sense of wordlessness, waiting, empathy, the hand-on-the-arm, the shared cups of coffee (which then take on an almost sacramental character), the silence when the question 'Why?' is asked, and then—then only—the first consoling actions, gestures, attitudes and finally words. Anything less than this can produce unnecessary resentments, as De Vries' reactions to cheap religionizing reveals.

Not that words don't 'do it' in the end (as they fail to for De Vries): God acts through The Word and through words. But the whole movement of Lent shows that easy escapes, labels, band-aids, superficial remedies were not part of the plot. First one must look at the Proper Man alone, spit upon, torn, rejected, despised, shouting "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" Before he can understand, "I have overcome the world," or "He is Risen."

De Vries does not help us on the last affirmation; he helps us understand the high price paid for it.

Mental Health Clarification

Several of our members and supporters have been approached by the Mental Health Society of Greater Chicago to take part in its annual "bell-ringer" campaign.

Since there is some confusion between the work of this society and the Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Association, I ask you to keep this fact in mind: The Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Association is purely a local agency, serving Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Hoffman-Schaumburg, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling - Buffalo Grove by providing low-cost psychiatric services of the Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Clinic and conducting an education service through its association work.

AS STATED by Mrs. Arthur Freeman, past president of the North Shore Mental Health Association, "On the other hand, the Mental Health Society of Greater Chicago Does Not run a clinic nor provide any direct services for patients other than referral to a doctor or clinic. They DO support education services, promote research, and supply information in the mental health field. They serve three counties, Lake, Cook, and DuPage, and conduct a drive for funds throughout these areas. The money they collect is divided between the Chicago Chapter, the Illinois Association for Mental Health, of which they are an affiliate chapter, and the National Association for Mental Health, of which the State Association is an affiliate.

"AS IN THE local and state societies, national funds are used for education, research, information, standardization of State Mental hospitals, etc. NONE OF THEIR FUNDS ARE USED TO PROVIDE TREATMENT IN OUR OR ANY OTHER CLINIC."

The primary objective of the Mental Health Society of Greater Chicago is education and research, while our association provides not only education al services but is also the ONLY psychiatric clinic serving the seven listed communities.

Adults Setting Poor Example

Sunday, March 18, Fenton High School, Bensenville again featured a band and choral concert, a big achievement involving much time and effort by students and directors. I am hoping that this time some of the impatient grown-ups had enough courtesy to give the concert their full attention and stay 'til the final number was concluded.

The last time a concert was held, featuring a very famous cornetist, I was so ashamed of the stampede that was taking place all during the last number making it impossible for those of us who do enjoy good music and the effort put into it to hear it all. We always blame the youngsters for such conduct, but the ones starting the whole thing were adults. Later on the same adults were at the doors waiting when we who stayed were coming out. Why the rush? Or is it like the army "Hurry up and wait!"

Additional Liquor Licenses 'Threaten Suburb Character'

The recent action of the Mount Prospect Village Board in granting additional liquor licenses, to be issued to two downtown business establishments, seems to me just the beginning of something that could change the whole suburban home community atmosphere.

Mount Prospect has a slogan which greets all who enter its boundaries — "where town and country meets." This, to my way of thinking, would place the village in a much different category than metropolitan areas where the main streets are lined with taverns and an abundance of stores featuring liquor as their main commodity.

NO ONE can actually believe 13 liquor licenses cannot adequately take care of the needs of 20,000 people, except perhaps on West Madison Street. Certainly 13 can take care of the adult portion of the total 20,000 population of Mount Prospect.

I would hate to have Mount Prospect become a mecca for every passing motorist, with numerous taverns inviting them to stop. As for liquor accessibility and children, this is the concern of the parents and the home. But why promote the "morality" of drinking and take the attitude that if it's all right for other communities, it's all right for us too—everybody's doing it.

That verbal requests for licenses have been received has been admitted by President Schlaver who has said they will not be acted upon until formal, written applications have been made and the citizen's committee has made recommendations. The two written applications presented and acted upon recently, it's interesting to note, were from two staunch supporters of President Schlaver and his Good Neighbor Party running mates of the past election. Another interesting fact is that the president appointed a citizen's committee, consisting of three other active Good Neighbor Party supporters, to make liquor license recommendations which he knew would be according to the thinking of the Good Neighbor Party. The committee have no technical—just political qualifications.

THESE TWO facts lead me to wonder if the present administration, minus Trustees Casterline and Gaw, is carrying out some possible pre-election "understandings."

It appears that John Bickley, by his approval of the hand picked citizen's liquor advisory committee, seems to be involved in a conflict of ideals. He feels it is all right for the president to take the advice of three of his political friends, but says board members were elected to make decisions for the people and therefore do not need to "scurry out for a post card survey" of those who might just not agree with the hand picked triumvirate. True, we elect officials to serve us and make decisions. But when these elected officials make decisions we do not agree with, it is the American way to voice disagreement. And when the officials do not have the courage to do what they want to, but step aside from their elected duties and hide behind the skirts of political cronies who can be propagandized, it is time American principles step up and be heard. If the officials cannot make their own decisions, then it is up to them to ask the help of all the citizens, not just a few political dupes. If elected officials are really "big boys" let them ask for an opinion.

It's possible the majority of citizsen see nothing wrong with their recent action. However, I do know there are many who do not agree with the action and do not want to see more licenses issued. Since the president has vacated his prerogative as sole liquor commissioner and put the decision into the hands of three political allies, the residents who do not agree should be able to have their wishes fairly considered too.

INCIDENTALLY, if Trustee Phillips thinks it is desirable to have a place in town where people can go for dinner and a cocktail—why doesn't the board annex Gunnell's? Technically, it's in the village. It is almost completely surrounded by the village and advertises it's in Mount Prospect. Annexation would bring in a good tax receipt and a known, law abiding well run, business asset. However, if Gunnell's became a part of the village and under village liquor license laws, I understand the bar would have to close at midnight. Now perhaps there is an "understanding" there too, to do nothing until the citizen's committee recommendation to lengthen liquor serving laws in certain areas can be put into law. It looks like the recommendation was tailored especially for Gunnell's.

The whole liquor license issue on the surface does not seem like more than a matter of how many licenses we need or want. But when one inquires into the whys and wherefores in the background, I believe they will want to object to this recent action and demand that any future plans in this regard be thoroughly and openly discussed in village board meetings.

Houser Warns Of Daley Power

In an article appearing in the Paddock Publications of last week, March 15, Mr. James Stavros, Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman, was reported to be "Hoping Mad" resulting from a letter my campaign committee is distributing to township residents.

Frankly, I am quite pleased with Mr. Stavros' reaction — it probably means that a representative of the Republican Party is saying things that should have been said long ago.

THE OBVIOUS purpose in the letter is to create an awareness among Republican voters of the great importance of the April 10 Primary Election. The letter refers to Mr. Stavros, because his political gains are one reason Republicans must take a renewed interest in township politics. His association with and dependence on the Daley machine is apparent.

Republicans must soon realize that the only weapons they have left in Cook County are their political convictions. Unless Republicans put these convictions to work, the Democratic Party will eventually succeed in domination of all township governments, including Wheeling Township.

Mr. Stavros' ill-disguised attempt to associate my name with the unfortunate circumstances surrounding charges against the township commissioner is typical of the methods so often associated with "Chicago" politics.

SINCE I am not a product of the Chicago City Hall machine, I am not certain that I fully understand Mr. Stavros' reference to "Silk Laced" Republicans. I would imagine he was referring to political decency and morals based on a purely volunteer effort.

I trust that Mr. Stavros and I will exchange viewpoints on many issues in the future. My election to the office of Committeeman by the Republicans of Wheeling Township will insure that there will be future exchanges.

'Independent' Defends Center

Much is being said lately about the "immorality" of the position of the independent, the neutral, the moderate, the "middle-of the roader." If you are not a Birch-type conservative, you should be a Communist: if you are not a Liberal, you should be a Fascist. But it is strictly immoral to be an "opportunist," coward, or a "do-nothing." You should be either for me or against me — either black or white but not gray.

To these decisive do-ers my hat is doffed and my envy is showing. It is a valuable talent to be able to conclude and act. Much is accomplished by these people within a minimum of time and red tape.

BUT I submit they were born with this talent just as some of us were born with another talent — to see the shades of gray instead of black or white; to see the plane on which the lines are drawn. We are not indecisive. We must consider the environment of a problem longer before we can determine which is our way. The Communist, the "Bircher," the "Big Brotherist," the Militarist are all the same to us. They won't permit anyone to be indecisive if they want to be.

Deliberation is democracy: decision is often tyranny!

While our groping may seem obstructive, I submit we strengthen the decisive viewpoints. We see fallacies and fine points that they may miss in their fervor and thus help them further coagulate their conclusions.

THERE ARE materialists, opportunists, do-nothings, and cowards in every viewpoint. And there are those who do not stay in the middle but jump far and constantly to either side. We at the center can neither feel the exhilaration of being very right or the challenge of being very wrong. But we all together pivot on the universal law of balance.

GOP Candidate Wins Supporter

This is probably the first time since World War II that the Republican Party in Palatine Township has had the opportunity to elect such an outstanding man as its committeeman. Alexander MacArthur should represent us for the following reasons:

(1) He's a regular. His many past activities have been aimed toward a united and virile party, but they have been channeled through the Palatine Township Regular Republican organization. This organization, after much careful thought, drafted Alex (unanimously) as the best man for the party.

(2) He will be able to reunite the factions in township Republican circles much easier than his opponent, because he is respected, in general, even by his opposition.

(3) He has by far the best qualifications. He is well and favorably known throughout the Republican Party; this includes the township, the county, the state and even the national level. For example, he was formerly with the Republican National Committee, and he recently served eight months on the Presidential Campaign Staff of Vice-President Richard M. Nixon in Washington, D. C.

The man who represents us in Palatine Township should have know-how (Alex does; 20 years of experience—where it counts) the intense desire to build a healthy grass roots organization plus the time to accomplish it. MacArthur scores on each count. The Republican Party of the future belongs to dynamic, aggressive young men. Palatine Township can't afford to miss this opportunity.

Politicians 'Abuse' Poles

I am writing this letter in behalf of the Public Service Company and their employees, suggesting that the politicians give some note to the proposition of nailing posters on light poles.

I write of this personally because to be sure there are others who must be considered. The telephone people about the nation are also plagued in like manner.

And this is not to overlook just plain personal property owners who have posts or poles about their property for whatever reason.

AT ANY rate, politicians seem to ignore completely and disrespect completely repeated requests not to nail anything whatsoever on poles. They of course would be the most diplomatic possible in trying to bring the truth to light and not hurt anyone's feelings. The plain truth about this matter involves several things. Most immediate concerns a communication to us in which safety factors are elaborated. Nailing matter on poles can be just plain dangerous to men who have to climb poles to take care of anything thereon like light wires or telephone wires.

You wouldn't think that a fellow would have to draw any great big pictures for grown ups, people in this case old enough to hold or even run for public office.

Actually seldom mentioned, but underlying all such conversation also is the fact that all such items are private property and there is always an easement or waived right for their presence making their presence rightful and proper but at the same time anyone nailing posters thereon is bound to be braking the law.

WE PRINT posters here, too, don't forget. It is profitable business, but posters have to be placed wherever one places them in a situation where the person placing them has a right to do so and this is not on every post or fence post or pole which one sees.

Everytime you read of some lineman slipping down a pole and killing himself you will be able to deduce that there is a good chance, better than a good chance, that he did so because of a nail in the post placed there by some overly zealous politician.

They, the people who run these companies who own these poles, don't want posters put on their poles. We can't see it any other way in view of this. Don't put posters on poles.

And in view of most ineffective policing about the only way to get some of these little matters cleared up is to prevail logically and reasonably to the offenders and hope that the truth will sooner or later strike home. Political parties no less can have a great hand in this matter too by encouraging their proponents in the matter of observing the lawful and proper behavior in such matters.

Walk Condition Is Disgraceful

If there have been other letters regarding this subject I have not read them, yet, I know there are others just as disgusted as I am — re: the lack of decency of many residents of Arlington Heights to keep their sidewalks clean of ice and snow.

I have had quite a number of arguments on this subject and have become just as disgusted with their excuses. I confess, it became a good habit, because I lived for more than 50 years in Philadelphia, where there is a law that one has to clean sidewalks within a certain amount of hours after a snowfall. I think it's a shame there needs to be law enforcement in this matter. Certainly no one can disagree it is dangerous, not only for people to walk in the streets but a hazard to car drivers, too.

I AM WELL aware we have streets without sidewalks and that the village is trying to have them installed where they should be. If these future sidewalks are not kept in condition so they can be used every month of the year it does seem senseless that they be installed. I think behind all this is lack of interest in others—just self interest—which goes into other subjects.

For world peace we start by being good neighbors and good citizens and then do our best to help others in other parts of this world.

GOPCandidate 'Misses Mark'

Mr. Thomas Houser, a candidate for Republican Committeeman in Wheeling Township, is circulating an open letter to voters in the township. Inasmuch as he mentions me by name several times in that letter, I think it only right that I answer him publicly.

To begin with, Mr. Houser's letter is confusing. He identifies himself as a candidate for an office in the Republican Party, but he seems to be campaigning against Mayor Daley and me. It should be pointed out, sir, that Mayor Daley and I are Democrats. Eye on the ball, Mr. Houser! The ball you're trying to hit, remember, is Mr. William Moore.

Mr. Houser has about "the inroads in Wheeling Township of the Daley Democratic Machine" strikes me as slightly exaggerated. If I were a Republican named Houser, I'd be worried about such things as the Republican mess in Stickney, the Republican scandal in Kankakee, the "inroads in Norwood Township of West Side Blocster Porcaro— not to mention the fact that the Young Republicans whom I heard had endorsed Oscar Everson for Wheeling Township road commissioner.

SECOND, he says that the Democrats have made great forward strides in the township since I became committeeman. Thank you, Mr. Houser! But then he spoils the compliment by saying that I did it all with money. He objects particularly to the fact that I pick up license plates free of charge for any citizen requesting the service — including people from other townships, by the way— thus depriving local currency exchanges of their fee of $1.25.

He also seems to be worried that we have two Democratic headquarters, one in Wheeling and the other in Arlington Heights. This, of course, is true. Our Arlington Heights office is located at 111 E. Davis St. Any time he cares to drop in, he'll find it manned by voluntary workers. (And if you're concerned about where our money comes from, sir, you should have seen the fund-raising dinner we had last month. We had twice as many people out as the Republicans have ever managed to draw.)

May I make a suggestion? If you defeat Mr. Moore on April 10, try to serve all the people as well as possible, and you will discover how party loyalty grows. Tell this to Mr. Moore, too, in case he should win.

BUT worst of all, Mr. Houser accuses me of being a member of "the Daley Democratic Machine hand-picked by Mayor Daley." This, I suppose, is the same Mayor Daley who was endorsed by a bi-partisan committee of the leading citizens in 1959 and recommended for re-election by all four (Republican) Chicago newspapers. I wish I'd known that I had been "hand-picked" back in 1958. I wouldn't have had to carry on so strenuous a campaign in that open primary to defeat Mr. Clark.

Finally, the terrible fear that

Yule Trimmings Left on Homes

"Merry Christmas!"

During the Christmas season, this jovial greeting was quickly returned with a similar greeting or a smile as broad as that of Old Saint Nick himself. But how would you react if confronted with this greeting in the month of March? Your broad grin would probably droop at the corners, and your hearty greeting would be muffled by the realization that Christmas was over three months ago.

DRIVING along the pleasant streets of Arlington Heights, I have noticed several Christmas wreaths, reindeer, and Santas still adorning the houses of absent - minded residents, proclaiming "a Merry Christmas to all." These were put up at the proper time with great joy, honoring the birth of the Christ Child. Now they look withered and out of place with the coming of spring. They show inconsideration, not only of neighbors, but of the Christmas spirit. They are special symbols, but they look tired and disrespectful.

Therefore, let us remove these remnants and put them away until December, preserving the Christmas spirit for its very wonderful once-a-year commemoration.

Resident Fights Jet Increases

Reference is made to a news item in the Roselle Register, dated March 8, 1962, stating that extension of the present east-west runway at O'Hare Field will direct more jet traffic towards Roselle.

With almost constant roaring and screaming of jet planes over our area, I would appreciate clarification to this question: "What right do the airlines have to fill the skies with such devastating disturbances, causing houses to tremble, interfering with sleep and the normal enjoyment of daily living?"

WHEN property is assessed for tax purposes, the length and width of the land is measured carefully, and the owner taxed accordingly. With the different heights of buildings, I would like to know how much of the area above the building belongs to the tax payer. It is against the law to trespass on another's property—yet the numerous airlines are constantly trespassing over our property. There are laws governing noise such as exhaust pipes, tonnage of vehicles, etc. Smoke abatement also concerns the health authorities.

In my opinion the airlines are guilty of breaking all these laws and a sincere effort should be made to correct this situation.

Not Supporting Senate Hopeful

I read with a great deal of interest the article which appeared in the March 15 issue of the Roselle Register. The article was written by Bob Cummins in re an interview he had with Harris Fawell.

I would like to compliment Mr. Cummins on a very well written article. However, one part of the article is erroneous in that he states I was supporting Harris Fawell in his candidacy for State Senator. I believe that the candidates for State Senator are very fine gentlemen. They are personal friends of mine and are capable of handling their own campaign without assistance from me.

I have corrected this error with Mr. Fawell and hope that you will do the same for your readers.

Pauling Raps The Arms Race

BELOIT, WIS., (UPI)—Dr. Linus C. Pauling, a Nobel Prize winning chemist, said Monday fallout shelters create "false security."

Pauling, an outspoken proponent of nuclear disarmament, told a Beloit College audience that nuclear stockpiles in the United States already are in the 100,000 megaton range and are doubling each year.

He said a 100,000 megaton attack on the United States could destroy 170,000,000 of the 180,000,000 population within 60 days.

PAULING criticized President Kennedy's announcement that this country would resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere next month unless an ironclad test ban agreement is reached with Russia. Pauling said Kennedy's alternative was a "political move" and should have been withheld until after the current Geneva talks are over.

The alternative, said Pauling, could wreck the Geneva talks.

Pauling was also critical of any plans to provide West Germany with nuclear weapons. In a reference first to Hitler and then to Konrad Adenauer, Pauling said "We have suffered from a paranoid German leader and now have to suffer from a senile German leader."

Pauling said he felt that all advances in nuclear science have been so great and terrible they may actually do away with war. He said a new era has begun in which war could be a thing of the past because of fear about the destructive power of nuclear weapons.

A 'Murderous' Meander

Village Theatre Scores Hit With Daffy English Comedy

by JIM PHILLIPS

for three evenings in a row last week, two of the daffiest Englishmen who ever graced a cob-webbed, armor-decorated country mansion tried to do away with their pretty cousin.

And despite the fact that they had their last chance Sunday night (failing to get rid of the beautiful blonde by every means, from cyanide to iron maidens), they did succeed in giving their audience an amusingly-different treat in the area of "by jove" murder meanderings.

"We Must Kill Toni" was Village Theatre's third offering, and proved to be a happy change of pace in their schedule.

Under the direction of John Pesick, the Ian Stuart Black pip-pipper contained all the familiar and bungling British boobism necessary to make it obvious to the viewer that this was a play to be enjoyed, not psychoanalyzed.

FROM THE dramatic standpoint, there's not much you can say about this three-act version of "Charles Addams in Dear Old England."

The pair of soon-to-be-disinherited Oberon castle hosts who exist on port, brandy, tea, and stuffiness are ideal roles for actors who like to have a good time. Pat O'Dea as Douglas and John Grayson as Francis did just that—but at the same time, they managed some very difficult English dialect and a number of wry comedy opportunities, giving stiff upper-lift to what could have become a slow-moving farce.

In short, the audience was presented with two Englishmen, each of whom was a distinct personality. Mr. O'Dea's facial expressions were the high-point of his portrayal, and Mr. Grayson proved to be no slouch in the reaction-to-a-line department.

MUCH OF the credit for their efforts should go to Director Pesick. "We Must Kill Toni" demands characterization. John saw to it that his cast supplied the demand.

And speaking of Toni, Ann Hume was an attractive heroine, alhough at times it seemed as though she was having her dialect troubles. In certain instances, her clipped British words were well-executed —then suddenly, out went the British and in came a tint of Ann Hume. (I wonder if there was any hard-to-make decision on the part of the director as to whether to leave Toni's dialect in or throw it out, sacrificing "effect" for communication of the role.) One thing must be said about Ann. She commands herself. Her confidence and stage presence was as pleasing as her brightly-colored wardrobe.

NATURALLY, in a "who perpetrated it" drama like this one, you've got to have a butler. Dave Dove's role of Harris was slightly hampered by an inconsistency — his makeup signified the aging, "came-with-the-estate" servant - type, but his voice was much too clear and youthful to go with his appearance. However, Dave handled the Harris mannerisms expertly and he was right on-the-British-button when it came to timing a line for full comic effect.

As to the play itself, the opening couldn't have been better, thanks to the deadpan expressions from the brothers and a well-written "you-know- all-about - the - plot - right - away" first scene. The few minutes between Toni and Douglas, ending with their kiss (in Act II) was delivered with the wittiness demanded by author Black. The action of the kiss itself was hilarious and classically-ham, as I'm sure Director Pesick wanted it to be.

The only noticeably - weak moment of the play was Toni's entrance. Despite the fact that Miss Hume came on like a McCall's fashion plate, Mr. O'Dea and Mr. Grayson could have put the cherry on the sundae by reacting livelier (both in line delivery and facial expression) to the young lady they thought would be "flat-chested and very plain."

GETTING behind the scenes, "We Must Kill Toni" was another example of what a backstage organization can do with their artistic talents and cooperative effort. The set and set decoration was thoroughly top-notch; and, in the finest sense of the words, English, mysterious, classic, and decoratively in good taste. Make-up generally was well done. Costumes were well-suited to the characters.

I should mention that it has been Village Theatre's habit to come up with setting and design techniques that are far above average in community theater. For my box office money, they join Des Plaines Theatre Guild (which continues to do great things on a small stage) as one of the few groups in the entire Chicagoland area that seems to have the knack for keeping set designs visually interesting and close to the plans demanded by the playwrights.

As a director (and in 1959 the first to come to Village Theatre from outside the organization), John Pesick has fared well. It will be interesting to see what he does with a highly-dramatic offering if the situation presents itself. (Bill

Columnist Commends Kurt Reuping's Art

By LUCILE ERNST

I made other commitments. I promised to see and write about several other artists but I can't. I have to write about Kurt Rueping because he is a breath of fresh air in a stuffy room.

I have heard laughter in a gallery before but it was derisive laughter, honest, but unkind.

At the Sherman House Art Gallery, in Chicago, where Kurt Rueping is exhibiting his paintings, the laughter was in response to a gentle satire, a charming imaginative glimpse into a fantasy world. I salute the courage of a painter who isn't afraid to reflect humor in his paintings.

IT IS A PART of life and therefore an honest artist should reflect it. Fear that someone may not think they are serious has driven modern artists as a whole into painting only the morbid, the sad, or into simply not communicating at all.

Most exhibits I attend remind me of a well organized and respectable wake. There are whispered conversations, long faces, and severe consideration of the sad plight of the world.

Modern painters have forgotten what creative people in all fields of the Arts have always known; humor and pathos are two sides of the same coin. In order to possess the coin, one must have both sides.

ONE OF Kurt's paintings is a clown, clutching balloons, rising in a sublime ecstasy above a receding and humdrum earth. Every brush stroke makes him rise. The painting is entitled, "Halleluiah, Here I Come."

Another clown picture I loved was of a clown, legs crossed, happily reading The Wall Street Journal. Reading over his shoulder and equally absorbed was an interested kangaroo.

"Toppers Tea Time" appears to be a pleasant still life at first glance. Then your eye is led above the still life to a pair of false teeth eating a banana. One suddenly notices a most sedate invisible lady, equipped only with glasses and hair, pouring tea.

KURT RUEPING'S paintings are by no means limited to satire. That is the most unusual aspect of his painting but I liked his sober fantasies best. "The Web" is a strange and violent sea painting, all blues and greens and flashing foam. One can feel the crushing inevitability of death for the four men in a life boat.

A native of Wisconsin, Kurt Rueping is a graduate of the Chicago Art Institute. He received his commercial art training at the Chicago Academy of Art and his B.A. Degree from the University of Wisconsin.

He has traveled extensively in Europe and quite often the charm of European landscapes is reflected in his paintings.

Aside from his exhibited paintings, Kurt has received a great deal of recognition for his two murals, each thirty feet in length, which he was commissioned to do for two of Milwaukee's leading hospitals. They were executed for the Children's section of the hospitals and are the stuff of which children's dreams are made.

I HOPE everyone who can, will take a little time to see these remarkable paintings. It is refreshing to see what a painter can produce, a painter who took the time to learn draftsmanship and a complete mastery of materials and then allowed his unlimited imagination to soar to the truest kind of reality.

His paintings have been so well received, his exhibit is being extended through April. The Art Gallery is located at the lower level in the Sherman House, Randolph and Clark Streets, in Chicago. (Bill

Music On Stage Sets 'New Moon' Comedy

"The New Moon," a romantic musical comedy — to be presented in Palatine March 30, 31, and April 1 — is now in "ship shape" for its dress rehearsals thanks to 75 members of Music On Stage.

The locale of musical is colonial Louisiana under the rule of King Louis XVI of France. The entire show is filled with melodious Romberg and Hammerstein tunes such as "Lover Come Back to Me," "Wanting You," "Stout - Hearted Men," and "One Kiss."

In this the sixth season of Music On Stage, the production of "The New Moon will co-star Bob Altergott of Mundelein as Robert Misson, and Gay Stevenson Knodel of Palatine as Marianne Beaunoit.

THEY WILL be supported by seven major roles: Julie (Marianne's Maid), Alexander zany Bond Servant), M. Beaunoir (Marianne's Father), Besac (a Boatswain), Vicomte Ribaud (a detective for the King), Phillippe (Nobleman friend of Robert), and Clothilde (Waterfront wench).

Julie is played by Dorothy Lea, a housewife from Palatine, who was in the 1961 production of "Rose Marie" and who has had much experience and training in music.

Jack Wassmer, another Palatine resident, is the comical Alexander. Jack is a charter member of MOS who has played many unforgetable roles in past productions.

MONSIEUR Beaunoir is ably played by Pat Ryan, a resident of Lake Zurich, who had a major role in last year's "Rose Marie" and in the "Fortune Teller."

Pat is this year's president of Music On Stage; he has a considerable amount of other musical experience in his background.

Besac is portrayed by Ed Joyce from Arlington Heights. He has had a considerable amount of experience—Arlington Barber Shoppers, The Northwest Operra Co., and other local groups.

IN THE spring of 1960 he sang with the Appollo Opera Co. in Chicago, but turned down further work with the Appollo to sing the unforgettable "Hard-boiled Herman" role for MOS in 1961.

Robert Topel, a resident of Franklin Park, has a masters degree in music and teaches piano privately. He is Ribaud. Phillippe is being played by George Brown, a promising young salent from Bensenville. George is at present at Elmhurst College.

Clothilde is portrayed by Jacqui Cassel from Mount Prospect. Jacqui has appeared in four other MOS productions, the latest role, Wanda in "Rose Marie."

"The New Moon" will be generously seasoned with dancing. The choreography is staged by Merle Colmer and Beth Vandenboom. Merle is a mother of five from Arlington. She has danced and choreographed MOS production of "South Pacific" and "Rose Marie."

BETH IS the mother of two boys, and is from Wheeling. She worked with Merle on last year's dance numbers for "Rose Marie." Beth has taught ballet and tap dancing for the Chicago Academy of Dancing Arts and has performed in U.S.O. Shows as well as the opera ballet for the American Opera Company.

The performances on March 30 and 31 will be at 8:15 p.m. and the April 1 performance will be at 2:15 p.m. Tickets are available at the House of Jarvis in Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights, and this Saturday, in the Palatine Plaza. Or, call CL 5-0047 or FL 8-1250. (Bill GERALDINE PAGE, achieves new screen honors opposite Lawrence Harvey in Hal Wallis' picturization of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke," which opens Friday at the Golf Mill Theatre, Golf Road and Milwaukee Avenue, Niles. (Bill

County Art Show to Be Held March 23

The second annual Cook County Art Show will be held Friday, March 23, with registration beginning at 9 a.m., says Carl F. Mees, chairman, County Extension Service.

The show is open to amateur artists. Exhibits must be original, of recent origin and not previously exhibited at the County Art Show.

Paintings and drawings on a flat surface, ceramics, carving, sculpture, weaving, copper or metal work and original creative work may be exhibited.

MINIMUM entry fee is $1, with a limit of two exhibits in any one category. The $1 fee will cover two exhibits. Additional exhibits are 50 cents each.

A member of the University of Illinois Art staff will judge the entries and offer a critique afterwards. He will select exhibits he deems worthy for competition at the state show to be held in the Architecture building on the Urbana Campus, September 2-8, 1962.

The University does not accept for its show exhibits which the owner values at more than $200. For this reason, the judge will not consider, in competition for the state show, exhibits so valued.

RULES FOR the Urbana Show will be given to all who are selected for it by the judge.

Entry blanks for the Show can be secured from the Extension Office at 201 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, phone CL 3-6460, or the Home Advisers Office, Post Office Building, Des Plaines, phone VA 4-2879.

Farmers' Outlook

Simerl Explains Info On 'Common Market'

By L. H. SIMERL

Farmers today are concerned about many things outside the boundaries of their farms. In fact, their interests extend far outside the boundaries of the United States.

For example, we have had many questions recently about the so-called Common Market in Europe. Farmers want to know what it is, and how it might affect the export markets for their soybeans, corn and other farm products.

As used here, the word "Common" means belonging to more than one, shared by many. The Common Market in Europe includes six countries having together populations and resources about equal to those of the United States.

FORMERLY EACH of these countries was to a large extent a separate market. Each one maintained tariffs and other strong restrictions upon most products moving into it from other nations. Since each nation was only a relatively small market, most factories tended to be small. Costs and prices were high in relation to wages.

More important, these nations frequently waged war on one another, with great loss of human life and property.

The official name for the Common Market group of nations is the European Economic Community, often abbreviated EEC. The organization was created by what is known as the Treaty of Rome, which was signed in 1957. The participating countries were West Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxemburg and Italy.

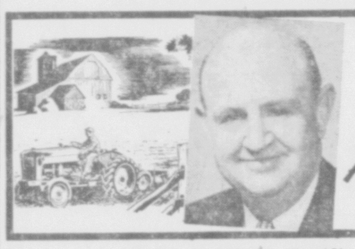
EACH OF THESE countries had been defeated and occupied in World War II. Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg had formed a common market soon after the war was over. It worked so well for them that in 1962 they joined with West Germany, France and Italy to form the European Coal and Steel Community.

Tariffs and other restrictions on trade in coal and steel products among the six nations were abolished. The formation of the Common Market now extends the free trade to other products.

Although these countries are abolishing trade barriers among themselves, they will keep tariffs and other restfictions against products from non-member countries, including the United States. The Common Market countries and England, which is joining the group, are our best export market. We are therefore interested in seeing that they do not build tariff walls against our products.

OUR BEST bargaining point is to be able to offer tariff reductions on products they want to sell to us. Congress can give or withhold this bargaining power to our negotiators.

In the short run the establishing of the Common Market may make it more difficult for us to sell some of our products, especially to the Netherlands and England. But over a longer period the Common Market will make its people more prosperous, and therefore better customers for us. (FM



Today's Agriculture

by CARL F. MEES, Coordinator of Extension

by CARL F. MEES, Chairman, County Ext. Service

AMERICANS ARE WELL-FED PEOPLE standing near the top in total calories and protein consumed per person. This achievement is no accident. An agricultural revolution has taken place in the last 50 years that has affected the lives of every citizen.

Since the farm population is gradually decreasing, the decisions as to how farming fits into the nation's economy and how resources are to be managed will fall more and more to urban people. The wisdom of these decisions will depend on how well all people understand agriculture today, and the role it plays in our nation's economy.

The University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service in Cook county has set up a program for acquainting business and professional people of the metropolitan area with the rapid changes that are taking place. A group of men well versed on the present agricultural situation have agreed to take speaking assignments for meetings of Chicagoland groups who are interested in exploring this subject. Some of the topics which might be explored include:

1. Are we using our natural resources wisely?
2. Can we feed our population in 1975? In the year 2000?
3. What have we learned from government farm programs?
4. Are surpluses real or imagined?
5. How has improved technology affected farming operations on the traditional family farm?

Speakers available to present the material are:

ESPECIALLY FOR WOMEN

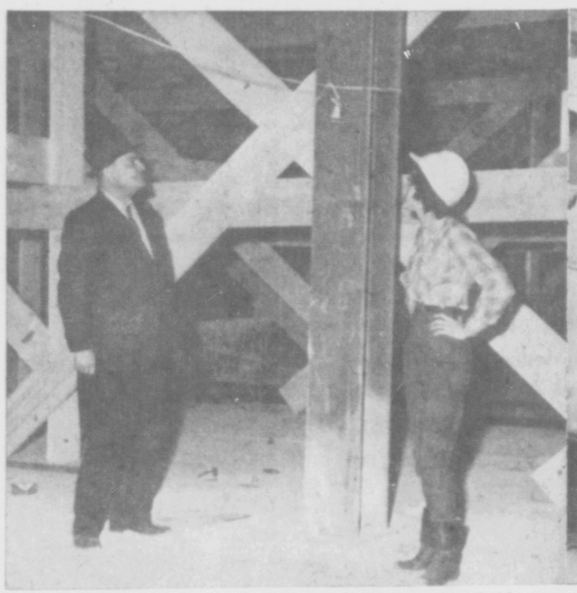
Meet Women Behind Mammoth Randhurst



A VERY POPULAR gal at Randhurst is Mrs. Bettie Bridges, R.N. Part of her duties include checking with Thad Bryant, left, civil engineer, to seek out and correct safety hazards before they cause injury. The only problem they haven't been able to solve is how to keep the workers from being so astonished when they see the women around the project that they are apt to drop a brick on their toes or smash their fingers with a hammer. Since the temporary offices have been moved into the center, the male workers feel the place has definitely brightened up. Bettie is shown, right, with Dr. James Naatz, one of the company doctors, as he checks the emergency equipment in her station wagon which she uses to transport accident victims to the offices of Drs. W. G. Bagnolo and Naatz or to the hospital. (SF

Women Play Vital Role in $20 Million Shop Center

by MELDA LYNN

Behind every success — whether an individual man or a giant project such as the $20 million Randhurst Shopping Center — there's bound to be a woman in the background.

A visit to the construction site offices in Mount Prospect gives one a feeling that the hands of "Randhurst Women" are firm and their performance excellent.

It's evident they like their work. "There's always something 'unroutine' going on," they report. It may be a noise which sounds like the place is blowing up, an emergency first aid call or an unexpected visit from the top brass, but its always different and interesting."

A LITTLE Irish gal, Miss Anna Mae O'Malley, has been with Randhurst since before it "was." She is secretary to George M. O'Neill, Randhurst general manager and was hired even before he was hired or before a desk for her first office in Chicago arrived.

She speaks enthusiastically about her work — and what woman wouldn't who had the joyous task of writing checks from a bank account which holds literally millions of dollars!

While her shopping list includes steel, concrete blocks and other "staples" she writes the checks to pay for the items with the same conscientiousness of a housewife paying for the weekly supply of groceries.

SHE HAS been in on the ground floor of Randhurst and watched it grow from a dream on paper, through the time it was just a mud hole to the structure it is today. She has first hand knowledge of what it will eventually be when finished.

Since moving from the Chicago offices to the new temporary offices on the site, Miss O'Malley finds her work just as interesting, but the surroundings quite different.

While in the loop, she says she "ran the soles" off at least one pair of shoes doing errands when her job first began. Since Randhurst is a co-operative project of three major Chicago department stores, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Wieboldt Stores and The Fair, she found it necessary to co-ordinate communications between the three loop concerns—"and it was easier to do it via footwork than wheels."

MISS O'Malley says moving into the construction site offices from those in the Loop is like going from riches to rags, but much more exciting. When she isn't oiling the wheels which keep Randhurst's general manager's office running smoothly, she finds time to ski, play golf and enjoy all types of spectator sports.

ANOTHER "VETERAN" at Randhurst is Mrs. William Poole of Arlington Heights. She started with Randhurst when it was just "on paper" and construction offices in the "shack" first opened.

By now she's used to the mud and commotion of the project and feels she has gone from rags to riches with the move in offices into the actual center.

SHE IS private secretary to the project managers for George A. Fuller and Turner Construction Co. who are jointly responsible for the actual construction.

MRS. POOLE and Miss O'Malley work closely together, co-ordinating the duties of Randhurst Corp. and the construction companies.

She has never been employed as a secretary in any other but a "staid, routine sort of secretarial position" and finds Randhurst life stimulating.

Another Randhurst woman who has been a real necessity to the actual construction is Mrs. Bettie Bridges, R.N. She began with Randhurst almost the first day the actual construction required the blood, sweat and toil of manual labor.

While she had many duties which are routine to the nursing profession, an important part of her work is to promote safety and seek out and correct before they can cause injury.

"HAVING MY first aid headquarters set up in the construction shack offered a real challenge, what with no running water or plumbing," Mrs. Bridges recalled when she thought back on the first days. "How to give first aid without necessities calls for improvising. I learned how to do this when I was a nurse in a Girl Scout camp for four summers."

Bettie, with her safety helmet, slacks, boots and sport shirt is a familiar figure around the project. She learns to know many of the workers well as they know they are always welcome at her office.

Here she keeps busy doing everything of a routine nature from dispensing hangover pills, ulcer pills, tranquilizers (on doctors orders) to bandaging cut fingers or cleaning infected hangnails.

SHE DECIDED the slacks and boots were "just what the doctor ordered" for the attire of a project nurse after the first time she had to climb to the top of the dome to give first aid during a 42 mile an hour gale.

Mrs. Bridges' stationwagon is outfitted so she can transport those needing more than first aid to the offices of the company doctors, or to the hospital.

She thinks the new quarters in the temporary offices in the center are "heaven" compared to those in the shack.

KEEPING ahead of the mud has been one of her biggest problems. "When a man comes into the office for first aid, he usually is covered with mud and leaves half of it here.

"It's no easy task to keep things clean as I know I must."

Probably the biggest part of her work is in safety education. She and her superiors inspect the premises, always on the alert for anything which might cause an accident. She says the entire staff is very safety conscious, which has given the center a very excellent safety rating.

One of the biggest accidents, at least to Bettie's way of thinking was when she, in a rush to get a man to the hospital, caught her finger in the car door and broke it.

THIS NOT only caused her pain, but no amount of inconvenience as she tried to wrap Christmas packages for her husband Al, daughter, Marcia and son, Brad.

It also caused her to have to cancel an engagement to play the organ at a local church for the Christmas Eve program.

While these three women were the first to join the Randhurst staff, others in the accounting department, such as Pat Wicks, who makes out the payroll; Mrs. Libby Hartwell, secretary to Robert Flynn, assistant Randhurst manager and Mrs. G. T. Hawk, switchboard operator, have all served in the accomplishment of Center.

They have been with Randhurst long enough to see it grow to what it is today. They feel they are a part of the Randhurst Center and of what it will be, in all its glory and greatness when it opens in August.

MRS. G. T. HAWK, left, switchboard operator for the temporary offices in Randhurst Center, has a very important job in handling approximately 150 daily incoming and outgoing calls. She began with Randhurst in October 1961. Miss Pat Wick, standing, makes out the payroll for the office and construction employees. The payroll may cover 500 or 50 employees per week, depending upon the particular phase of the work being done at the time. Pat joined Randhurst in January, 1961.

THE FIRST TWO WOMEN hired in connection with the $20 million Randhurst center project were Mrs. William Poole, left, secretary to the project managers for George A. Fuller and Turner Construction Cos. and Miss Anna Mae O'Malley, right, secretary to George M. O'Neill, Randhurst General manager. Miss O'Malley was hired even before the office furniture arrived for the "formal offices" which are located in Chicago's Loop. She recently moved out to the temporary offices in Randhurst center. The permanent headquarters will be located in Randhurst center, in Mount Prospect, when the project is complete.

Fashionettes

Looking for something more elegant than a beer hair set? Try champagne. A new hairdressing salon in New York innovated the expensive set. The result: a new effervescent brilliance bordering on a halo effect, said the hairdresser, Bernard Bohle. The new procedure left no odor, no residue, he said.

Swimsuits made of a new translucent material mould the figure and yet weigh just a few ounces. Manufacturers using the material discreetly line it. The lighter-than-air suit has amazing strength, taming bulges, smoothing the hipline and midriff as if made of steel.

Berets for spring include a version blown up to picture-hat proportions. Some of the smallest, pint-size and sleek as caps, have visors.

The basic silhouette of the 'teen flat and moccasin is slightly foreshortened this season—in contrast to the elongated look of the past seasons. While moccasins are chiefly rounded or squared toe, most other teen shoes are seen in tapered crescent and squared toes. In a few fad shoes, the toe is an oblique line.

Paris couturier Jacques Esterel has come up with a navel decoration for those wearing hipster pants and a midriff. It is a belt made of beads and pearls, for placement over the navel.

Creative Homemaking

Variety Adds Spice To Table Settings

Who says homemaking can't be creative? One area where you can let your imagination and love of color run riot is in table settings. Don't be conventional . . . don't get in a rut. Soup doesn't always have to be served in soup bowls! Try using earthern mugs, Japanese rice bowls, individual casserole dishes—anything that will hold hot liquid goes.

That soup tureen needn't gather dust in the cupboard, either. Haul it out and use for a fruit compote crowned with various flavors of sherbet, for a punch bowl, for a big, fancy pudding.

DID GREAT Aunt Sarah, a bit vague about life in the suburbs, present you with finger bowls? They can be used for something other than fingers! Bed them in crushed ice for a seafood cocktail, use them for sauces and relishes, for flower arrangements.

Use imagination in your table linens, too. Try unusual color combinations—pale blue and forest green or amethyst; pink and orange. Use contrast in textures—a coarse linen cloth with pottery, but napkins in a contrasting color and texture.

Centerpieces aren't just for company dinners. Your family, too, deserves a touch of whimsy or beauty at mealtime. Inexpensive ceramic figures, often garishly colored and finished in a high gloss, become interesting focal points around which to build a centerpiece when sprayed in 60 seconds with flat black or dull gold paint. Heap greens, fruits or vegetables around them. Or highlight them with a few shells, a piece of driftwood, or even pretty pebbles gleaned from a beach.

YOU CAN PICK up ideas by looking around you. It's great fun to tour the second-hand shops and rummage sales, seeking out the unusual that can be shined up, stripped down, or painted to make a conversation piece on your table.

Your "loved ones" may tease you as you rummage, but it will be fond teasing, for they will appreciate the warmth you bring to your home with imagination and color.

Quite Contrary by Mary

Too Exhausted to Rest

VACATIONS EXHAUST ME. Getting ready to go exhausts me. Once I arrive wherever it is that I have been headed for at such a breakneck speed, I proceed to exhaust myself further by trying to cram 48 hours into each 24. My Scotch blood fairly boils as I whip around getting my money's worth.

MARY

Don't get me wrong. I have a ball on a vacation. However, I have found something else just about as exhausting. It is NOT going on a vacation. I'm so weary from not going on this last one that I can barely lift a travel folder.

There is a certain couple in the neighborhood with whom we have been planning to take a trip for five long years. Usually we don't get much farther than a brief conversation about how much fun it would be. Nothing there to frazzle the nerves.

But, in this past two weeks a new note has crept into the chit chat. It honestly looked as though we might make it. We even picked out a spot. Due to our unfortunate weather which was characterized by a four letter word starting with s and ending with w, which word I have deleted from the family vocabulary (we now call it very cold rain), we took out a map. Running a pencil directly south from where we are, we were stopped by the Gulf of Mexico at Biloxi, Miss.

This made us all quite pleased. Both of us had been there and we heartily approved. Then we decided where we would stay. Father gathered up several folders extolling the beauties and comfort of several resorts. We read and dreamed and all talked at once. The female half of the other couple and I immediately started to pack, mentally. The male halves of us started to pack too. We ran more to the clothing line. Their packing was such essentials as the golf clubs, bowling balls and fish poles.

I'm afraid I am the one who put the damper on the meetings. I reminded them that both couples lacked two things. One of these is a friendly woman to stay with the young. The other I refuse to think about. It's too depressing. And, I'm too exhausted to go anyway.

A thrilling "Egyptian Holiday" will be experienced by all those attending the Northwest Community Hospital Women's Auxiliary Fashion Show luncheon where the guests of honor will be his excellency, Consul and Mrs. Mohamed El Dessouky and the consulate of the Arab Republic. The benefit will be held at Elmhurst Country Club, March 27.

His excellency and his wife were both educated in Cairo. After securing his master's degree, Mr. El Dessouly began his diplomatic service for the United Arab Republic and has since traveled the continents. They arrived in Chicago in 1959 where he is serving as head of the consulate in Chicago.

A young man in years to be entrusted such great responsibility, he and his wife are considered high in diplomatic circles, socially as well as politically in his government.

MRS. EL Dessouky is a modern young mother of two children who were born in Chicago. The gracious Egyptian beauty will honor the hospital auxiliary fashion show by modeling one of her native cocktail dresses fashioned in lovely flowi n g lines created by Egyptian designers, in elegant Egytian cotton for which their country is so well known. To add to the authenticity, a copy of the an cient Egytian Queen Nefertiti's necklace will set off her costume.

The modernized l i n e s of Egyptian fashions will then be shown by Doris Kirkeby o f Mount Prospect and the n e w hair arrangements with all the Egyptian pomp will be created by the Charm Center in Des Plaines. It will truly be an "Egyptian Holiday."

ACCOMPANYING the consul and his wife will be Mrs. El Dessouky's mother, Mrs. El Boukoury, who is visiting here from her native home in Egypt. Her husband, His Excellency El Boukoury was president of the religious university in the world, El Azhar. He is a person a l friend of President Nasser and was an active member of the cabinet responsible for the overthrow of King Farouk.

Mr. and Mrs. Salah Kamel, tourist attache of the United Arab Republic consulate in Chicago, and Mrs. Ruth De la Pointe, long-time friend of the consul and his family, will complete the party of dignitaries attending the fashion show.

WEDNESDAY, March 21, a tea in honor of the models was given in the Mount Prospect home of Mrs. Ralph Adams. At that time a preview of fashions and minute details of the presentation were arranged.

An added feature of the show will be a likeness of Cleopatra herself modeling her gorgeous gown on a portable hand chair supported on the shoulders of four costumed slaves and accompanied by a tremendous black cat, religious symbol of ancient Egypt.

Television and radio personnel have caught the infectious interest of the show which has been in turn shared by the public. Ticket sales are at a maximum, but prompt calling of ticket chairman Mrs. Mildred Ottinger, CL 3-8047, or Mrs. Lee Kenyon, CL 3-4474, may still secure a reservation.

"CHAIRMAN of the Board," which is now on the best seller list, will be reviewed by Mrs. Orpha Wardle at 1 p.m. March 29 when the auxiliary holds its regular monthly meeting at Pioneer Park Field House.

Mrs. Wardle has been reviewing books and plays professionally since 1942 and since 1957 has been reviewer for the Chicago Readers Club. She is an instructor in parliamentary procedure at the University of Chicago and York Community High School and also conducts classes in eCntral YMCA, Chicago.

FASHIONS IN THE Egyptian manner will be modeled Tuesday, March 27, at Elmhurst Country Club when the Women's Auxiliary of Northwest Community Hospital presents its third annual luncheon and fashion show. Mrs. Paul Knott of Arlington Heights poses with Egyptian statuary at Chicago Natural History Museum, where committee members met recently to get authentic background for the show. (S

New Drug Told For Breast Cancer

MILWAUKEE, (UPI—A better and less toxic drug may soon be available for treatment of breast cancer in women, a University of Wisconsin scientist has reported.

James G. Spaulding of the Milwaukee Journal reported from the 4th Annual American Cancer Society Science Writers Seminar at Phoenix, Ariz., that Dr. Fred Ansfield, Madison, predicted the new drug would soon be available if its cost can be reduced.

ANSFIELD SAID the new drug, 5-FUDR, was produced by the same University of Wisconsin team that came up with 5-FU. The first drug, 5-FU, has been successful in doubling the survival time of some women with breast cancer.

Dr. Charles Heidelberger of the UW's McArdle Cancer Research Hospital conceived both drugs. The UW has been using 5-FU experimentally for five years, and more than 1,000 patients have been treated for periods ranging from several months to 57 months.

Three of these patients have remained well for more than four years, and continued to reserve doses of 5-FU every 30 days. The average length of the improvement period was nine months.

THE 5-FU DRUG has been found helpful chiefly in cases of cancer of the breast, liver, ovaries, mouth of uterus and digestive tract. (S

Mount Prospect Couple Wed in Feb. 24 Rites

Janice L. Costa of Mount Prospect is a recent bride with the unusual circumstance of retaining her initials following her marriage. She and Anthony F. Colosimo Jr., also of M o u n t Prospect, became man and wife on Feb. 24 in St. Raymond Catholic Church, the local parish of the couple. The Rev. Daniel Coughlin officiated at the 11 o'clock nuptials.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Costa, 412 N. Russell, is a graduate of Arlington High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Prospect High, and his family, the senior Anthony Colosimos, live at 19 N. Emerson.

THE NEWLYWEDS are both employed locally, he with Practical Offset Inc. in Arlington Heights and she with Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect. They are now at home in a new apartment in this area.

The ceremony which united the two Mount Prospect families had a member of each family in the wedding party. The bride's sister, Mardel Costa, was bridesmaid, and Mrs. Carol Griner of Northlake was matron of honor. T h e y were gowned identically in pink brocade sheath dresses w i t h pink nylon overskirts. They wore matching pink petal hats and carried 2-toned bouquets of pink carnations.

Donald Colosimo was his brother's usher at the double ring ceremony, and Richard Erber, also of Mount Prospect, was best man.

WEARING A white lace over satin sheath dress accented at the waistline with lace flowers on a satin cummerbund, the bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father. Her veil was held in place by a crystal crown, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white tearoses surrounding a single white orchid.

For the wedding and reception the bride's mother chose a turquoise blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Colosimo wore a beige sheath dress with green accessories, and both mothers had orchid corsages.

The reception took place at Glenview Naval Air Station, where 180 guests were served a buffet supper. (Jenart

Color Key, an entirely new concept of coordinating colors with individual personalities, will be demonstrated for the Women's Auxiliary of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, at a noon luncheon, Thursday, March 29. The new color system is being introduced by Valspar Corporation, manufacturer of paints and varnishes.

The system, originated by color psychologist, Robert C. Dorr, is based on the fact that all colors fit into two color keys and individuals naturally tend to choose the right color key for themselves. According to Dorr, each key has 250 colors that blend well together.

Valspar's Color Key theory is this: Everyone fits into one of the two keys, and if a woman buys only colors in her particular key, she will be happier, will look better not only in wearing apparel, but in the furniture and appointments with which she surrounds herself.

"A WOMAN for instance," Dorr explained, "will seldom use a full tube of lipstick in the opposite key, because she simply doesn't feel comfortable with it."

"Make-up, fashions, furniture, all are included in the Color Key idea," Dorr, explained. He suggested that since wives generally spend more time in their homes than their husbands, they should decorate the home in their respective color key.

DORR'S THEORY is now being taught by the Board of Education in California with an average of 30,000 adults taking the course every 90 days. It is also being taught in California colleges and universities including UCLA, USC and Stanford.

Buffett luncheon will be served beginning at 12:30. Auxiliary members will decorate tables in an imaginative manner to represent the 12 months of the year. Tickets are available at the main desk of the Y and from auxiliary members. There will be no tickets available at the door. (S

Julius Lato, general manager of the Schiller Shops, says, "Although we opened the Golf Mill Shop on Feb. 14, we wanted our official opening to be a meaningful occasion for both the homemakers in the area, and ourselves.

"THIS PARTY, therefore, is being given so that we can get to know the people in the Golf Mill area, and they can get to know us. It's really a 'get acquainted' party."

Those wishing to attend the party are invited to pick up invitation-tickets at the Schiller Shop in Golf Mill Center. (Soc

Homemaker Faces Shopping Dilemma

by BETTY ANSLIE

"What stamps are we trying for this week?" That is the new cry from every shopping bound husband — that is if he plans to remain a member of a trading stamp family.

Every store seems to have its' own brand of stamps, books and premiums, and my tongue is beginning to cling to the roof of my mouth automatically every time I see those bright colored, perforated rectangles.

There was a gay and happy time when I searched all the stores for special food bargains, but suddenly I found my desk drawer cluttered with a wild assortment of stuck-together stamps. Because my husband has an orderly mind he got our young son and a sponge together and I discovered I now had a book of S and H, a few pages of 3 Star, a quarter book of TV, a third of a book of King Corn, a random few of Merchant Green and a small quantity from a department store.

NOW I WAS faced with a problem. Should I pick a book and become a regular customer at the store where that stamp was dispensed? Give up my idle, care-free shopping ways and settle down to serious stamp book filling; or should I remain faithful to bargain hunting? I decided to concentrate and go all out for stamps.

There was a spell when my shopping got so complicated and my purse so full of coupons for extra stamps that I needed a private bookkeeper. I met many other frenzied housewives busy sorting out coupons that had expired from the ones that hadn't, and reaching the checkout counter still frantically checking the items in the basket against the moist coupons held in their hands.

WHO CARED if we got home with assorted soap powders and no meat? The kids were there waiting with premium book in hand to see what they could get now that mom finally made it home with the stamps.

Those enticing premium books in five colors were thumbed through, torn, speculated about and fought over. A new one was as eagerly fallen upon as the Christmas catalogues.

I have a friend who settled the whole premium book problem rather neatly. Each child was allotted a stamp book and the catalogue to go with it. If one week the stamps were S and H the one holding the catalogue got them—another week it could be 3 Star and another happy child; or as my friend said, "Every once in awhile I took a holiday and just shopped in peace with no coupons, no extra stamp bonuses, but you know, I can hardly find a store without a premium of some kind anymore."

OF COURSE she probably defeats the entire advertising scheme; besides she can't keep up a thriving little deal of trading so many stamps that a friend is saving for some of the kind you'd like to have to fill a book.

It isn't that I don't like trading stamps exactly. I admire the genius of the advertising campaign—it's just that I don't like the taste of the glue they use. Anyway, I get an inferiority complex when I see that woman ahead of me in the check-out line with all her coupons neatly cut out, while I'm lucky if I remember to bring the entire newspaper page and stand there in line untidily tearing them out.

I FIND stamp saving has me jealous of that woman with all the bonus coupons too—Now where did she get those little pieces of cardboard that has the cashier putting entire sheets of stamps into her greedy hands? I just bet she's the one who manages to save thirty or forty books with a single minded purpose too.

Anyway, I have this little gnawing feeling that stores are not out to give me things for nothing, and what goes in my purse in the form of stamps must go out in more money for products.

However, another gnawing feeling says I have to shop for groceries and clothes anyway, so why not go to the stores which offer the stamps?

NOW I'VE AN idea geared to the woman who gets faint hearted after saving a stamp book or two. So many times we don't want what one or two books will buy in a premium. Why can't we take our few books to a department store—turn them in for cash value on something more expensive and add the extra money?

Today I decided to go back to shopping where I please. No little colored stamps are going to put a ring in my nose and lead me down the advertisers primrose path. By golly no coupons or sticky bits of paper are going to dictate where I shop—Wonder where I put that card that was in yesterday's mail. Said something about one hundred new stamps free—Guess I'll just stop in to that store and pick up their new premium book.

Let's face it, this time I might really get something for nothing. (S

Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club will hold its annual "Good-as-New-Shop" sale, March 23 and 24 in the Educational Building of St. John United Church of Christ, 308 N. Evergreen, Arlington Heights. This type of benefit was tried for the first time last year and proved to be a financial success and the club is hoping for a repeat performance this year, according to the chairman.

All articles and home-made baked goods will be donated by club members. Items for the sale will be in the "best possible" condition, cleaned, pressed and polished, as this is not a rummage sale. Mrs. Donald Carrara, chairman, announces the sale will start Friday evening, March 23, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and continue Saturday, March 24, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

EACH COMMITTEE in the club will be in charge of a certain department. Board members will direct the sale of jewelry, gift items and housewares; Mrs. Peter Andress, home and garden committee, has the bakery booth; infant ware and miscellaneous items will be managed by the Mexican Migrant Committee, chairman Mrs. Harry Krol. Mrs. Howard Schick's art, literature and music group has the booth with women's and girl's clothing; men's and boy's clothing is headed by Mrs. Scott Ball and her public affairs committee.

"All items will be reasonably priced with many treasures to be found," promised Mrs. Carrara. Proceeds of the sale will go towards the support of the club's philanthropies. Ways and means chairman, Mrs. Bruce Kelly, extends an invitation to everyone to attend and help make this sale even a bigger success than last year. (S Chairmen of the committees, Mrs. Robert Dressler and Mrs. F. Bencriscutto, invite everyone to have donuts and coffee in the "coffee shop" the day of the sale. (S

The Golden Years

Reveal Denominator Of Retirement Time

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here, it seems to me, is a story that pretty well forms the common denominator of retirement in this spring of 1962.

It is the financial situation of a nice, intelligent couple coming up to retirement. It is not a rich couple and not a poor one. But a couple like the couple that lives down the street.

In the words of the wife this is the situation:

"I AM SIX years younger than my 64-year-old husband and his retirement, which comes early next year, has me worried.

"We have always lived in an apartment. This has been a pleasant comfortable home for 20 years, and at present we are paying $100 a month for rent and utilities.

"We would be very happy to remain here but our retirement income will total only $210 a month. Therefore, we can't, not with city food prices and such. We think we had better give up the apartment and move either to the southwest or the southeast corners of the U.S.

"OUR $210 A month comes from my husband's Social Security and his company pension. Other assets we have are as follows: a $6,000 life insurance policy on my husband with his company, a $5,000 private life insurance policy on my husband's life, another $2,000 insurance policy on my husband's life, a $1,000 insurance policy on my life.

"Because we went through the great depression we have tried very hard to build up some savings. As a result we have $5,000 in stocks, $8,000 in a savings account and $8,150 in U.S.bonds.

"I could use some advice in two areas. (1) Is there any way we can manage to stay where we are, or (2) if we must move far away, how can we do it without tremendous expense?"

LOOK FIRST at all that life insurance, which will cost part of the $210 income. The wife certainly doesn't need a life insurance policy at her age because even if she weren't six years younger than her husband, statistics say she would outlive him. The husband has a total of $13,000 in life insurance. That would be nice for his widow to have but at age 62 she can start collecting a Social Security benefit on her own.

Can she also get part of her husband's pension after he dies? If so, and if the total is enough for her to live on, the only life insurance the husband should keep is enough to put him respectfully under the ground. Excess life insurance at retirement age can be useful. In most cases, despite what people tell you, it is not.

Now for those savings. They total $21,150. Invested in conservative stocks or bonds at 4 per cent they would yield $70 a month. This added to the pension will give $280 a month, which is far more money than most couples now going into retirement have. It would enable the couple to remain in a $100-a-month apartment and get by fairly well. (S

Twin Club Schedules Fashion Show April 6

Fashion show go-ers will be seeing double Friday, April 6, in St. James St. Mark United Church, Wheeling, for 13 sets of young twins will be among the models for the first annual show presented by the area's twin club.

Besides fashions for twins, the show will feature fashions for mothers and bathing suits and formals for teenagers. Fashions will be furnished by Sugar 'N Spice of Westgate, Lorraine-Anne of Arlington Heights and Meadowdale and the Ranch Store for Boys, Arlington Heights.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD twins, Peg and Diane Henaughan of Rolling Meadows will be among the models April 6 when the area's twin club, newly-named the Double Dydee Club, stages a fashion show in St. Mark United Church, Wheeling. (S

THE CLUB, still in its first year of existence, now has 44 mothers of twins comprising its membership and has selected the name of "Double Dydee Club" as official club name. The group meets the third Thursday of each month and area mothers of twins of all ages are eligible. The April 19 meeting will feature the club's second rummage sale of twin clothing. Meetings are held in the Lauterburg and Oehler meeting room, Arlington Heights.

February's meeting featured Dr. Frank Hesser, O.B., who spoke on twins from the obstetrical standpoint. Being a mirror twin, he also gave some of his personal experiences. The club hopes to have a return visit of Dr. Hesser, along with his mirror twin, Dr. Charles Hesser, an internist, in the fall.

Tickets for the fashion show, which will be held at 8 p.m., are available from Mrs. Robert Barilow, FL 9-0205. (S

Girl Scouts Offer Cookie Recipes Week Before Big Sale

Marianne Scott, Women's Editor

March 30 is the date of the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale. On that day, starting at 4 p.m., uniformed Brownies and Girl Scouts of the northwest suburbs will conduct a house-to-house campaign in an effort to raise funds.

A small portion of the proceeds will remain with individual troops, but the greater amount is slated to be used for camp development and maintenance, thereby providing better facilities for hundreds of scouts the year 'round.

JUST IN TIME for the cookie sale are the following "clip and save" recipes made with two Girl Scout cookie varieties — chocolate mints and butter flavored shorties. They are scout-approved" and provide a delicious dinner finale.

GIRL SCOUT COOKIE DESSERTS

Apricot Whip
(Use stewed dried fruit to taste)
½ Tbl. plain gelatin
3 Tbl. cold water
1 cup hot apricot syrup
¾ cup crumbled Shorties
1 cup whipping cream
12 stewed apricot halves

Soften gelatin in cold water; add to hot syrup and stir until dissolved. Cool and chill. When slightly jelled and beginning to set, whip until light and fluffy.

Fold in crumbled cookies and whipped cream. Place apricot halves in bottom of mold and stand shorties around edge. Pour in gelatin mixture and chill until firm.

Cookie Souffle
(Using Butter Flavored Shorties)
1 cup scalded milk
12 cookies - broken
4 egg yolks

Pour milk over cookies, add well beaten yolks and cook in double boiler until thick. Cool. Add vanilla and stiffly beaten whites and salt. Put in a pudding dish in pan of warm water to bake for 35 minutes at 325 degrees.

May be served with chocolate sauce.

Mint Ice Cream
(Using Chocolate Mints)
1 can condensed milk (sweet)
12 to 20 Mints — thoroughly chilled to make brittle.

Whip cream and add condensed milk slowly mixing well. Put mints in a paper bag or between two sheets of heavy oil paper and roll to crumbs. Stir these into the cream and pour into the tray of electric refrigerator.

When partially frozen, remove from refrigerator and stir once more.

Chocolate Cream Ice Box Cake
(Using Shorties)
1 cup heavy cream
¼ cup sugar
½ cup instant sweet cocoa mix, or ½ cup cocoa and ¼ cup sugar dash of salt
½ tsp. vanilla
12 butter flavored Shorties

Whip cream mixed with cocoa mix or cocoa and sugar, salt and vanilla, until thick. Spread some of the mixture on each cookies and put them together in a stack or roll, placing on a platter or refrigerator dish.

Frost outside with remaining chocolate cream. Store in refrigerator 8 hours or overnight, then cut in diagonal slices about one inch thick.

For Mocha Roll, add 1 to 2 tsp. instant coffee to the cream mixture. Serve with chocolate sauce.

Date and Nut Roll
(Using Shorties)
1 doz. cookies — broken, but not too fine
¾ cup chopped dates
14 marshmallows — cut up
1 cup chopped nuts

Combine the above — saving ½ cup crumbs. Mix well and roll up with ½ cup crumbs on the outside. Wrap in waxed paper and put in refrigerator at least five hours. Cut in slices and top with whipped cream.

PREPARING CHOCOLATE Cream Ice Box Cake, one of the desserts being featured this week, are Girl Scouts Susan Kastning, 507 N. Pine, Arlington Heights; Patricia Carstrom, 3600 Bob-O-Link, Rolling Meadows; and Carol Donahue, 324 Pleasant, Hoffman Estates. Dessert treats listed are all made with cookies area scouts will be selling in campaign March 30. (SSD

Grading Wives

Behind Every Man Is a . . .

WASHINGTON, (UPI — Rep. Leslie C. Arends, R-Ill., last week blasted the Navy's announcement that officer's wives would be graded right along with the officers themselves when the time comes to pass out promotions.

Arends, senior Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, said, "A good Navy officer is trained to be a fighting tiger, not a social lion."

The Navy announcement was viewed in some quarters as a reflection of the fact that Naval offices frequently shoulder semi-diplomatic duties.

But Arends wasn't buying it.

"REPORTING on an officer's wife as a factor in determining his qualifications is not in the best interests of the Navy," Arends said. "No senior officer should be called upon to evaluate the marital affairs of his junior.

"Whether a certain officer's wife is attractive, charming, gracious, cultured, rich or poor materially or intellectually, has nothing to do with the performance of an officer."

"The value of a Navy officer is his ability to command a ship and not his wife's ability to engage in sparkling conversation at a reception or tea," Arends said. (SOC

Specialist Warns:

Don't Start Lessons On Piano Too Soon

Children will be more likely to keep up interest in piano playing if lessons are not started too soon, and too formally, say a University of Illinois music specialist.

Therefore, Robert B. Smith advises beginning formal lessons only when the child is physically able to handle the piano and has thoroughly explored the instrument informally.

Most children will have the strength and coordination for piano playing if they are at least eight years old. But the child who isn't this old and who still wants to play may explore the piano informally.

TO GUIDE A youngster successfully through informal piano exploration, an adult or older child must have some musical background and patience. But it's worth it because it helps the child learn to have fun with the piano before he has to get down to the "business" of practicing.

And he's more apt to be relaxed in piano playing when formal lessons do begin if he's had time to tinker a bit first.

The ear-approach is an ideal way to start young children in piano playing. Encourgae the child to pick out simple tunes on the piano. Select melodies he is thoroughly familiar with, and preferably ones he can sing.

SHORT SONGS, such as "Mary Had a Little Lamb," are good starters. Simply show the child where to put his hands and let him start singing and pecking away to get the tune he wants.

Contrary to popular opinion, learning to play the piano "by ear" is not harmful. Of course, carried to extremes during formal piano lessons, the practice might lead to sloppy and inaccurate playing.

Unfortunately, composers and publishers have produced little material to help the parent who wants to introduce his child to the piano in an informal way.

HOWEVER, two good publications that do provide such help are "The Two of Us" by Guy Maier and Mary Jarman Nelson and "Tunes to Play and Play With" by Stanley Fletcher. (S

Three Years Ahead

American Airlines Is Pacesetter in Design

THE WORLD'S NEWEST jetliner — the Convair 990 — will be flown exclusively in the United States by American Airlines. Pictured above, its most distinguishing features are four "speed capsules" atop the wings. American will refer to the second-generation jetliner powered by four General Electric aftfan engines as the 990 Astrojet. In the background is an American 707 Astrojet. (T

American Airlines' 990 Astrojet — world's newest airliner — in its design features and systems is three full years ahead of any standard jet transport now flying.

It is the first airliner designed specifically around the fanjet engine with its superior performance and fuel economy compared to conventional jet engines. And the 990 Astrojet is so entirely different in appearance that even the most casual observer will be able to distinguish it from earlier-model jet transports.

Most conspicuous of the many engineering advances built into the second-generation Convair jetliner are the four streamlined "speed capsules" atop the wing and extending beyond the trailing edge.

In flight, as the air flows over the curved upper surface of the wing at near supersonic speeds, the 990's capsules delay the formation of shock waves and resulting "drag" which hamper the older jet transport designs at high speeds. In effect, they smooth the supersonic air flow over the wing.

AS A RESULT, the 990 is certificated by the Federal Aviation Agency for a top speed of mach .91 (639 mph)—right at the edge of the speed of sound.

This is about as close to the sound barrier any passenger jet transport is expected to be certificated to fly until the arrival of supersonic transports 10-15 years hence. The capsules also contribute to the 990's large fuel capacity since they serve as additional tanks.

At first glance, some observers may think the speed capsules are four additional engine pods. Others have likened their shape to inverted canoes. In any case, the capsules leave no doubt that the airliner is indeed the 990 Astrojet.

THOUGH the speed capsules are the most readily discernible evidence of the advance design of the 990, the sharp-eyed layman might be able to spot another important innovation of the Astrojet—its General Electric aftfan engines.

The four G-E powerplants are housed in barrel-shaped pods almost six feet in diameter, a size made necessary because large "bypass" air ducts almost surround the basic jet and lead to the aftfan component.

Combined with the fan is a turbine in an additional free-spinning stage, or wheel, at the rear of the basic jet engine. The inner circle of the wheel forms the turbine which is rotated by the high velocity exhaust of the basic jet. The wheel's outer portion made up of the fan blades compacts the "bypass" air to form a low velocity jet, surrounding the hot jet.

RESULT OF the combination of the lower jet velocity and the greatly increased amount of air drawn into the engine is a 40 per cent increase in takeoff thrust over conventional jets, and with lower fuel consumption.

American accepted its first 990 at San Diego early in January, 1962. Prior to delivery, select flight, maintenance and service crews underwent indoctrination at San Diego for several months. Between time of delivery of the first of the 990s and the start of initial passenger service on March 18, American's 990 flight and other personnel were put through further extensive training.

Included were hundreds of hours of training flights and proving flights over routes the airplane will be flying in passenger service.

EARLIER, ON December 15, 1961, the 990 received its FAA type certification for scheduled passenger service, following hundreds of hours of flying simulated airline schedules throughout the United States.

During this period, the 990 made more than 110 takeoffs and landings and cruised some 76,000 miles during the 210 flight hours it accumulated before the type certification.

It adds up to one of the most comprehensive pre - introductory schedules ever for a new airliner.

With delivery of the 990s, which numbered five at the time initial service was inaugurated in March, American continues to have the only fully fan-powered jet fleet in the U.S. American's 48 707 Astrojets now in the fleet are also powered by fanjets, but in their case the fan is mounted in front of the basic engine. Vacation 'Package' Set by Two Lines

Delta Air Lines and Matson Lines have teamed up to promote a five-destination vacation package designed to lure residents of the Southern states to California, Matson's floating resorts, and Hawaii.

This was announced jointly by Walter Sternberg, Matson vice president, passenger division, and T. M. Miller, Delta's vice president, traffic and sales.

The multi-destination Pacific vacation package calls for two days of sightseeing, a 4½-day cruise to Hawaii on a Matson floating resort, several days in Hawaii including a tour of Hawaii's neighbor islands, and return to either Los Angeles or San Francisco before returning home via Delta.

INITIAL advertising in the Matson-Delta campaign started March 11 in Sunday travel sections of newspapers across the Southern tier of Delta's transcontinental system.

Sternberg said: "Matson is convinced that the time is right to offer vacation-minded people of the South and Southwest fresh new vacation opportunities in the Peaceful Pacific, away from the steaming hot days of a sultry Southern Summer."

Miller said: "Delta is proud to participate with Matson in bringing the 'Five Fabulous Pacific Playgrounds' vacation package to the South because it opens an entirely new vacation gateway for Southerners.

"Delta's connections to the Matson liners Lurline and Matsonia on the West Coast give the South a new concept of vacations that combine the 600-mile-per-hour jet age with the ageless compelling lure of the sea." (T

High School 'Sweethearts' Wed in Valentine Setting

Two Ela Vernon High School graduates, Miss Lillian Mantey and Spencer Koch, repeated wedding vows in a pre-St. Valentine's Day ceremony conducted Feb. 10 in St. John Lutheran Church in Northbrook.

Two altar baskets of red and white flowers carried out the valentine theme. Other decorations were ribbons on pews, altar vases of white flowers and four candle holders. The double ring rites were held at 5 p.m. in a candlelight setting.

UNITING THE daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mantey and the son of the Melvin Mailfalds, all of whom reside on Aptakisic Road, Prairie View, was Rev. W. Fechner. "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Benediction" were provided by Mrs. Ruth Horn and Mrs. Carol Hemmter, organist and soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chantilly lace and society taffeta gown, styled in chapel-length. Details were long, pointed sleeves and demure neckline, adorned with iridescent sequins and pearls, which also accented the bodice.

CHANTILLY lace appliques, trimmed in the same manner, highlighted the full skirt; her silk illusion bouffant ballerina veil was held in place by an aurora borealis crystal and pearl crown. Bridal flowers were stephanotis, white roses and a single orchid, centered, in cascade shape.

Dolores Mantey served her sister as maid of honor while Sherron Korbelik of Marian Woods; Wilma Koch, Prairie View; and Karen Knigge, Lake Zurich; took the parts of bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in red taffeta, with matching bow hats and bouffant veils.

DESIGNED WITH goblet-type skirts, their gowns had lace jackets, bracelet-length sleeves, floating panels and fitted bodices, marked with taffeta cummerbunds. Flowers were cascades of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Mantey was attired in a winter white sheath and green cymbidium corsage. The groom's mother preferred a beige silk sheath with overcoat and the same flowers in the color beige.

THE RECEPTION and dinner, held in Buffalo Grove at 7 p.m., was attended by 250 guests. Among them were members of the grom's party: Reggie Rich of Prairie View, best man; and ushers, Jim Moehling, Half Day; Bill Able, Rolling Meadows and Dennis Schellin, also of Prairie View.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Koch honeymooned in Miami for two weeks and are now at home in Arlington Heights. The bride is employed at Martin's Hair Fashions in Mount Prospect and the groom is employed at Jewel Tea Co. in Rolling Meadows. (Jenart

Eastern Air Lines Sets 1961 'On Time' Record

Operating records now on file with the Civil Aeronautics Board for the year 1961 put Eastern Air Lines in first place for "on-time" performance, with a record mark of 83.83 per cent of all non-stop and one-stop flights completed on time or within 15 minutes of published schedules.

The number of CAB-monitored flights operated during the year by Eastern totaled 63,234.

EASTERN ALSO won top honors for the highest mark reached in one month, with a record-breaking 87 per cent "on-time" flights in November, and led all airlines for 7 of the 12 months.

The monitoring of airline performance matched against their public timetables was begun by the Civil Aeronautics Board in mid-1959. Operations are based on scheduled aircraft arrivals, and include all causes of delay such as weather and air traffic conditions, even though the carrier has no control over these. To qualify flights must be on time or within 15 minutes of the schedule advertised to the public. (BB

Reduce Weight and Fatten Pocketbook

A protein-rich diet—the kind so widely-touted by many nutritionists—takes no genius if planned around filet mignon and T-bone steak. It merely takes money!

The neat trick is a protein-rich diet based on family favorites. It offers a chance to reduce at the same rate of a couple of pounds a week—while fattening your pocketbook.

PROTEIN IS IN almost every part of you—and protein is what repairs the wear and tear on your tissues while your body uses up that unbecoming fat for energy. Foods high in protein have a stick-to-the-ribs quality that helps keep reducers firmly on course.

Where protein is, most essential vitamins and minerals are near by—another reason calorie-low, but protein-high foods form the ideal base for this balanced, thrifty, easy-to-live-with diet. You'll also establish an excellent eating pattern. Your new habits will let you keep that weight down!

Meat is king in your diet plan. That's because meat as we eat it today boasts 26 per cent fewer calories, 46 per cent less fat, and 23 per cent more protein than years ago.

HOW COME? People's tastes have changed—they prefer meat with less fat. Also, both men and women worry about overweight. So by popular demand for leaner meat, cattle and hogs are bred for leanness. Your meatman cooperates by trimming excess fat from his retail cuts. Turkeys and chickens are leaner, too.

Good main dishes, high in protein, economical in cost and calories, include the following:

Ground beef as patties or meat loaf (ground round steak has fewer calories than chuck or "hamburger" meat.)

Lean pork; liver and other variety meats; frankfurters; luncheon meats; turkey; chicken; diatetic pack tuna; Haddock; Cod; eggs and cottage cheese.

WHEN YOU'LL like a nice broiled steak or oven roast, remember meat tenderizer for budget cuts. Watch for specials on lean meats. Cook eggs in shell, poach; scramble or "fry" in nonstick coated skillet, the editors offer.

Too many women go right on buying the same foods each week, cooking and dishing them up in the same ways—never bringing to this most tasty of all activities the relish and change of pace it can so easily have.

There are so many ways to feed a family well, and to do it on less money than you are spending now.

There are a number of ways you can shop and save money at the same time. For instance, take time to plan your meals in advance. That way, you'll know what you need for the week when you make the trip to the grocery store, and you won't pick up many unnecessary odds and ends.

SPEND YOUR FOOD money for food. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, we spend 20 per cent of our disposable income (what's left after taxes) for food.

The 20 per cent figure is not meant to cover everything—just food alone, not the toothbrushes, cigarettes, records and even clothes you put in the cart along with carrots and hot dogs.

What you feed the family next week probably will be determined by what grocers in your area serve up this weekend to tantalize you. Or at least it should be.

Grocers entice us into their stores with rather spectacular specials, some of them at cost or even under, in hopes we'll shop for those specials, then stay to buy the week's supplies. It's good practice, too, for it doesn't make sense going from store to store to pick up a bargain here and there.

IF YOU DON'T need meat and you do enjoy shopping around, then find another appealing weekend special to lead you to a certain store, possibly a good buy in a staple like sugar or flour, detergent, or juice. Just be sure the "special" is something you really want and need—then load up.

Remember, high price doesn't guarantee high quality in taste or food value.

An outsize picture-book apple is lovely in a centerpiece, but it can be as tasteless as cardboard. A 49-cent pound of ground beef packs more protein and nutrition than a $1.29-pound of T-bone, because it contains no waste. Pork liver is higher in nutritive value than calf liver, at less than half the price.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS include being flexible in your food plan; use convenience foods (fully or partially prepared); and serve company "next best" and save the best for your family.

Whether it's a party or a meal to serve in a hurry to the family only, you can afford anything the grocer has there to tantalize you—at least once in a while.

And by playing it smart and making a game of getting the most out of your food dollar, you will come up with extra dollars for luxuries every once in a while.

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

Chicago's 125th Anniversary Party

By DOLORES HAUGH

As the song goes "Chicago, Chicago, The Talk of the Town, I'll show you Around," well here it is 125 years since Chicago became an incorporated city. And being so close to the place itself there are ideas unlimited for a Chicago Party.

INVITATIONS

A double fold card with a rough but identifying city outline or picture post cards obtained in Chicago may be your invitations. Just write:

Having a wonderful time
Hope you can join us
Wish you'd be here- address
On DATE—we'll meet at 8.
RSVP seeing you? Phone Number.

Mail your cards early as you may want to take the party, be it small, into a club, show, museum or on an old fashioned rubber-neck sight seeing bus tour. If you decide the latter, call CL 3-3996, for complete information. You will be surprised how inexpensive a tour of Chicago is. This would be a real "whammer" for some 8 to 10-year-olds, as the tour takes in Chinatown and all the museums and hotels without leaving the bus. If it is for an older group, you can do it at night and see lights second only to Broadway.

PREPARATIONS

Here is the most important thing, the preparation. You must decide what you can afford both in money and in time. You must decide how many guest children you can safely handle. Then make all arrangements well enough ahead so that no slip ups or disappointments will occur.

Another idea is just a round trip to the loop by bus past Lake Michigan and up the outer drive. If you take children it is wise to limit the number to the number of adults so each child has a hand to hold.

As for a stay at home party it is a breeze. Travel folders, souveniers and all kinds of games using famous places, landmarks, historical events and songs can be used. This would be a "goodie" for teenagers, too, and helps with history grades.

DECORATIONS AND ENTERTAINMENT

Pennants and flags, World's Fair Souvenirs, and almost any newspapers you can find will yield decorations for the wall.

Give prizes wrapped in street guides of Chicago, for the person guessing the actual date Chicago became a city. This may be a gold oversized Key to the City. Of course, Mayor Daley could appear and other well known personages portrayed by guests clued early so they could masquerade. A little research will give you plenty of ideas for games. Decorate your table with postal cards showing various places in the city. Serve your beverages at a Buckingham Fountain which is rentable at a local liquor store, and the cake can be baked in a round can to symbolize the new Marine Buildings. Hot canapes can depict the Chicago Fire.

IF YOU DECIDE on a party for a child the birthday cake and packages could be opened and then followed by the trek to the city, or just pack a lunch and go to a museum for the day. A trip through the coal mine at the Museum of Science and Industry is a day and a half of fun. (S

Palatine 'Neighbors' Marry, Honeymoon in Sunny Florida

A neighboring couple who resided on the same street in Palatine, just two blocks apart, became man and wife on March 3. They are the former Nancy J. Fulwider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gale S. Fulwider of North Olmsted, Ohio, and Robert E. Burke, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Mathews, Ingleside.

St. Bede Church in Fox Lake was the scene of their double ring service, an 11 o'clock Mass officiated at by Fr. Coffey. Miss Fulwider, wearing a handmade original design suit, was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father.

A pink cymbidium and white carnation corsage accented the grey and white striped outfit, styled with semi-bolero jacket and straight skirt. Black "frogs" decorated the jacket front and sleeves and the silk lining was in shocking pink.

IN MATCHING pink tulle was the bride's pillbox hat, dotted with rosebuds. Flowers of matron of honor, Mrs. Connie Sander of Arlington Heights, were yellow cymbidiums and carnations, used to contrast her grey-blue suit and hat.

Orange carnation corsages were worn by both mothers. Mrs. Fulwider selected a black and beige dress with leopard accessories for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother was attired in a purple dress, highlighted with a white collar.

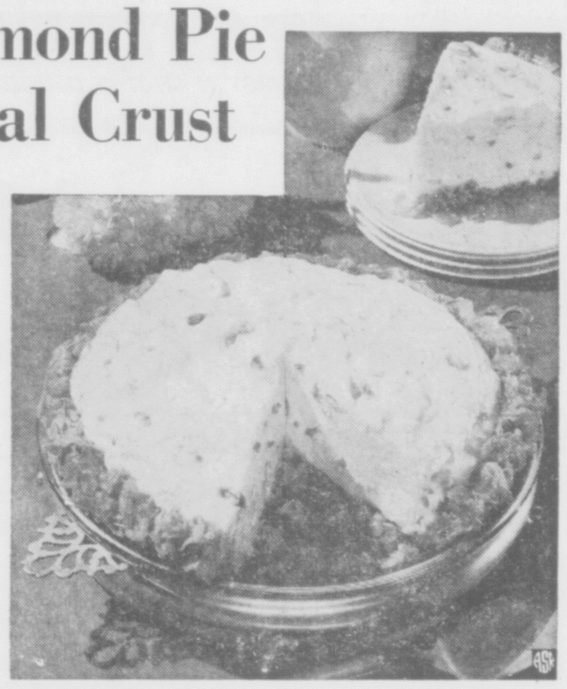
Best man was Paul Farrigan of Antioch; ushers were Bob Bein, Bud Scott and Jim Jensen, all of Fox Lake. They were among 100 guests who later feted the newlyweds at an open house and dinner held in the home of the groom's parents.

HONEYMOON destination was Fort Lauderdale for a week's stay. The pair is now residing at the bride's address, 306 Brockway, Palatine. The groom formerly lived at 152 Brockway.

A '56 Arlington High School graduate, the bride also attended Western Michigan University and is employed at Northern Illinois Gas Co. She and her parents are former Arlington Heights residents.

Mr. Burke completed studies at Grant High School in '55, attended Northern Illinois University and is now with the E and J Gallo Winery. (S

Sherry Almond Pie With Cereal Crust



The fluffy lightness and delicate flavor of Sherry Almond Pie is perfectly complemented by the corn flake crust. This pie is a good choice of dessert to serve at the end of a rather hearty meal, or for light refreshments at a luncheon or dessert party.

The nutritive value of recipes is improved when breakfast cereals are used as an ingredient.

SHERRY ALMOND PIE

Crust

3 cups corn flakes, slightly crushed to make 2 cups
1/3 cup sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Filling

1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
¾ cup sugar
½ cup whipping cream, whipped
¼ cup sherry
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ cup chopped toasted almonds

Make crust. Place cereal in greased bowl and set aside. Combine sugar, syrup, salt, and butter or margarine in small saucepan. Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring to dissolve sugar.

Continue cooking until a small amount of syrup forms a firm ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 246 degrees). Remove from heat; gently stir in almond extract.

DRIZZLE syrup over flakes; mix carefully but well. Press mixture gently over bottom and sides of well-greased 9-inch pie pan. Chill. Make filling. Soften gelatin in cold water.

Combine slightly beaten egg yolks, milk, ½ cup sugar, and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Add softened gelatin; stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to set. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and continue beating until stiff and glossy.

FOLD EGG white mixture, whipped cream, sherry, vanilla, and almonds into gelatin mixture. Pour into chilled crust. Refrigerate several hours until firm.

Yield: 6 servings. (SH

Alaska Salmon High In Protein, Calcium

Salmon, one of the tastiest members of the fish family, is an excellent choice for those meatless days throughout the year and especially during Lent.

All fish contains nutritional elements, but salmon is higher in protein and calcium and lower in calories and fat than most other species.

NOT ONLY ALASKANS but Americans in probably all the other 49 states enjoy luscious salmon steaks native to the waters of the Pacific Northwest, thanks to fast freezing methods and quick shipping of the fresh fish.

Here's a simple recipe for either baking or broiling the steaks. The flavoring trick is Tabasco, the peppy red liquid spice—as indispensable to fish as butter! Tabasco combines with melted butter and lime or lemon juice to enhance the fresh fish flavor.

For a gourmet garnish, serve the steaks with a fresh, creamy cucumber sauce of sour cream, diced cucumber and zesty Tabasco.

SALMON STEAKS ALASKA

4½ teaspoons lime or lemon juice
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
4 salmon steaks, fresh or frozen, cut 1-inch thick

Combine butter, lime juice and Tabasco. To bake, place salmon steaks in shallow baking dish. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Pour Tabasco butter over steaks.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees), 25 to 30 minutes, or until easily flaked with a fork. To broil, place salmon steaks on greased broiler rack.

SPRINKLE LIGHTLY with salt; pour Tabasco butter over steaks. Place in pre-heated broiler 4 inches from heat. Broil 15 minutes, or until easily flaked with a fork. If desired, garnish with lime or lemon slices.

Serve with *Cucumber Sauce. Yield: four servings.

NOTE: If steaks are frozen, thaw in refrigerator, or cook unthawed according to package directions.

CUCUMBER SAUCE

½ pint commercial sour cream
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon snipped dill, optional
1 cup diced cucumber (with peel on)

Blend together sour cream and Tabasco; stir in remaining ingredients. Yield: Approximately 2 cups. (SH

Skillet Tuna Croquettes Are Economical Main Dish

Tuna croquettes, made a new streamlined way, suggest an interesting method for making a quick and satisfying main dish. To prepare the croquette mixture, tuna in vegetable oil is combined with bread crumbs and grated onion in a white sauce.

Chilled in a refrigerator tray for an hour this mixture may easily be sliced into the croquette-size servings.

The croquettes are dipped in egg and additional bread crumbs, then browned in a skillet. Additional white sauce with a touch of wine and other seasonings tops the cooked tuna slices.

TUNA, AMERICA'S favorite canned fish, is easy and economical to work with because nothing goes to waste. Even the vegetable oil in which tuna is packed can be used to flavorful advantage in recipes.

In addition to popular flavor and ease of use, tuna boasts excellent protein, vitamins and such minerals as calcium, phosphorus and iodine.

TUNA CROQUETTES

2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
6 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups evaporated milk
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2/3 cup dry bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons water

Heat 4 tablespoons of the tuna oil add flour, salt and pepper; stir to a smooth paste. Add evaporated milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil.

Measure one cup of the sauce; add to tuna with onion, lemon juice and soft bread crumbs; mix well. Reserve remaining sauce. Line freezing tray with waxed paper.

TURN TUNA mixture into tray; chill in freezing compartment one hour. Turn out and cut into 6 or 8 croquettes. Dip croquettes first in dry bread crumbs, then in egg and water mixture, then in crumbs again.

Heat fat in skillet; cook to golden brown on both sides. Serve with *Sauce Piquant. Yield: 3 to 4 servings.

SAUCE PIQUANT

To the remaining sauce, add ¼ cup mayonnaise, ¼ cup milk, ¼ cup white table wine, chopped parsley and teaspoon salt. Heat to serving temperature. Yield: 1¼ cups. (SH TUNA COOKED IN Skillet-Golden coated croquettes, full of flavor, boast neat contrast of crisp bread crumb crust and tender tuna center. Sauce Piquant and pimento "fish cut-outs" add a finishing touch. (SH

Tempt Man of House With Tasty 'Caesar'

That full-bodied Caesar Salad, frequently featured in smart restaurants as a meal in itself, is a salad men love. Don't let its importance as a specialty frighten you into thinking it is a time-consuming dish that takes great artistry in the making.

The secret of it all is in the addition of the egg, which binds the basic oil and vinegar dressing and the cheese to the greens. The croutons, steeped in garlic, so crunchy and filling, can be made ahead of meal time.

IT'S FUN TO choose a variety of greens—your favorite romaine, iceberg, bibb or leaf lettuce as a beginning. Then, if you want to give it more excitement, add a bit of bittersweet endive, chicory or escarole, the cabbages Chinese or Savoy.

But be sure to have them chilled, crisp and dry.

Now to make it easier, there's a new prepared Parmesan cheese with garlic salad dressing mix on the market that's perfect for Caesar salad. Dip the croutons in a little of the dressing to give them full flavor.

And for more fun—while the man of the house is enjoying his "Caesar"—

CAESAR SALLIED WHILE CLEO BURNED

When Caesar said "sal" to his own favorite gal
He really was saying, "Cleo, those greens from the Nile,
Can be dressed up in style,
With cheese from Parma and garlic from Rome.
But Cleo said, "Honey, I'm a queen, not a cook,
And a fellow named Anthony is more in my book."
A basket of eggs she tossed at his head . . .
They lit in his salad and then Caesar said,
"For wars and for women I may never have fame,
But I've found me a salad to carry my name!"

CAESAR SALAD

2 quarts bite size pieces romaine or assorted salad greens
1 envelope Parmesan salad dressing mix
Vinegar, water and oil
1 egg, slightly beaten
6 anchovy fillets, chopped (optional)
1 cup bread croutons

To make salad dressing combine vinegar, water and oil with Parmesan salad dressing mix as directed on cruet or envelope.

Place greens in salad bowl. Add ½ cup salad dressing and toss together. Add egg and toss with greens until specks of egg disappear. Add anchovy fillets and croutons.

Toss together lightly. Makes 8 to 10 servings. (SH

Nest Egg Recipe All-Time Bargain

When you're shopping for food, how do you know what foods give you the most for your money? Actual money spent is, of course, the first rule of thumb.

But for each dollar the cash register rings up, you also have to think of what that dollar buys in terms of nutrition, flavor and edible portion.

In this modern world, your time and convenience are worth money, too.

ON EVERY ONE of these counts, chicken rings the bell. Its price remains uniformly low from year to year in fact, the National Broiler Council reports that the price of broiler-fryers has actually declined in recent years, presenting a sharp and welcome contrast to most other food prices.

In the nutrition field, chicken also shines. Serving for serving, it provides more protein and less calories than other popular meats.

THE SAME KIND of bargain holds true for edible portions allowing for bones, gristle and cooking shrinkage, a dollar spent on chicken gives you more edible meat than a dollar spent elsewhere in the meat department.

As for flavor, the universal popularity of chicken the world over is an eloquent testimonial to the excellence and versatility of this remarkable bird.

And, if you decide to bake chicken it earns a top score in the time and convenience department. You can season before baking or devise an interesting basting sauce if you want to add an exotic flavor touch.

TO PREPARE baked chicken, simply rub the skin with a little softened butter, season with salt and pepper and any herbs desired, tarragon or rosemary are both excellent choices, and place the quarters, skin side down, in a foil-lined baking dish.

Let the chicken bake for half an hour then turn the pieces and add enough liquid to keep them moist. Twenty minutes later your chicken will be done, providing you with a dish that meets every test: flavor, nutrition and economy.

BAKED CHICKEN

2 tablespoons softened butter
Salt
Pepper

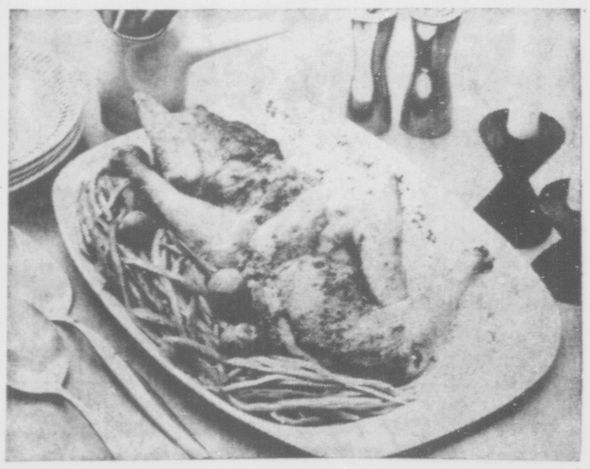
Rub chicken with butter sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place quarters, skin side down, in shallow baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes. Turn chicken, add water. Bake 20 minutes longer. Yield: 4 servings. (SH

Q. May one pour gravy from the gravy pitcher, or must one always use a gravy ladle?

A. If there is a ladle in the pitcher, use it. If, however, no ladle has been provided, it is quite proper then to pour from the pitcher.

Q. Is it correct for relatives and friends of newlyweds to call on them in their new home without waiting to be invited?

A. This is quite all right.



THIS "QUICKIE" dinner idea is a great one, especially for the budget. Within less than an hour, you can prepare this simple menu of a baked broiler-fryer with fluffy rice, green beans and mushrooms. (SH

Chicken, Mushroom Soups Add Flavor

by LOIS SEILER

Easy and economical to prepare is the way Mrs. Joseph A. Heerens of Mount Prospect describes one of her favorite casserole recipes.

Called a Hamburger Chop Suey Casserole, this dish combines ground beef, chopped onion and celery with cream of mushroom and chicken soups. Soy sauce is used as a seasoning, and the mixture is spooned over cooked rice.

Baked for an hour, this tasty casserole needs only a tossed salad and rolls as accompaniments. Mrs. Heerens often serves this meal for Sunday night suppers when the family comes to call.

A lovely, light Orange Custard Delight makes an appealing dessert for this hearty dish. Mrs. Heerens received this Scandinavian recipe from her husband's mother, and although fancy in appearance it is relatively easy to prepare.

SLICED AND sugared oranges are placed in a baking dish and covered with a creamy custard. A fluffy meringue is spread over the top and then the dish is placed in the oven to brown. It is spooned into sauce dishes to serve.

A flavorful dessert called Fruit Cocktail Crunch is another of this good cook's favorite recipes.

"Because it is rich and rather heavy, I prefer serving this as an afternoon or late evening dessert," she said.

QUICK AND easy to assemble, fruit cocktail crunch consists of a batter containing drained fruit cocktail. It is baked with a topping of brown sugar and pecans.

Served topped with whipped cream, this moist-textured dessert with its crunchy topping is delicious company fare.

The Heerens family moved to their home at 407 S. Albert in Mount Prospect two years ago. They have two daughters: Kathy, 2½, and Cindy, who is 16 months old. Mrs. Heerens is a member of the Northwest Suburban chapter of the AAUW and the Mount Prospect Woman's club.

APPEALING TO YOUNG and old alike is the delightful Orange Custard dessert being served by Mrs. Joseph A. Heerens of Mount Prospect to her daughters, Kathy and Cindy. This light Scandinavian custard with its meringue topping is perfect to serve following a hearty meal. (SH

Week's Best Food Buys

The immobile problem of weather logistics met the irresistible force of consumer merchandising at grocery stores this week, with this dramatic result: retail prices are either seasonally high or sensationally low, depending on those lines signaled as features.

The University of Illinois notes in its weekly consumer food survey for the marketing period ending March 24 that livestock arrivals are drastically reduced by snow-clogged transit; wholesale red meat supplies rated less than adequate; and fresh fish supplies are severely restricted in selection and quality.

WEATHER-PLAGUED fresh produce supplies are limited, vegetables down 12 per cent in volume from year-ago, with costs soaring to highest levels of note in the U of I seven-year food survey service.

Retail food prices covering the above are pegged high as a tool to slow movement, except on those limited selections used as feature drawing cards in the current merchandising scramble.

As a footnote, even the low-low 'best buy' tags could drop further in the intensifying competitive tussle.

POULTRY LINES stand out in bold relief from this pattern, bulging with upward cycling production rates and backed by whopping frozen storage supplies that now exceed year-ago levels by 77,739,000 pounds.

The U of I consensus bargain list looks to values in poultry, pork and citrus in the following selections: poultry — fryers, large size eggs, stewing hens; meats — pork roasts and chops, bacon, picnics, lamb leg roasts, beef chuck roasts; produce — oranges, grapefruit, lemons, cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, potatoes; groceries — frozen orange juice.

FRYERS TAKE a value position if only by default on competitive market factors, costs falling on better supplies. Competitive retails hold the 29-33 cent range.

Stewing hen markets weakened slightly as the processing cycle turned up, to begin relieving a storage deficit of some 5,123,000 pounds under year-ago.

Competitive retails range 39-43 cents. Roasters, storage some 3,000,000 pounds ahead of last year, now quote widely 45-59 cents, as do ducks that also show a million pound storage bulge.

TURKEYS "Rule the Roost" in storage, with 66,165,000 more pounds than last year. Retails quote a sliding scale up to 49 cents on hens. Toms hold promotional glamor from 29 cents.

A seasonal upswing in egg production and steady demand holds retail quotes at last week's 49-53 cents for large size grade A, unless tapped for promotion.

Retail quotes on red meats are little changed from last week and are precarious references at best.

BEHIND BOTH the meat and fish lines are supply problems. Cattle receipts fell below last week's low count and under year-ago levels, with more arrivals of lower grades. Hog receipts were the lowest since August.

Lamb supplies were sharply reduced. Quotes generally firmed on the better grades and finishes, and held steady or dropped fractionally on lower grades. Wholesales responded only slightly, at steady to fractionally higher quotes.

Few optimistic words are heard about this year's fresh fish supplies. Even stocks of river fish are short. Prices range broadly by size, selection and quality.

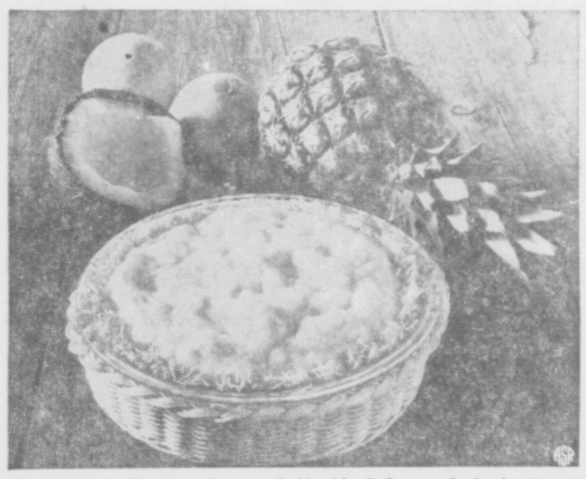
Produce opportunities are almost exclusively in citrus lines, oranges, grapefruit and lemons.

Food of the Gods— Rich Ambrosia Pie



The luscious flavors of canned crushed pineapple and orange blend beautifully in this fluffy, melt-in-your-mouth pie filling.

It's piled into a tender coconut crust that's easy to make, then chilled to set. So delectable and elegant, it's rightly named ambrosia — food of the gods.

PINEAPPLE AMBROSIA PIE

1 (9-ounce) can crushed pineapple
Orange juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Coconut Crust

Drain pineapple thoroughly. Measure syrup and add enough orange juice to measure ¾ cup liquid. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup fruit juice.

BEAT EGG yolks; stir in remaining juice and ¼ cup sugar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add orange peel, salt and gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved.

Cool until syrupy. Beat egg white stiff; beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar. Fold egg white and pineapple into gelatin mixture. Pile into coconut crust. Chill to set.

Coconut Crust: Thoroughly mix together 1½ cups flaked coconut and 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine. Pat evenly into 9-inch pie plate.

Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until golden. Cool. (SH

Specialists Give Facts On Egg Nutrition and Size

URBANA — The Lenten season places added emphasis on eggs in family meals.

Hugh Johnson, extension poultry science specialist, and Mrs. Jane Myers, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Illinois, answer some common questions about eggs.

If I want eggs of high quality, should I buy the largest ones available?

NOT NECESSARILY, since size does not determine quality. A large egg may be AA, B or C quality, the same as a small egg. Top-quality eggs, grades AA and A, are best for poaching, frying and cooking in the shell, when appearance and delicate flavor are important.

But grade B and C eggs have dozen of uses, such as scrambling, baking and combining with other foods.

WE LIKE double-yolked eggs. Why can't we get more of them? The physiologist hasn't figured this out yet. The same thing applies to human twins.

Double-yolked eggs are most often laid by pullets coming into production, and they occur once in every 500 to 600 eggs produced.

Triple-yolked eggs are laid at the rate of about once in every 5,000 to 6,000 eggs, according to estimates.

The few double-yolked eggs that get to market are sold in the jumbo and extra-large sizes.

ARE FERTILE eggs more nutritious than unfertile ones?

No. Fertility has no connection with the nutritiousness of eggs.

Are eggs with darker yolks more nutritious than those with lighter yolks?

No. The nutritive content is the same for both dark and light yolks. Xanthophyll is the major substance causing yolks to have a particular shade of color, and it has no food value.

Darker yolks occur when chickens are fed large amounts of yellow corn, grass or alfalfa leaf meal containing xanthophyll.

Light yolks occur when chickens receive vitamin A and D from feeding oil instead of plant sources.

DO GREEN or dark yolks in hard-cooked eggs indicate poor quality? No. In most cases the color is due to the formation of ferrous sulphide during cooking.

When the egg is cooked for too long a time at too high a temperature, the iron in the yolk reacts with the sulphur in the white.

A dark layer is formed where the white and yolk come into contact with each other. Although the discolored yolk makes the egg unattractive, it does not lower its food value.

Corn Yield Up

Average yield of corn to the acre in 1961 reached 60.5 bushels, up from 44.1 in the early 50's.

Carson's O'Hare Restaurant Will Offer Panoramic View

Diners in the central Carson Pirie Scott & Co. restaurant building under construction at Chicago O'Hare International Airport can look forward to an "unmatched view of the 'Jet Age,'" Carter H. Manny Jr., partner of C. F. Murphy Associates, architects for the building, said last week.

The glass-walled circular building will have no interior supporting columns that conflict with the patron's view of the field operations below.

"In fact," Manny said, "the entire top level of the building, which will house "The Seven Continents, a lavish restaurant and cocktail lounge, will have no interior support at all because of a unique cable suspension roof."

CARSON'S will handle the world's largest and most diversified airport restaurant operation in the completed structure which, in addition to The Seven Continents, will include a pancake shop, a Coffee Shop, The Tartan Tray Cafeteria, a cafeteria for airport employees and another cocktail lounge, The 42nd Parallel.

"Visitors to O'Hare will find a complete range of restaurants," John T. Pirie Jr., chairman of Carson's said, "one of which is exactly suited to their needs and pocketbooks — whether they desire a quick, between-planes snack or a leisurely, full - course dinner.

"And patrons in all of these reataurants will share the panoramic view of the airport aprons and runways which is an exciting feature of this unusual building."

MANNY said the shape of the finished roof is slightly concave and it is balanced on a series of slender concrete columns, the only interruptions in the building's glass curtain wall which rises 58 ft. fromground level.

The main supporting member of the roof is a concrete "compression ring," 190 feet across, supported by the 26 sculptured columns around its perimeter, Manny added.

At the center of this giant hoop, an inner "tension ring" of cast iron weighing 13½ tons is suspended by a series of 52 lengths of two - inch bridge cable — nearly a mile in all. These cables serve as "rafters" to support six - inch pre-cast concrete slabs which make up the roof itself.

With all the slabs in place, tension on the cables is increased even more with the addition of a huge load of pig iron. The joints are then sealed with poured concrete and the pig iron, removed, causing the cables to spring back part way and balancing the forces of tension and compression.

"THE RESULT," Manny said, "is over 28,000 square feet of roof sloping gently toward the center with no internal supporting members allowing maximum vision and complete flexibility of interior space."

Inside, the effect of this unusual roof design is no less dramatic.

The supporting cables, covered with concrete for fire-resistance, form ribs on the ceiling, and the intervening slabs are covered with dark blue acoustic tile. Set in the tile are a myriad of low-watt bulbs, controlled by a rheostat, which provide an effect suggesting the twinkle of stars.

The inner ring, which is open at the center, holds a plastic-bubble skylight for additional

This free-flowing design will benefit patrons in another way, Manny pointed out, for it allowed Carson's restaurant facilities to be planned for maximum efficiency and fast service, unhampered by interior obstructions.

The earliest - known application of the principle of cable suspension roofing is in a sports arena — The Coliseum at Rome. A series of ropes strung from the top of the famous amphitheater to a large ring suspended over the center of the arena enabled the Romans to erect a temporary roof of gay, translucent fabric to ward off the sun and rain, yet still assure a clear view to spectators.

AT O'HARE, of course, the daytime illumination.

Immediately beneath this spectacular expanse of roof is a flat, doughnut-shaped concrete slab which will hold The Seven Continents. The concrete pillars which support this "mezzanine" — so-called because it "floats" ten feet away from the glass curtain wall— are set back so as not to obstruct the view of patrons on the level below.

"The central restaurant building was designed as the focal point of the entire O'Hare operation," Manny concluded, "and we feel that patrons of its restaurants will carry away its unmatched view of the 'Jet Age' as a lasting impression of Chicago." (BB

CAST IRON TENSION ring is joined to 190-foot diameter periphery concrete compression ring by 52 lengths of two-inch diameter bridge cable in new ultra-modern building now under construction at O'Hare International Airport. Colonial Paint Colors Return After 200 Years

A favorite style of decorating —American Colonial—is making a big comeback, and homemakers here are welcoming a return to the warmth and elegance so characteristic of this style. More and more good reproductions of the pre-Revolutionary era are available, and originals are in great demand.

ONE ELEMENT of colonial deocrating is easily and inexpensively available—paint colors. Yes, authentic colonial paint colors—the very same used in 17th and 18th century homes—are being produced once again, after two centuries, and are available locally.

A group of 20 "Historic Newport Colors"—exact reproductions of the original hues used in the famous colonial city of Old Newport, R. I.—are being offered by local dealers in Jewel Colorizer Paints. They include everything from pastels to deep rich reds, browns, and greens, and lend themselves to every taste in architecture—colonial, traditional, or contemporary.

The colors are presented in a handsome decorating guide which includes 36 paint color swatches and many full-color illustrations showing the tasteful use of different colors with colonial reproductions in furniture, bedspreads, draperies, and chinaware. This decorating guide is available for the asking at local dealers listed in the Jewel paint advertisement in this issue. (BB

Modern Etiquette

Q. When is it proper for one to begin eating when at the dinner table?

A. When just the family or a small group are there, it's pleasant and courteous to wait until all are served before beginning to eat. If there are a great number of persons and your food might cool before the serving is completed, it's proper to start eating after several persons have been served. At a buffet, you eat as soon as you fill your plate.

Q. May a formally engraved invitation be properly acknowledged on the typewriter?

A. Never; always answer formal invitations by handwritten note.

Brentwood Commons Center Signs Three New Leases

Three new leases have been finalized for stores in the Brentwood Commons shopping center located in northwest suburban Bensenville. The new leases include: the Starlite Beauty Salon, Walt Boyle's Toys, Games & Sportswear and a coin-operated laundry and dry cleaners. Only two smaller stores remain to be leased and negotiations are now in progress.

The grand opening of the $2 million shopping facility is scheduled for early spring. When completed, the center will include nine retail facilities plus a 750-car parking area.

A NATIONAL TEA food mart and a Scott Variety store opened last week. Already in operation was an A & P supermarket. Other stores will include Caron-Rexall Drugs, Terrace Barber Shop, and Nicholson's Card & Gift Shop.

Formerly called Brentwood Terrace, the name was changed to Brentwood Commons, to more accurately depict the New England architectural theme designed by Carl Teutsch & Associates. Colonial roof lines with red face brick exteriors and white accents were selected by Teutsch to carry out the Williamsburg Colonial design and create the appearance of individual store fronts.

Construction of the Brentwood facility was undertaken after research studies conducted by the Wilson firm revealed a growing market in terms of home and apartment construction in the area. Last year, superhighway construction brought about substantial cuts in travel time between the Bensenville area and Chicago, giving impetus to home construction and population development. Brentwood Commons will provide convenient shopping facilities for areas near Bensenville such as Elmhurst, Villa Park, Addison, Wood Dale and Itasca. (BB

HINTS TO HOMEOWNERS

Alert Homeowners
Dial Daily 392-3060

One of the most important parts of having a good lawn, is maintaining proper fertility levels. A soil test will help you establish the availability of plant nutrients in the soil. Soil tests are usually made to determine the amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium in the soil.

Nitrogen is usually the most deficient grass nutrient since it is used by plants in relatively large amounts. It also leaches from the soil or is otherwise easily removed. Nitrogen can be replaced in the soil through the application of any of a variety of common nitrogenous compounds.

Super-phosphate or another phosphorus-containing fertilizer may be used to supply phosphorus to the soil. Similarly, potassium may be added as muriate of potash or some other potassium compound.

A COMPLETE fertilizer can be used to supply nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. 10-8-6, 10-8-4, and 15-5-5 are examples of complete fertilizers recommended for use on lawns. In 10-8-6 the 10 indicates the percentage of nitrogen contained in the fertilizer material, 8 the per cent phosphorus (phosphoric acid), and 6 the per cent potassium (potash). Thus 100 lbs. of the material would contain 10 lbs. of nitrogen, 8 lbs. of phosphorus, and 6 lbs. of potassium.

There are four general classes of nitrogen fertilizers: nitrate, natural organic, and synthetic organic.

The ammonium and nitrate materials are relatively inexpensive and quick acting. These materials are soluble, and should be used at relatively low rates to prevent burning and still maintain adequate soil nitrogen. Frequent applications of small amounts of ammonium and nitrate materials will usually give satisfactory results. Ammonium nitrate, a common fertilizer, contains both nitrate and ammonium nitrogen.

The organic fertilizers, such as activated sewage sludge and animal tankage, contain nitrogen in quite variable amounts, and may also contain phosphorus and potassium. Organic nitrogen is usually in a water-soluble form and will not cause burning of the turf when supplied in large amounts. The availability of this form of nitrogen is dependent upon weather conditions. In cold weather nitrogen may not be released in adequate amounts for good plant growth. Warm and humid conditions cause more nitrogen to become available causing the grass to be in a succulent condition at an inopportune time. The organic fertilizers may improve soil conditions by adding a certain amount of organic matter to the soil.

SYNTHETIC organic nitrogen (urea-form) is a recent development in the fertilizer industry. The urea-forms have a relatively uniform release of nitrogen. This material is rather long lasting. In many areas one application of urea-form per season will give satisfactory results. It is safe to use, and doesn't cause succulent growth. The expense of this material is one of its chief drawbacks.

There are many recommendations for lawn fertility programs. M[illegible] of these programs will give good results. A common recommendation made for home lawns is two applications of fertilizer a year. An application of 2 lbs. of actual nitrogen per 1,000 sq. ft. applied in March and again in early September should give good results. It must be remembered that this is actual nitrogen and not the rate for the material as it comes from the bag. In addition to the fertilizer applied in March and September another light application may be made in late spring, particularly on Merion Bluegrass. Sometimes better results are obtained with more frequent applications at lighter rates.

Another recommendation is for urea-form at a rate of from 10 to 15 lbs. of material from the bag per 1,000 sq. ft. applied either in the spring or fall. Liquid fertilizers are becoming more widely available. In selecting which type of material to use check the ease of application and the cost of the nutrients supplied. Remember that with fertilizers it is not the container that counts, but what is in it. (BB
